WEATHER HAMPERS AIR RAIDS

Sharp Fighting Flares In Viet Triangle Drive

SAIGON (AP)—Sharp fighting flared up and down South Vietnam today and the big American drive in the Iron Triangle pushed Communist losses beyond 450 men.

The U.S. and South Vietnamese Commands listed many small clashes and these other developments:

- A Norwegian motorship and a U.S. Navy minesweeping boat collided in a river 30 miles southeast of Saigon and the navy boat sank with the loss of three of her seven-man crew.
- U.S. B-52 heavy bombers struck at a suspected concentration of North Vietnamese troops less than a mile south of the demilitarized zone.
- Bad weather continued to hamper U.S. air raids over the North but pilots attacked coastal targets and reported putting 54 junks and barges out of action.

HIT OUTPOST

A South Vietnamese military spokesman said two battalions of Viet Cong—a force estimated at 400 men—over-ran a military post 325 miles northeast of Saigon and the defending platoon of 30 militiamen pulled out.

The spokesman said the militiamen "dispersed" and he had no report on casualties. At last report, the post was still in Communist hands.

Elsewhere, however, South Vietnamese troops reported killing 38 enemy troops in four small clashes ranging from 54 miles southwest of Saigon to 276 miles northeast of the capital.

U.S. marines operating in the northern provinces of South Vietnam reported killing 74 of the enemy in a series of light skirmishes and with artillery barrages.

In Operation Cedar Falls, the week-old drive to clear out the jungles of the Iron Trie 20 to 30 miles north of Saigon, U.S. forces counted 286 Viet Cong dead so far, 64 captured and an additional 105 who surrendered.

The operation, biggest of the war, has seen no major fighting so far.

Civilian Killings Explained

An earlier official account had said the civilians were killed when the Viet Cong used them as "human shields" and government troops had fired into them while protecting themselves from a Viet Cong attack.

Ten children were killed and 25 other persons were wounded in the incident. Conflicts and contradictions in the original account have now aroused controversy.

A U.S. government official said today the original account came first from South Vietnamese military reports and was confirmed by the U.S. military. Later when questions were raised, he said, the U.S. military investigated again and found that the casualties had been caused by government artillery.

VANCOUVER POLICE TROUBLES

Embattled Mayor May Sue for Report

Food Poisoning

CANNING EYED AS TWO DIE

SUMMERLAND, B.C. (CP) — Improperly preserved home canning was being investigated today as a possible cause of the deaths of a woman and her son apparently stricken with food poisoning.

The father, meanwhile, was in improved condition in hospital after being admitted unconscious Friday.

Dr. D. A. Clarke, medical health officer for the South Okanagan, said early indications are that Mrs. Frederick Gordon Hollinger, 32, and her son, Todd, 9, died of botulinus poisoning, generally associated with improperly preserved home canning.

Samples of food from the Hollinger home here were being sent to the University of B.C. for analysis.

Hollinger's father, Peter Hollinger, found his daughter-in-law dead and his son and grandson unconscious.

Both were taken to Summerland Hospital and the boy was transferred later to Penticton General Hospital.

Four doses of anti-toxin were ordered from Vancouver, but the boy died before they arrived.

A police spokesman said the family apparently had eaten at home Thursday night. He said a report that they had visited a restaurant in Penticton had been proved incorrect.

7 CHILDREN, PARENTS DIE IN HOME FIRE

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A man, his wife and seven of their 12 children died today when fire swept their narrow three-storey home in the north Philadelphia section of the city.

Neighbors said the flames engulfed the house so quickly the victims were trapped on the second and third floors. Three children escaped by leaping from windows in the upper floors.

Fired Men Judged Incompetent

VANCOUVER (CP) — Many of the 34 carpenters fired from their jobs on the Peace River power project were judged incompetent, a spokesman for the employers said Friday.

Ed Peck, general manager of Peace Power Constructors, the employing authority on the project, said his investigation into the firings still is going on.

So far, he said, he has found that 12 men were fired for poor production, nine because they were unsuitable for underground work, 11 for failing to return from Christmas holidays and two more for other reasons.

He added that employers have recommended firing 11 more men, and this matter is being studied.

"A lot of these men were apparently only recent hirees," said Mr. Peck. "The main test for new men is job performance."

New Market Drive By U.K.

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson prepared today to launch a new drive to get Britain into the European Common Market, but diplomatic reports indicate French President Charles de Gaulle will veto the renewed application.

Wilson and Foreign Secretary George Brown fly to Rome Sunday on the first leg of a European tour.

Holed Ship Hanging On Reef

The tanker Esso Seattle rammed the freighter at 6 a.m. just outside Apra harbor. A hole 70 feet long and 30 feet high was torn in the No. 4 hold. The freighter, with the aid of a tug, limped to the coral beach.

Three navy tugs pushed the Guam Bear on to the reef. The bow rose high into the air and the No. 4 and 5 holds submerged. The fate of the 10,937-ton freighter depends "on whether the engine room bulkhead holds," said Gmelch. "If it does, there is a chance to salvage her."

20 Officers Reported Named

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun says a controversial report on the Vancouver police force names about 20 policemen suspected of being involved in crimes or of showing malfeasance in the performance of their duties.

The newspaper also says the Murray report is critical of former police chief George Archer and that it mentions Tom Campbell, now the city's mayor.

The report says Mr. Campbell, an alderman at the time the report was written, failed to give lawyer George Murray information Mr. Campbell had indicated he had on criminal activity among policemen.

Mayor Campbell now is embroiled in a dispute over the Murray report. He has threatened court action unless Attorney-General Robert Bonner gives him a copy of the report, which the new mayor says he will make public.

The report was compiled in June, 1965, by Mr. Murray at the request of former Mayor William Rathie.

DAMAGE MORALE

As an alderman last year, Mr. Campbell had urged that the report be made public. Mr. Murray said the report should not be disclosed because it would be damaging to police force morale and possibly libellous.

Thursday, Mayor Campbell walked out of a Vancouver police commission meeting when he was refused a copy of the report. The mayor is chairman of the commission.

Attorney-General Bonner said later he had all copies of the report and that he would give one to Mayor Campbell only if the majority of police commissioners approved.

Mr. Campbell said Friday night his only recourse appeared to be legal action to get a copy.

The Sun says it has learned that the Murray report also recommends further investigations into the police force, though it praises the force as a whole.

The newspaper says the report mentions improprieties among members of the police jail staff, and says that some of these suspects were known during the regime of Mr. Archer.

The report says the suspects were transferred to the police jail staff so they would be in the least sensitive positions on the force and so that the force's public image would remain clean.

Union Bugging Tapes Silenced By Court Order

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice T. A. Dohm Friday ordered controversial tape recordings made during the electronic bugging of a pulp union's November convention turned over to the B.C. Supreme Court until further notice.

Mr. Justice Dohm granted the order to the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, which objected to playing of the tapes in public by a royal commission investigating the bugging on grounds that it would constitute an invasion of privacy.

He said the tapes will be kept by the court and ruled they will not be played unless special permission is granted by a judge.

O'NEAL RESTRAINED

MILITARY HIDEOUT STORMED

Anti-Mao Officers Arrested in China Purge

TOKYO (CP) — A Chinese military unit has stormed a hideout of military officers opposed to Communist Chairman Mao Tse-tung and arrested "scores" of the officers, a Japanese newspaper reported today.

It appeared to be the first report of violence within China's 2,500,000-man People's Liberation Army over Mao's purge of his opponents.

Peking radio reported earlier that an "acute and complicated" struggle involving a small but influential group of anti-Maoists has built up within the army.

ASKED RETRACTION

Other Japanese reports said President Liu Shao-chi, the top anti-Mao leader, recently demanded before the Communist central committee a retraction of his "self-criticism" widely publicized last December.

The reports said the demand could indicate that Liu was confident of maintaining his power and that he had launched a counter-attack against Mao and Defence Minister Lin Paio.

The Peking correspondent of Mainichi Shimbun said the officers were arrested last Tuesday in Lanchow, a city of more than 150,000 700 miles west of Peking on the Yellow River.

The poster said the captured officers were "black military elements" loyal to Gen. Liu Chih-chien, ousted by Mao's supporters as director of the military revolution committee and No. 2 man in charge of ideological matters in the army.

The officers' documents were reported confiscated.

Correspondents of the Yomiuri and Sankei newspapers, quoting wall posters, in Peking, said President Liu had defended his sending of "work teams" about the country last year.

Posters put up by Mao's Red Guard supporters last December said Liu had confessed at a central committee meeting in October to dispatching work teams opposed to Mao's purge while Mao was absent from Peking for 50 days before last July 18.

According to the Japanese reports today, Liu said:

"The dispatch of work teams was not erroneous.

"If the dispatch of work teams was erroneous, the current situation is left in form but actually leading to right."

The 69-year-old Liu, Mao's comrade-in-arms and close adviser during the Chinese revolution, had been considered Mao's successor before the purge developed last summer. Lin Piao now is thought to be Mao's heir.

Peking radio said today anti-Maoists within the army were "staging a counter-attack" while military units and "revolutionary rebels" throughout China were rallying to Mao's support.

SEATTLE — Officials have promised disciplinary action in the wake of reports that Seattle policemen on downtown beats have been playing poker in a tavern during their hours of duty.

"There is going to be disciplinary action," said Police Chief Frank Ramon, who ordered an investigation of reports brought to his attention by two reporters for the Seattle Times.

He said he learned that a poker game, involving on-duty patrolmen, had been going on at a tavern more than five years.

The reporters said they were told that more than a dozen policemen sometimes gather at the tavern.

Eight members of a ring operating for three years were taken into custody in Milan, police said.

Bank Robbery Trial May Be Over Monday

VANCOUVER (CP) — A decision is expected Monday in the B.C. Supreme Court trial of three men charged with an $18,000 Victoria bank robbery.

The Crown closed its case Friday after calling 40 witnesses. The jury elected to hear the addresses from prosecution and defence lawyers Monday, starting at 9:30 a.m.

Charged with robbery of the Bank of Montreal at 1771 Fort last Feb. 18 are William Braumberger, 45, of Vancouver, and Gordon Francis Duck, 24, and Harold Coullrer, 47, both arrested in Toronto.

SPECIAL MASKS

The bank was robbed by three men, two of whom wore balaclava-type masks and carried cut-down rifles.

The money was not recovered.

Defence counsel H. A. D. Oliver said he would argue there was insufficient evidence against them.

Trial judge is Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe and the prosecutor is George MacMinn of Victoria.

The trial was moved from Victoria Law Courts to Vancouver after a three-day hearing last October.

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan of the B.C. Supreme Court declared a mistrial beaucse of a news story in The Daily Colonsit which contained statements made in court while the jury was excluded.

He held that the statement, when read by the jury, could destroy the presumption of innocence of the accused. He therefore dismissed the Victoria jury and ordered that a new trial be held in Vancouver.

Special Collector Service

A centennial cross-Canada helicopter flight which calls here in September will offer a special service to stamp collectors.

The 'copter begins its tour of Canada May 24 at St. John's, Newfoundland. Its last flight will be from Victoria to Long Beach on the west coast of the Island, Sept. 1.

Each phase of the journey will be marked by the issue of envelopes bearing special stamps or "covers," the term used by philatelists.

Some of the events to be commemorated by the special covers include the attempt to set a speed record between Newfoundland and the island of St. Pierre, the 40th anniversary of Lindbergh's crossing of the Atlantic, the official start and a visit to Expo 67.

Opening of the Pan-American games in Winnipeg and the Vancouver-Vancouver Island flight, an airmail transfer to a hovercraft and others from a kayak and a stagecoach also will be marked by the special covers.

Covers prepared by collectors themselves will be carried free of charge. Covers prepared on official, colorful envelopes and autographed by the crew are available from Centennial 'Copter Headquarters, Box 1967, New Westminster.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Temperatures continued mild overnight with rain and drizzle along the coast. The interior was cloudy with snow in the Cariboo and a few snowflurries elsewhere. A weather system will maintain its position from the Pacific into central Washington and as a result no improvement in the present weather is expected over the weekend.

Policy in Naming Judges Blasted

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave first reading Friday to a bill providing for appointment of one additional judge in British Columbia and one in Ontario — but not before the whole method of appointment came under fire.

Solicitor-General Pennell introduced the bill, which provides salaries for a judge to be appointed for Westminster County in British Columbia and for a "roving judge" in Ontario.

Frank Howard (NDP— Skeena) called for a halt to the present method of appointing judges on the basis of political considerations. Provincial law societies should be consulted. The Canadian Bar Association had made such a proposal.

Mr. Pennell said law societies already are consulted. He agreed that appointments should never be solely on the basis of political considerations. The primary consideration was the competency of the individual to discharge the responsibilities of a judge.

David Lewis (NDP— York South), a prominent Ontario labor lawyer, said unofficial consultations between law societies and the government are known to occur. But he wondered why they couldn't be made public.

He suggested some body be officially recognized for consultations on bench appointments.

The bill is to come up for second reading later in the session.

"There are a handful of authorities within the army who are following the capitalist road together with a small group of stubborn bourgeois reactionaries," a broadcast said. "These authorities and stubborn elements are using various methods in an attempt to cause disturbance."

CALLS FOR PURGE

Peking radio also broadcast an editorial by the Liberation Army Daily, the official Chinese Army newspaper, calling for a complete purge of army leaders opposing Mao.

But the newspaper warned an "arduous struggle" lay ahead in order to weed out the reactionary elements.

In other developments, a Japanese report said Red Guards and workers loyal to Mao had seized the Peking central radio broadcasting station on grounds that since the start of 1965 it had broadcast "black programs that suppressed Mao Tse-tung's thought and followed the reactionary line."

Following reports that supporters of Mao and President Liu were pouring into Peking, Yomiuri said a bloody clash had occurred Tuesday when anti-Mao mobs stormed pro - Mao forces protecting secret documents inside the State Council (cabinet) building. Some of the anti-Maoists were said to have been armed.

Peking radio said workers loyal to Mao had taken over the railway and a big electric power plant in Shanghai. Strikes and sabotage had been reported in the city earlier this week.

Huge Dope Smuggling Ring Broken

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Police and customs officials in Sydney, Washington and London today claimed to have smashed an international multi-million dollar dope smuggling ring by raids here and in the United States.

Six men and a woman were held in dawn raids today on 12 Sydney homes.

The Sydney arrests were linked with police action in the U.S. this week, where eight persons were arrested in Miami, Honolulu and New York.

Three of them, former Australian policemen James Wesley Egan, 29, Bryan John Hill, 32 and Roy Lawrence Peake, 24, have been charged with smuggling millions of dollars worth of heroin into the U.S.

WAS 'MILK RUN'

The international operation was described by U.S. authorities as a "regular milk run" on which couriers concealed heroin in corsets they wore.

U.S. Attorney Robert Morgenthau said the ring bought heroin from a Chinese source in Hong Kong at $1,600 a kilogram and sold it to wholesalers in New York at $1,000 an ounce, or about $34,000 a kilogram. A kilogram equals 2.2 pounds.

Morgenthau said the Australian ring members smuggled the heroin into the U.S. in small quantities. He said they used fraudulent passports and made frequent trips.

The arrests were the climax of a year-long investigation by U.S., Australian and British authorities into an alleged narcotic ring headquartered in Sydney.

An Australian officer said U.S. government investigators claimed the ring had shipped at least $5,000,000 worth of heroin into the U.S. during the past year.

BRITISH HELP

Some of the smugglers flew to London on their way to New York and British customs had co-operated with U.S. authorities, he added.

Officials in Sydney said the narcotics were obtained in ports such as Hong Kong and Singapore and brought to Sydney for worldwide distribution.

Australian federal police and customs men, working behind the scenes in Sydney to gain information for weeks, were granted 12 search warrants by a magistrate this week. Friday night they were given the order to move.

Raids on the 12 suburban Sydney homes were carried out simultaneously at 5:30 a.m. today.

Officials here said the narcotics were believed to have been smuggled abroad on ships.

Mr. O'Neal admitted being behind the eavesdropping. He said he paid a private detective $200 "to obtain information" on PPWC activities.

"I cannot see any reason why anybody should hear those tapes unless the Department of Transport needs them to prosecute," Mr. Justice Dohm said. "Other than that I would be inclined to have them erased."

Fridy's judgment was the latest legal manoeuvre in the complicated battle between the PPWC and the international.

The Canadian union was successful in a bid two weeks ago in having the royal commission, under R. A. Sargent, a retired county court judge, branded illegal as constituted.

Chief Justice J. O. Wilson gave the provincial government the choice of ending the hearings completely or reconstituting the commission under new, more specific terms of reference.

The government chose the latter course and hearings are set to resume Wednesday. Mr. Sargent remained commissioner.

SECOND THOUGHTS

The PPWC, whose angry denunciations of the international following discovery of the bugging equipment in a Vancouver hotel room sparked the royal commission investigation, started having second thoughts when Mr. Sargent decided he'd like to hear the tapes during the earlier commission sittings.

John Laxton, counsel for the Canadian union, argued desperately against public airing of the tapes, but when the commissioner decided he'd hear them, Mr. Laxton took the matter to court before they could be played.

Prior to Friday's ruling, the tape were in the possession of a department of transport inspector who aided in seizing them from the PPWC's convention headquarters two months ago.

'Strangler' Told Pal Of Killings

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) —A former state hospital inmate testified Friday that the man named as the Boston strangler said his story of the stranglings would make him a millionaire.

Albert DeSalvo, 35, the self-styled strangler, said he hoped to cash in on the book, magazine and movie rights to his story of the killings, Stanley Setterlund told a Middlesex County Superior Court jury.

"He said he was worth a million dollars," Setterlund testified.

Setterlund said he was an inmate of the Masaachusetts hospital in Bridgewater for nearly four months in 1965 and talked frequently with DeSalvo, also being held there.

Setterlund said DeSalvo told him and other inmates of attacking numerous women in their homes and—on some occasions—taking money and jewelry.

LEFT VALUABLES

DeSalvo said he never took all the money or jewels he saw "so it wouldn't look like a robbery," Setterlund said, "but so it would look like he was a sex maniac."

Defence lawyer F. Lee Bailey has based his defence solely on the contention that DeSalvo is insane.

DeSalvo is on trial on charges of attacking four women in their suburban Boston homes in 1964. The charges are unrelated to the series of deadly attacks on women in Greater Boston from June, 1962, to January, 1964. Eleven of the victims were strangled, one was stabbed and the other beaten to death.

The state had said evidence is lacking to convict anyone of the stranglings. The trial resumes Monday.

FIRST NEGRO PREMIER WILL GUIDE BAHAMAS

NASSAU (AP) — Lynden O. Pindling was asked today to form a new government, thus becoming the Bahamas' first Negro chief executive. The 36-year-old leader of the Progressive Liberal party will succeed Dr. Roland Symonette as premier.

Governor Sir Ralph Grey said Pindling "is the member of the House of Assembly who is best able to command the confidence of a majority of the members of that chamber."

Pindling's party made a surprising showing in the elections which resulted in an 18-18 House of Assembly stalemate with the long-entrenched United Bahamian party.

JOURNEYMEN MECHANICS . . . WILL ALWAYS BE REQUIRED

It has been stated that oil and natural gas reserves in Canada are so great that they will still be producing hundreds of years from now.

That would suggest that the oil-fired furnace is going to be around for some years to come.

In fairness it should be said that some experts disagree with this theory.

They feel that the next 25-years will see the introduction of atomic power to serve domestic heating needs.

One thing will not change: the need for skilled Journeymen Mechanics to install and maintain heating plants in homes, factories, office buildings, hospitals and schools.

Whether they are coal-fired, oil-fired, gas-fired or fired by atomic power, the skilled heating specialist will be required.

And that's one thing you should know about your local mechanical contractors. Their union workmen are bang up-to-date on techniques and modern equipment. They will still be up-to-date whatever changes time may bring.

CUDDLED CATS TAKE OVER — PAMPERED PETS RUN U.K.

His Bat in the Bedroom Prefers Eggs Boiled Hard

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP)—Sometimes in England you get the feeling the animals are about to take over in a nightmare of cuddled cats and pampered dogs, of sidewalks impeded by a maze of leashes and befouled with doggy droppings.

The outsider in England must learn to live with the Black Beauty syndrome, a national affliction that seems to rate animals—all animals short of homo sapiens—on a level with the angels, if not higher. A random selection of newspaper items from a three-week period reinforces the feeling.

Westminster—Commenting on the case of a farm worker who contracted foot and mouth disease, an agriculture ministry spokesman said: "Our concern is the control and eradication of the disease in animals and our interest in the man was to ensure that he did not carry the disease to healthy animals."

Halberton — Widow Florence Cox, 76, has caused a dispute in the parish church because she shares her wine and wafer with her pet terrier Pip at Holy Communion. Rt. Rev. Robert Mortimer, Bishop of Exeter, said he is opposed to dogs taking communion and "will speak to the vicar about it."

Government statisticians estimate almost half as many dogs, cats and caged birds as people live in England—about 4,000,000 dogs, more than 6,000,000 cats, and about 9,000,000 pet birds. The owners have access to 28 weekly or monthly journals about animals and their welfare, from The Aquarist and Pondkeeper to Tail-Wagger. Some owners develop unique relationships with their pets.

Saxmundham — The Earl of Cranbrook said he exercises bats in his bathroom. "I keep them for about three months, feed them well and let them go," he said. His recipe for the ideal meal for a bat is equal parts of the yolk of a hard-boiled egg, cream cheese and banana.

The 1966 list of charity Christmas cards approved by the London Council of Social Service included 10 in aid of animals. If you didn't like the cards in aid of the Children's Country Holidays Fund, for example, you could support the League for Protection of Horses by purchasing cards depicting horses on rural rest farms.

London — First British aid to Italy after the November floods — preceding art restorers for Florence and food and clothing from the Save the Children Fund — was funds and fodder sent by the Anglo-Italian Society for the Protection of Animals. "Within three days of the disaster my society was at work," said chairman Sir Thomas Moore, "relieving the suffering and distressed animals where possible."

Sheffield — Firemen, farm workers and an RSPCA inspector worked for hours in pouring rain, digging several tons of earth, to rescue a terrier named Mona which had run into a drain on a nearby farm. Mrs. Leonard Rogers, 55, said while drying and feeding her dog by the fire: "Mona means as much to me as my children."

An officer of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children confesses privately that the NSPCC sometimes feels at a disadvantage in fund-raising conpared with the more prominent Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

War Financing Was Big Job For Minister

HALIFAX (CP) — Chief Justice James Lorimer Ilsley of the Nova Scotia Supreme Court, a former member of Parliament for Digby - Annapolis-Kings and wartime minister of finance, died in hospital early today. He was 73.

An austere man of simple tastes and almost spartan personal habits, he rose from a rural law practice to direct the financing of Canada's war effort before returning to serve his native province as chief justice.

Mr. Justice Ilsley, who later admitted that his government responsibilities drove him three times to the verge of a nervous breakdown, was appointed finance minister in July, 1940, and remained in the post until the end of the Second World War.

MP 22 YEARS

A Liberal, he was first elected to the House of Commons in 1926 and was re-elected in 1930, 1935, 1940 and 1945—a total of 22 years in Parliament.

To finance Canada's part in the war, he piled tax upon tax on the Canadian people. As minister responsible for the prices board and the Mackenzie King government's general anti-inflationary policy, he was the man behind many measures such as rationing and restrictive controls, although most Canadians generally accepted them as inevitable during the long emergency.

Mr. Justice Ilsley was also embroiled in the conscription crisis of 1944, along with two fellow Nova Scotians in the King government, Naval Minister Angus L. Macdonald and Defence Minister J. L. Ralston, whom he succeeded as finance minister.

He was in favor of conscription, an issue that split both the cabinet and the country and over which Mr. Ralston later resiged.

RESIGNED IN 1948

Mr. Justice Ilsley was appointed minister of justice in 1946 and remained in the post until 1948 when he resigned to enter private law practice in Montreal. He was appointed to the Nova Scotia Supreme Court in 1949.

At the time of his retirement from political life in 1948, Mr. Justice Ilsley was regarded as a top contender to follow Mr. King as Liberal leader.

STATUETTE of Sir John A. Macdonald is one of the prize possessions of the Oxford County Museum in Woodstock, Ont. The statuette, the work Philippe Hebert, was presented to the museum by an anonymous donor.

Vagrant Out 60 Days On Sentencing

Roderick Purcell's prophecy proved pessimistic when he was arrested by city police Friday.

"I'll get three months for this but I'll get you when I get out," he told Constable Bruce Campbell after the officer told him he would be charged with vagrancy.

Purcell, of no fixed address, was sentenced to 30 days when he pleaded guilty in central court today.

He was charged after police saw him approaching passersby at Government and Johnson Streets. He had one cent in his pockets.

DE GAULLE, KIESINGER HOPE FOR NEW ERA

French, German Relations Improve

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle and West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kieseinger today wound up two days of talks that both hope will launch a new era of good feelings between Bonn and Paris.

The visit was Kiesinger's first trip abroad since assuming office Dec. 1. The 61-year-old chancellor has pledged to try to revitalize the 1963 Franco-German co - operation treaty without harming relations with Washington.

After the initial meeting of the two leaders Friday, it appeared the emotional aspects of Franco - German rapprochement following the Second World War had given way to a more practical view.

The French described the talks as frank and cordial. The Germans said the discussions were to the point and free of any philosphical discourses.

In a television interview, Kiesinger said he and de Gaulle were not in accord on all problems, but that there was a wide area of common ground.

At a French foreign ministry dinner Friday night, Kiesinger said: "We do not expect anything spectacular but the realization and application of the French-German treaty."

The French have been cool toward the pro-American policies of Kiesinger's predecessor, Ludwig Erhard. Bonn and Paris still have conflicting views about what Paris calls West Germany's special relationship with the United States.

At the dinner, Kiesinger conceded that Bonn may well be to blame for the decline in relations since Chancellor Konrad Adenauer left office in 1963.

Kiesinger said:

"There has been an uneasiness and Mr. Maurice Couve de Murville (the French foreign minister) told me that, if things did not always work well, the French were not responsible. There is no doubt, something true in this."

Earlier, at a luncheon in the presidential palace, Kiesinger appeared to dissociate himself from the Erhard era of Franco-German relations.

A former chairman of the Bundestag's foreign affairs committee, Kiesinger reminded the French he had been absent from Bonn politics for eight years.

During that time he said he was minister-president of the state of Baden-Wuerttemberg, gained perspective and was free of the prejudices and misunderstandings that often handicap issues in Bonn.

Historical Fact Ignored, Says MP

OTTAWA (CP) — A member of Parliament says Professor Donald Creighton ignored historical fact in a speech saying that the idea of Confederation as a bargain between French and English originated only recently. (Bryce Mackasey (L—Montreal Verdun) said it is inconceivable that Professor Creighton, the biographer of Sir John A. Macdonald, "should strive so hard to prove a point that frankly is of little consequence in 1967."

The University of Toronto historian said in his speech at Winnipeg earlier this week that the real origin of "this radical new interpretation of the nature of Confederation" is political.

"It can be found in the rapid rise of French-Canada nationalism since Jean Lesage came to power in Quebec in 1960."

Mr. Mackasey said in a statement Friday that to presume Canada's French-speaking citizens had decided only since 1960 that Confederation was a pact between two cultures "ignores many well-established historical facts."

Professor Creighton should realize, the Montreal MP said, that it is only since 1960 that the people of Quebec "have had the economic strength to make the rest of Canada aware that we cannot proceed any further without rectifying the injustices ... which make it difficult for French-speaking Canadians to participate fully in the affairs of Canada."

Heads Win, Tails Lose

WHILE THE SITUATION IN China continues to baffle foreign observers, the possibility of the overthrow of Chairman Mao — and it is perhaps no more than a possibility — suggests some interesting repercussions.

With the Mao faction in strong doctrinal and political opposition to Moscow, the question arises as to what would be the effect of Mao's defeat. If it meant that a faction favorable to Russia were to assume power, the ideological balance of the world would undergo an abrupt change. The apparent desire of the U.S.S.R. to achieve a closer relationship with the West, as a balance to the rise of a nuclear-armed, antagonistic China, might be quickly altered and we might see the rise of a vast Communist alliance with a unified front to present to the West.

With undisputed leadership of the Communist world, Russia might well feel able to revise its recent policy of concentration on industrial and agricultural advance and begin once more to pay greater attention to intervention in the affairs of other countries. The cold war could flare up again. From this viewpoint, it would be to the advantage of the West for Mao and his blood-and-thunder followers to retain their anti-Soviet control of China, even though their power in itself constitutes a threat to peace and international co-operation.

But while the present harsh line of the Mao regime continues, Russia will be less disposed to agree with the United States that the proposed vast program of anti-missile sites should be abandoned, for there will eventually be, in Russian eyes, a Chinese nuclear threat as well as an American one.

Since either a belligerent China or one amenable to Soviet leadership must each in its own way create a problem for the West, the answer must lie in a constructive approach to Peking as soon as the current internal dissension is settled. The world's most populous country must be given diplomatic recognition by Western powers, including the United States; it must be welcomed into the United Nations Assembly; and above all it must be recruited into an international agreement on control of nuclear weapons.

These are the necessary steps regardless of which faction wins in China. To delay later, while the strength of China steadily increases, will not make their achievement easier.

The Balancing Factor

THE AMERICAN NEWSPAPER Publishers Association has completed a two-year study by a blue-chip committee of leading publishers and editors, and produced a report which reasserts the rights of a free press, and correctly declares that these rights are not incompatible with the rights of the individual to a fair trial.

The study was initiated in the wake of charges that individual rights were being infringed by the publication of stories and opinions prejudicial to the interests of persons on trial. Prominent cases in point were the widely publicized events surrounding the charge of President Kennedy's murder laid against Lee Harvey Oswald, and the equally overheated coverage of the trial of Dr. Sam Shepherd, accused of murder but recently, after years of controversy, acquitted.

Article I of the United States constitution enjoins Congress from making any law abridging freedom of the press. Article VI guarantees an accused person the right of "a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury." The ANPA report holds that these two rights are not incompatible and rejects the charge that the second is endangered by the first.

In truth, they should not be incompatible, but the history of news coverage in the United States — and in Canada and Britain too, until stricter regulations and a more conservative tradition came into being — has not been such as to create full confidence that many an accused person has not been the victim of all-out publicity that exceeded fact and fairness in its presentation.

It must be remembered, of course, in defence of the press of the United States, that it operates in a much more free-swinging environment than obtains in Canada. A Canadian reads with astonishment of, say, a police chief in some American city, who immediately on the arrest of a suspect, may announce publicly that "we've got the murderer, folks." Under our system, nobody is a murderer until the courts have proved him so. The difficulties of finding an unprejudiced jury in the face of such a police statement must be considerable.

There can be little doubt that many an injustice has been done by the press in its earnest attempt to preserve and assert the right to freedom of publication. That is a freedom which must be defended at all times, for its loss would very quickly lead to still more serious infringements of the rights of individuals. Press freedom is the first bulwark of a free people — and the first one to be removed by a dictator.

But such an important right carries with it a great responsibility, and it is to this aspect that the American publishers' report fails to give full attention. Two thoughts come immediately to mind. One is that, like mankind, no freedom is an island; infringement of an individual's rights, no matter how lowly he may be, cannot do other than harm the freedom and rights of all, including the newspapers.

Secondly, the history of our society shows that where abuses are not kept in check by the voluntary action of those concerned, then society eventually takes steps to impose restrictions. Government restrictions on the press could constitute a very grave danger — a first step to even greater evils. Freedom is best preserved by those who most need it, and this applies to no part of our society more than to the press.

A Tugboat Inquiry

THIS COMMUNITY'S INHERENT concern for men who go down to the sea gives it a particular interest in the proposal of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild for a full-scale public inquiry into recent tugboat sinkings off the British Columbia coast.

Such an inquiry should go beyond an effort to fix blame for the fatalities which have occurred (18 deaths reportedly in the last four years) and should attempt to determine if certain conditions have arisen recently which make the occupation more hazardous than the ever-present risks run by tugboat men.

Several questions are raised by the tolls of recent years. Are the vessels less seaworthy than they should be? Are the men aboard less experienced in the treacherous waters through which they must move? Is the pressure of competition for business likely to make operators take chances that exceed the bounds of prudence? Has the traffic increased to a point where the losses represent a relatively normal percentage among those engaged in the work?

Beyond these questions emerges another of greater importance: What can be done to reduce the dangers encountered by tugboat men?

These are matters which only an inquiry in depth can probe with profitable results, and it should be arranged right away.

Plans for Juveniles?

I know every citizen of the Greater Victoria area is behind the mayor's vow to curb juvenile vandalism. However, perhaps his worship would care to announce what plans he has to provide social and recreational facilities for teenagers in an effort to combat this lawlessness, and also if he would mind enumerating what facilities the city had provided in past years.—A. W. Laidlaw, 3922 Cadboro Bay.

They Were Remembered

The Victoria Branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association would like to thank all those groups and individuals who helped to make the Christmas gift program a success. The fact that we were able to send 920 gifts to hospitals, rest homes and out-patients is evidence of the generosity and interest of the citizens of Greater Victoria. Our heartfelt thanks to all of them. — (Miss) M. Rowles, Chairwoman, Christmas Gift Program.

Your current series on pollution written by Gordon Ritchie is outstanding. The Times deserves the greatest credit for tackling this problem, and Mr. Ritchie the same for doing a really excellent job on it.

FROM DRIFT TO PROFIT

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The Unexpected Triumphs of Mr. Snifkin's Art

Hutchison

THE newspapers in Canada and other countries, have rightly acclaimed the artistic and financial triumph of my neighbor, Mr. Horace Snifkin. But they have got the facts of his masterpiece all wrong. Here, for the first time, with the artists's consent, I can reveal that the Snifkin Centennial Statue, as it is now called all over the world, is not the product of art. It is the product of economics; specifically the inspiration of Dr. John Deutsch, Canada's leading economist.

This may surprise the chairman of the Economic Council. Probably Dr. Deutsch would be surprised to learn that a single Canadian ever read his recent evidence before a committee of Parliament. Mr. Snifkin read it, however, and hit on a passage which instantly changed his life from obscurity to fame, from poverty to affluence.

In a brief, shattering sentence Dr. Deutsch remarked that as the nation's wealth increased one Canadian might spend his higher income on a second automobile for his wife while another might buy a piece of art, a statue for instance. It was not for the Economic Council, said the broad-minded economist, to tell Canadians what they should buy so long as they bought something and kept the economy prosperous.

Do-It-Yourself

Naturally, Mr. Snifkin hid Dr. Deutsch's testimony from Mrs. Snifkin, having no thought of buying her an automobile. Instead, as a patriotic citizen, he decided to acquire a much cheaper statue and install it in an appropriate place to celebrate the nation's hundredth birthday. On second thoughts, it occurred to him that he could save the nation's money, and his own incidentally, if he made the statue himself of native materials.

The newspapers have reported that Mr. Snifkin carved his celebrated work from the root of a giant cedar tree on Vancouver Island. In fact, he hardly carved it at all. The truth is that he found an oddly-shaped hunk of driftwood on the beach near his home and was preparing to cut it for fireplace fuel when the Deutsch Dictum arrested his axe in the nick of time. Here was his centennial tribute already fashioned by nature, weather and the Pacific Ocean's salty tides.

Mr. Snifkin had merely to hack two or three big holes with his chain saw through the wood, in imitation of the abstract style favored by modern sculptors, and his masterpiece was finished. The whole project that soon shook the cultural world hadn't cost Mr. Snifkin a cent.

Dr. Deutsch, a collector of art as well as an economist, saw a photograph of the statue and, deeply impressed, immediately offered to purchase it for a handsome fee, but Mr. Snifkin politely declined. His art, he said, was not for sale. Moreover, he considered Dr. Deutsch's offer quite inadequate. The rest you know from the press.

Standing in Mr. Snifkin's little garden outside Victoria, the massive shaft of driftwood, with its bulbous swellings and its several punctures, attracted admiring crowds and the art critics of the better journals.

When the CBC interviewed Mr. Shifkin on television he modestly disclaimed any special talent, saying only that he had tried to portray his own humble vision of Canada's second century.

Suddenly aware of a new Canadian genius, the centennial committee at Ottawa sent a secret emissary to Mr. Snifkin and doubling Dr. Deutsch's offer, proposed to place the statue in the Parliament Buildings, among the Fathers of Confederation. Mr. Pearson and Mr. Diefenbaker would jointly unveil it as a non-partisan gesture of national unity. Their speech writers prepared extemporaneous speeches for the great occasion.

Fame

But Mr. Snifkin again declined to commercialize his art. By this time he realized that he must be a genius since all the experts said so. Besides, he rather liked the hideous wooden presence on his lawn and enjoyed explaining its inner significance to bus loads of tourists. Every day, to his amazement, he read some new meaning in it. The creation had outgrown the creator.

Alas, this fine frenzy also outgrew and obliterated the Deutsch Dictum. Practical economic science was forgotten. Mrs. Snifkin still owned no automobile and her husband had made no money. As a piece of art the statue was a magnificent success. As an experiment in economics it was a flop and added nothing to the Gross National Product. Dr. Deutsch privately regretted his impulsive advice to Parliament and resolved to be more discreet next time.

But in the end economics prevailed over art, to the relief of the Economic Council. The Snifkin Foundation is now well established. Its revenues pour in from admission fees to the Victoria garden, royalties on miniature plastic replicas of the statue manufactured in Japan, centennial medals with Mr. Snifkin's portrait in bronze and, of course, a generous Canada Council grant. Mrs. Snifkin has her automobile. Mr. Snifkin has a new chainsaw and is working hard on driftwood. The critics eagerly await his next masterpiece. Dr. Deutsch has been vindicated after all.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

THERE has been considerable talk and press coverage regarding the Garry oak, Victoria's own tree.

There are still several places where some fine specimens can be seen and admired. They may encourage people to save them from the axe and chain saw, and perhaps to grow some seedlings.

Beacon Hill Park has some of the finest and oldest. Then along Cedar Hill Road there are several fine clumps. Some are old, with the well-known twisted trunks; others are tall and straight-limbed.

On the old Rithet estate at Royal Oak, now being subdivided, there are some fine stately trees. It is hoped that they will be saved by definite planning and forethought.

Some fine specimens may be found at Metchosin. They dot the landscape and in some places create an old-world setting, especially reminiscent of southern England.

Along Burnside Road are several clumps close by the little shopping centre. More trees are along the roadside and they should be protected, although a little farther west some trees more than a hundred years old were recently felled.

By the dairy farm farther along the road is a very fine clump of young trees that cover at least two city blocks. With the green meadows surrounding them they make an attractive sight, even in the winter when you can see the many-hued lichens covering the limbs and twigs.

In this clump there are several very old stumps and downed trunks that have resisted the elements for many years. The trees will perpetuate themselves if we give thm a chance.

Out at Francis Park there is a fine specimen at the parking lot that has made an excellent shade tree. It is in the open and does not have to fight for space. Now it has taken the shape of an English Oak.

No Confident Forecasts but Mixed Possibilities

Frye

THE extraordinary convulsion within Red China, which now appears to verge on civil war, has perplexed and astonished foreign observers and given rise to anxious concern. A yellow dragon thrashing wildly about can be a peril to anyone within reach — and directly or indirectly, that includes virtually everyone. Vietnam is the area closest at hand. The consensus among China-watchers here, however, is that, for the moment at least, China's preoccupation with her internal power struggle has reduced the danger of intervention.

This does not necessarily free the hands of American and allied armies to escalate the conflict — for example, to invade North Vietnam. In such an event, it is agreed, the Chinese factions could quickly come together.

An immediate, practical effect of the turmoil in China could be, and may already have been, to give North Vietnam greater elbow room with which to respond to peace overtures.

Channels Opened

This could be one explanation for Hanoi's decision to admit American foreign correspondents. An important side effect of this decision, almost certainly intended, is to establish new channels of communication with Washington — channels which can be, and to some limited extent have already bee, used for a long-range peace dialogue.

It does not seem likely that North Vietnam could or would, have opened up even this limited window to the West if Red Chinese influence in Hanoi had been active, pervasive and undiluted. There are no American correspondents in China.

A further major effect of the upheaval in mainland China has been to place in question all previous assumptions about her relations with the Soviet Union.

It is almost literally true that now, anything can happen. At one end of the spectrum of possibilities, there is Sino-Soviet warfare, beginning as border incursions by Red Guard activists. There have been intelligence reports of such incursions.

At the other extreme, it is entirely possible that Mao Tse-tung and his chief aide, Lin Piao, will be overthrown by a faction favoring reconciliation with Moscow. The whole Sino-Soviet split could, as a result, be eased or healed.

No one in the West can deal confidently with a situation in such flux. President Johnson's State of the Union address this past week cautiously held out olive branches to both Moscow and Peking, preserving options for a rapprochement with either capital.

One of the fascinating facets of the problem is that a change in China which would make possible a Sino-Soviet reconciliation might also open up possibilities of a detente between China and the United States.

Some of the same Chinese leaders who oppose the conflict with Moscow are relative moderates who, in earlier years of the Chinese revolution, sought to project an image of reasonableness toward the uncommitted world and who set out, in response to overtures by the then UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, to ease tensions with the United States.

They agreed, for example, to free captive American fliers provided the United States would let its newspaper correspondents visit China. Hammarskjold conveyed this proposal to Washington, and John Foster Dulles rejected it.

It is remotely conceivable that the current strife in China, if it is an incipient civil war, will merge with the older civil war dating from the 1940s, opening up opportunities for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to return to the mainland. Taipeh newspapers have been eagerly speculating on the possibility.

This, however, is the least likely outcome. It seems highly improbable that worker shock troops backing president Liu Shao-chi against Mao Tse-tung would welcome support from the Generalissimo.

Kiss of Death

Any such support would be regarded as an immediate kiss of death. Washington acted quickly this past week to discourage the idea.

What is less inconceivable is that a new regime will emerge in Peking which will come to terms with Taipeh, ending the civil war and ousting American influence from Formosa. This would represent a severe blow to American strategic power in the Pacific.

Nothing is confidently predictable. An immensely potent force has been cut loose from its moorings, and before it comes to rest may modify all calculations about the power-world in which we live.

Never Say Never in Politics

Montreal Gazette

One of the few wise things that Napoleon III ever said was this: "In politics, one should never say 'never.'"

Prime Minister Wilson may have made a mistake in saying that he will never grant legal independence to Rhodesia, until a government with a black majority is ready to take over.

The difficulty with this "never" policy is that Premier Smith of Rhodesia declared his government to be independent more than a year ago. Mr. Wilson's stand would mean that, among other concessions, the Smith regime would have to give up the independence it claimed. And this independence could never be restored until a black majority was able to take over the administration of the country.

This final attitude on Mr. Wilson's part would be more prudent if it were certain that the sanctions imposed on Rhodesia will work. Such sanctions do not appear ever to have worked in the past.

The better hope, if hopes are to be entertained at all, is that negotiations with the white government of Rhodesia will be resumed. But the essential point in such negotiations would be the rate and scale with which the black majority could be admitted into the government. To make the question of Rhodesia's independence a "never" question may only inhibit negotiations toward the more important aim.

By saying "never" Mr. Wilson may have injected an element of rigidity into a situation which may yet need a flexible solution. Some of his friends, as well as his enemies, hope that he will not prove altogether unwilling to eat that word.

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

The turmoil in China is at once an event of great historical importance and a daily news story so obscure as to be almost meaningless.

No one, not even the so-called expert "China watchers," can be certain at this time what is actually taking place.

Partly this is because few Western journalists are inside China and most reports are second-hand, compounded by the difficulty of interpreting events in such a vast, politically primitive nation.

Some facts however did emerge from the week's welter of words:

Most important is the now undeniable revelation that China is not the monolithic Communist state it once was assumed to be.

●

Mao Tse-tung, leader of the revolution and the founder of modern China, no longer holds undisputed sway over his people.

Mao's fall from the pedestal has been caused in part by his advancing age and deteriorating health which created a leadership vacuum, and by a reaction which built up against the excesses of his "cultural purge" in the last few years.

The man believed to have been chosen by Mao as his successor is Defence Minister Lin Piao.

It was apparently Lin who indirectly triggered the present violence by attempting to purge the party of potential rivals and opponents in order to pave the way for his takeover.

He either went too far in his drive or underestimated the strength of his opposition and its willingness to come out in the open to fight.

Much of the Mao-Lin opposition has been centred outside the capital of Peking, particularly in the populous port of Shanghai which was paralyzed for a time by a general strike of workers.

MAO TSE-TUNG
. . . losing his grip

Bloodshed was reported in Nanking and other centres, but for the most part the struggle is confined to a battle of words in posters and wall newspapers.

In the centre of the upheaval is the youthful Red Guard, organized by Mao and Lin to lead the cultural revolution and sweep away the last vestiges of Western influence and bourgeois elements.

Many workers and peasants apparently resented the vehemence of the Red Guard campaign and finally burst out in opposition.

In the early stages of the struggle the army was on the sidelines but it too was drawn in when Lin called for a purge of anti-Mao factions in the military.

The man in the middle appeared to be Premier Chou En-lai who attempted to mediate between the Mao-Lin forces and the opposition which includes such figures as President Liu Shao-Chi, Communist Party secretary-general Teng Hsiao-Ping and Foreign Minister Chen Yi.

Events appear to have moved too far however for a reconciliation and the struggle for power will go on until there is a winner.

Standing on the sidelines, watching all this with relish and hope is the aging Nationalist China leader, Chiang Kai-shek, poised with his army, reputedly 600,000 strong, on the island of Formosa waiting for a chance to return to the Mainland.

Chiang can never make it back without U.S. support, however, and the Americans will be reluctant to become involved in this struggle directly.

Immigration from U.S. Showing Rapid Increase

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — Some interesting statistics have come out lately. Like the drop in the birth rate of nearly eight per cent last year, undoubtedly due to The Pill. And immigration from the United States, which is increasing at a rate of more than 20 per cent a year.

The Great Society is now the third largest source of immigrants, behind only Britain and Italy. About 125,000 Americans emigrated to Canada in the last 10 years. Between 1956 and 1963 their numbers ran 10,000-odd and 11,000-odd a year, but in 1966 the total shot up to about 18,000. If the curve continues, this year there will be close to 22,000, and next year more than 25,000.

The reason isn't easy to pinpoint. Do greater opportunities in Canada outweigh the living standard differential that may be as great as 30 per cent? Or is it, as I suspect, that the government's active program of encouraging immigration from the U.S. is taking hold? In the last few years Canadian immigration offices in New York, Chicago, Denver and San Francisco have been reinforced with personnel and funds to make them more effective in promoting the idea that the field north of the fence is greener.

* * *

We might look upon this development with a sense of great satisfaction that in our 100th year of confederation even the Americans are willing to concede that Canada is here to stay. But then, just as logically, we might take alarm: are the Americans moving in because they expect Canada to crack up, what with Quebec separatism and all, and they want to be in a good position to pick up the pieces?

Where are these refugees from American affluence settling? Well, in 1965, the last year for which complete figures are available, one-third of them came to British Columbia and Alberta — respectively 3,433 and 1,580. That's worth some thought.

Most of the rest came to Ontario. That's worth very little thought.

American immigrants should assimilate readily, for obvious reasons, yet in fact they show no great eagerness to become Canadians. In the five years from 1956 to 1960 a total of 54,216 Americans entered Canada as landed immigrants. They, and those who had come to Canada earlier, would be eligible to apply for Canadian citizenship in the years 1961-65, having completed five years' residence in Canada.

* * *

Yet only 4,870 American immigrants took out Canadian papers between 1961 and 1965.

This suggests that the great majority of American immigrants either have not firmly decided to spend the rest of their lives in Canada, or see no particular advantage in giving up U.S. citizenship when no economic or social penalty attaches to their long term and even lifelong residence in Canada as aliens. They, like Indians, may cross the border at will.

Canada needs these aggressive and hard-working immigrants. That's why the government publicizes Canada in the States as the country of opportunity. If Canada is to achieve Walter Gordon's goal of a population of 50 million despite The Pill, many of the next 30 million are likely to come from the U.S.

By the time we reach 50 million, the U.S. population will be over 500 million, barring catastrophe like nuclear war — and population pressures northward will make last year's 18,000 American immigrants seem but a trickle.

A Ground-Level Virtue In Walking With Crowds

By ART STOTT

For almost 40 years I have appreciated, or come to accept as natural, the various courtesies extended to people in the newspaper business.

The considerations that are shown us are justified. It is the job of newspapermen to report, describe, or interpret the news of the day to the public. To do a job, the newspaperman needs a seat where he can see and hear, requires access to individuals and events not commonly accorded the ordinary citizen. He should be at ringside to be in a position to give as satisfactory an account as possible of what went on to those who couldn't be or weren't present.

Stott

So we're privileged persons by the nature of our occupation. It doesn't hurt, occasionally, though to forego the privileges and approach events as an ordinary member of the public — to get a sort of ground-level view.

Pat and I enjoyed that approach to see the Centennial Train this week. The evening was damp, but the rain had stopped and the temperature was mild when we joined the queue far back of the last coach of the display cars. How many were ahead of us, I don't know, but it took just two hours to reach the entrance, half an hour to pass through the train, looking at the exhibits.

* * *

In my opinion, the displays are excellent, something for which the creators deserve the highest praise. In my opinion also, the arrangements to admit the public left a lot to be desired. The organization that evening did not break down. It just didn't exist. We stood in line and tried to make sense, as the hours passed, of the phrase: "They also serve who only stand and wait."

It seemed to me that time-stamped tickets, distributed in advance, might have reduced the length of the line-up. And maybe, for those who were still queued, it might have been desirable to let some private entrepreneur sell coffee while a few buskers were encouraged to perform.

Directly in front of us stood a father with two very well-behaved and cheerful daughters, one probably about five, one somewhere around 10. They were cheerful, biddable, and only a little cold. Ahead of them was a young couple, the young lady suffering from chilly and uncomfortable feet. Her escort left for an hour or so and returned later with a pair of high boots for her. One of the sparks of merriment arose when she tried desperately to insert her right foot into the left boot, later explaining that she knew which was her right foot, but the boot didn't.

Behind us was a pack of Wolf Cubs, ebullient to the point of distraction. Akela shouted, "Stand in line boys," so some broke ranks. Akela said, "Keep away from those lights"—those outside the cars, illuminating the external panels. So a number of boys dashed away and horsed around the lights. Akela said: "Stop shoving," so I put my elbows out at the back, like a trussed turkey, to take the bumps. Then the old cap-grabbing game started, a couple seizing the green-gold headgear of one youngster and playing keep-away.

It passed the time, until another diversion occurred. Two young gentlemen eased up on the inside of the line from the rear—a sweep around end, I think they call it in Canadian football. Then they oozed gently forward, self-consciously animated in conversation so they wouldn't appear to notice that they were intruding on the places others had patiently held ahead of them.

One part of the queue took defensive action. The young lady with the untutored boots moved in to block off the advance along the side ropes. I shifted on the next play to stand behind her. An Akela followed my block, leaned back, and the Cubs flowed in to the opening. When we finally reached the entrance, with the intruders eight rows back, a police officer politely explained to them that they had usurped the positions of others who had waited longer, and sent the pair back to the foot of the line.

A queue, you learn, has cahracter and personality. On the night in question, I thought it showed an excellent demonstration of Canadianism. It took the punishment of the long wait patiently, combining a wish to see the exhibits with an apparent sense of responsibility to inspect the train's splendid simulation of part of Canada's 100 years story. These were Canadians interested in the beginnings of their country, its present and its future.

In a personal way I was happy to be one of them, admiring their cheerfulness even if waiting in line is something I customarily resent.

Responding to the Davis Case

Yesterday the Times published an account by a noted Roman Catholic priest and theologian, Charles Davis, setting out the reasons why he recently decided to leave the Church. Today an editorial in the National Catholic Review, a widely-circulated American weekly newspaper, examines Mr. Davis' decision and presents a case for the Church in the light of the "renewal" which it believes is taking place.

His Decision Created A 'Personal Shock'

Father Charles Davis must surely have suffered agonies during the time he pondered his decision to leave the Roman Catholic Church.

For many Catholics, and not only in England, responding to the event will be quite as difficult. His books and his other writings created not merely admirers but disciples. Among the competing interpretations of Christianity now current within the Church, his views have seemed to many the most balanced, combining intellectual stimulation and satisfaction with a strong pastoral sense and a careful respect for tradition.

His kind of writing creates a personal relationship with readers which includes an element of dependence as well as respect; his decision therefore creates personal shock.

Ideally, of course, none of us should depend wholly on anyone else as a prop or source of our convictions; but in fact, not only in religion but in all of life, most of us do lean on others and find reassurance in their ability to sort out puzzles and paradoxes that would defeat our own efforts.

In effect, Charles Davis has now repudiated the guidance he has given, and, for a time at least, many are left adrift without compass on deep and troubled waters.

The circumstances of Father Davis' choice do not make the response easier. It has been suggested to us that despite the rules of good taste and common sense which forbid the reading of others' motives, Father Davis' plan to enter marriage cannot be simp;y dismissed as irrelevant in considering his new views of the church.

Father Davis himself said at his press conference that he did not know whether he would have left the Church if he had not planned to marry. Ultimately, however, this line of interpretation is profitless, for it is double-edged. Not only the man who leaves the church but the man who stays is inevitably influenced by his circumstances.

Healthy Thing

In other words, it will be a healthy thing for anyone tempted to explain Father Davis' decision as a mere rationalization to recognize that other Catholic theologians, ordinary priests, editors of Catholic publications and even members of the heirarchy can find support for their convictions — whether consciously or otherwise — in their own circumstances.

Or, to put it plainly, a man who makes his living from religion can be tempted by that circumstance not to face up to challenges he might otherwise acknowledge. This does not mean that the sincerity of every "professional" in religion must be systematically discounted; it does suggest that there is little to be gained from examining others' consciences instead of their arguments.

It follows that Father Davis' stated reasons for his decision must be taken at something like their face value. And the event itself must be evaluated as a phenomenon of this era in the history of the church.

Charles Davis' discovery that he is no longer a Catholic is the discovery of a council expert, the author of Liturgy and Doctrine, the editor of a respected professional journal. Some effort must be made to penetrate the meaning of such an event.

One observation that occurs to us immediately is that wherever there are gains there will be losses. Much of what has been taking place in the church in our time is best described as a process of purification; and what is being purified, most importantly, is religious faith itself. It was once our fashion to think that the "science" of apologetics reached its conclusions by unassailable Euclidean processes, so that the man who followed its arguments yet withheld his assent might justly be suspected of "bad faith."

Proper Role

Today, apologetics has been put into its proper role, which is a humble and mainly defensive one. Once we thought the mere antiquity of the church an all-but-sufficient proof of its claims, but now we measure the life of the church by a different time scale, and we examine the continuity of that life more critically.

Only a generation ago we spoke enviously of the medieval era as the Age of Faith; in recent years we have come to see that the quality of Christian faith suffered from its very pervasiveness — that a faith which is automatic, inherited, culturally and socially supported to the point of being imposed is not thereby strengthened but diluted.

One result of these and related trends of thought is a climate in which organized religion itself increasingly emphasizes the element of conscious personal choice in religious matters.

Not all the choices are informed, reasonable or responsible. People reject religion for whimsical or trivial reasons; they invent their own creeds and adjust them to suit their desires; they become arbitrarily selective in their response to Church authority; or they may simply ignore any communal religious responsibility.

These contemporary religious phenomena — subjectivism, eclecticism, individualism — are the deplorable, but inevitable and necessary, costs of accepting the situation in which (as religion teaches) God has placed each human person: we must make our own choices.

In such a climate even a Charles Davis — a man learned and devout, accustomed to discipline, strongly conscious of community and tradition — may choose finally to reject his inheritance; and no Catholic may pass final judgment on his act. His departure must be counted a great loss to the Church; we still regard as a great and more important gain the growth in our time of the conditions and attitudes which fostered his internal freedom to choose.

Notice second, the reasons Charles Davis gave for his decision. As others have observed, no one could begin to "answer" at less than book length his conclusion that there is no adequate biblical and historical basis for the claims of the institutional Church; and very few Catholics are equipped to enter into dispute on such a field with the likes of Charles Davis.

An Obstacle

In any case, in his statement Father Davis did not give first place to this argument. He decided to leave the Church, he said, because he has come to see it as an obstacle in the lives of committed Christians; because it puts authority over truth; because he finds himself "constantly saddened by instances of the damage done to persons by the workings of an unfree and impersonal system."

In a generally perceptive and admirably honest editorial, America magazine paraphrased this charge by acknowledging that many Catholics have in fact been victims of the Church, wounded by "the institution, the establishment, the bureaucracy, the system, the machinery, the impersonal forces — forces that are at work in every human institution, but assume in the Church a tragic and even a demonic character by the very fact of the holiness they disfigure, the light they dim."

But America's editorial — at least in the incomplete version available at press time — partly misses the point of Father Davis' stand by appearing to suggest that it springs from personal hurt. The editorial contrasts his decision with that of Father Teilhard de Chardin and others who, despite harsh and unjust treatment, continued to revere the Church as their mother.

But in his statement Father Davis did not complain of being wounded by the Church, and in his press conference he specifically disavowed any such assertion.

His charges are more serious: that the Church is fundamentally irrelevant to the fostering of Christian life; and that it characteristically sacrifices both truth and personal rights for the sake of its own institutional interest, for the preservation of authority. Once these charges are grasped, it is no longer possible to answer them in merely personal terms.

Pragmatic Test

It could be said instead that to determine the authenticity of the Church's claims, Father Davis is applying a merely human and pragmatic test, one which is infinitely flexible and radically subjective. For one man's relevancy is another's betrayal; and what I may judge to be injustice to a person may appear to you to be a justified defence of the rights of the community.

But while a rebuttal which takes this form may be intellectually satisfying to some, it will not prevail alone. Not only is the test of performance wholly congenial to the modern temper, but Christ Himself gave sanction to it: "You will know them by their fruits" (Matt. 7:16). Even among its own sons — at least among those most truly aware of the world's agony — proof-texts pointing to the divine establishment of the Church will not cancel out the kind of evidence to which Charles Davis points.

To say this is not to say that Father Davis has established his case and justified his decision. It means only that the criteria he brings to the judgment are at least partially admissible, that this kind of case must be given a hearing.

Yet, in the light of all that is happening in the Church, we find his decision not only saddening but wrong, wrong to the point of being inexplicable. For he has chosen to leave precisely at the moment when the validity and pertinence of the standards by which he judges the Church are more and more widely acknowledged, a time when it becomes more and more difficult to defend the abuses he condemns, more and more possible to contend effectively for the values he upholds.

Reason for Hope

No one, of course, can stand in his place and see with his eyes. But the work he sees as needing to be done is now launched and there is far more reason for hope than for despair. It is most saddening, as America says, that the Church which has wounded him is now itself wounded "by his very going, by the enlightened word that he will not be speaking in it, by the healing and hallowing gestures that his priestly hands will not be forming in it."

And, finally, the Charles Davis who spoke in London last week has not yet answered, and will be hard put to answer, the Charles Davis who has spoken before of the Church as community, of its "necessary function . . . as a visible community in mediating Christian faith."

Existing in history as it must, embodied in self-seeking, weak and fallible men and women, the community which is the Church will always suffer from the falts of its members, just as the Apostolic College suffered from the weakness of Peter and the betrayal of Judas. The narrowness, complacency, group egotism of the community must be fought; but the community was willed by Christ.

THE GALLUP POLL

Canadians Are Negative In Political Attitudes

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

When Canadians are asked to explain why they think one political party serves them better than another, their answers are more negative than positive. They make their choices not because one party is better than the others but because it is not as bad as the others.

About a quarter of the electorate (24%) choose the Liberal party as "best for people like themselves." The reasons mentioned for this choice are:

1—Better program than other parties, less radical, better for old age pensioners; 2—better in power than Conservatives; 3—less unemployment, better times; 4—lesser of three evils; 5—greater experience, stable government.

From the 15% who selected the Conservative party as "best for self" came these reasons:

1—Best for the people of this country; 2—honest, reliable more stable, kept pension promises; 3—more for farmers; 4—accomplished more in power; 5—cost of living would not be so high.

The NDP was chosen by 17% of the voters as best for them and chief reasons were:

1—Best for working man; 2—should be given a chance, a refreshing change; 3—good ideas for average people, first to advocate welfare measures; 4—trained to govern socialistic state, better leaders; 5—have made less mistakes than other parties.

MISTRAL: GUST TO GALE IN 30 SCARY MINUTES

By JOHN MANNING

This is the ninth in a series by former Times reporter John Manning who is on a 12,000-mile cruise to Victoria.

Sete, France, is one exit used by yachtsmen from the canals of that country into the Mediterranean. It is a sea port blessed with narrow streetways, fishermen, superb ice cream and local winds called mistrals that are as hospitable to a sailing vessel as an atomic explosion.

"You've got to be very careful!" an American yachtsman told us. "These mistrals get up in the wink of an eye and can gust up over a hundred miles an hour."

"Do you see that weather station?" He pointed towards a white building. "They've got a flagpole to the left of it. Now look at the signal they have hoisted, a white cone. It means they're expecting a mistral. I wouldn't leave this harbor now, not even if they told me it would be the last wind we'd get for twenty years!"

●

An hour later the air grew still and an old fisherman, who had been mending his net on the quay, put down his tools and began rolling up the net. He was too late.

A charge of wind came down over the rooftops like a bomb falling, and blew dust, paper bags and the old man's hat into the harbor. Within thirty minutes this initial gust had accelerated to gale force, pummelling our boat like a boxer punching a bag. Down below we sat like mice, listening to our American friend expound on Mediterranean weather.

"We've been here for ten days now," he said, "waiting to head South for Spain, but each time we put to sea another mistral comes up. I don't relish being blown offshore on this coast. The next land is Africa, unless you can manage to get into the Balearic Islands."

"We were planning to head straight across to Majorca."

"I wouldn't advise it. It's not worth the risk. I've heard that boats have left here taking that offshore route and never been seen again."

●

"Oh," said my wife.

"Well, we can keep within sight of land until we're out of this area and then head across to Majorca."

"No. You should stay within two to three hundred yards off the shore. Then, since the mistral blows off shore you might have a chance to get an anchor down, or put into some port." He paused. The wind gave our rigging an extra kick and the resulting wail lent import to his words.

"On the way up here we were caught off the Bay of Roses. It was a month ago. We managed to slip into a little rock hole, set out three anchors, put another line around a tree and had the dinghy windmilling astern of us like a propeller. It was the worst night I've ever spent."

This was not at all encouraging. My wife and I had just spent an idyllic six weeks traversing France by way of rivers and canals from Le Havre to the Mediterranean. We had grown soft in the sun and in the continual bliss of still nights by canal banks, where one 'reached port' by tying up to the nearest tree.

●

Now, the thought of standing watches, of pounding through high seas off an unfamiliar coast, of going forward to claw in sail on a dark night, did not inspire enthusiasm.

"You've got the willys!" grinned the Mate, after our adviser had gone ashore.

"It's these mistrals."

"Powindah's going to take us across the Atlantic," she quietly replied. "I think she could manage offshore in the Med. Besides, it will give us a better sail and Powindah is rarin' to go."

Her spirit activated the skipper. The next morning the wind had eased off to a gentle force four and we put to sea under a press of working canvas: jib, stays'l, main, and mizzen. Our American friend bid us a dubious farewell.

We set the tops'l. The boat felt stiff, out of training; canal life had softened her as well as the crew. The wind came to us like an imperious woman redolent with land scent, sweeping the startling blue sea with her warmth. We stood out to sea, our hearts in our throats.

The mistral spared us. The night passed quietly. With the arrival of dawn the wind vanished and we took recourse to the engine. In this fashion we passed clear of the Gulf of Lions, and across the Bay of Roses to our first Spanish landfall.

Mexican 'Volcano' Can Blow Your Top

By FRED W. KLINE

In Mexico, the range of drinks is as varied and dramatic as the scenery.

The frosty, salt-rimmed Margarita, a combination of tequila, Cointreau and lime juice, resembles the snow-covered volcanoes outside Mexico City. And its effects can be as explosive.

The Colo-Loco of Acapulco and Puerto Vallarta comes to the table in a green coconut that's milk has been liberally laced with gin and chilled with crushed ice.

The Pie-Eye, of pineapple, rum and ice, is a favorite of tourists. Bertas, Mexican Tom Collins, are concocted of tequila, honey, lime juice, and carbonated water.

The true native drink is pulque, the fermented juice of the maguey plant, know long before the conquistadores arrived. Though it is rarely tasted by tourists, it has been the drink of Mexico's working class for generations.

The beers of Mexico are wonderful pilsners created by German brewmasters who went to Mexico in the late 18th century at the invitation of local tycoons and landowners then merging in industrial Monterrey.

Hancock, Franklin, Jefferson And an Ivory 'Honesty Button'

By ELIZABETH FORBES

At Knott's Berry Farm and Ghost Town in California there is now an exact replica of Philadelphia's Independence Hall, where the United States of America was born.

And whether you claim allegiance to the Stars and Stripes or not, it's a challenging experience to visit this hall — as I did recently — and through the miracle of modern electronics to imagine you are hearing the actual debates leading up to the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

This tremendous achievement is the life dream of Walter Knott, the man who parlayed a roadside berry stand, started 47 years ago, into the mammoth tourist attraction it is today.

'Dream Realized'

When the hall was dedicated and opened to the public last July 4, Mr. Knott, who is now in his 76th year, said "At last my dream is realized. I can only hope that people who visit this building will go away with a true appreciation of what happened in that chamber so many, many years ago."

To make this wish come true, he and his family have left nothing to chance. Everything has been done to draw these important events back through the mists of time and to present them in the light of the present.

The experience starts in a companion building named Heritage Hall, that houses a colonial research library where source material from 1600 to 1800 may be studied at any time.

Here you are met by young ladies dressed in colonial costumes who usher you into a small aditorium to see a film that tells of man's struggle for freedom and independence through the ages.

From there you walk a short distance to the main entrance to Independence Hall and the Tower Room where there is an authentic reproduction of the great Liberty Bell that announced the signing of the Declaration of Independence to Philadelphia citizens in July, 1776.

It is in the Tower Room too that you are shown an unusually designed stairway and told about a one-inch ivory button set into the top of the newel post that is the main support for a handrail as it forms into a sweeping curve at the bottom of the stairs.

'Honesty Button'

This is an "honesty button" used in buildings of the colonial period. It was never placed in a newel post until the building was completed and paid for.

Some stories say that the number of grooves in these buttons told of the number of payments made. Others record that in Independence Hall, delegates made a point of touching the honesty button before entering the Assembly Chamber.

It was this Chamber, where the fiery debates which preceded the actual signing of the Declaration took place, that we entered next.

The room, reproduced as it was nearly 300 years ago, is crowded with 15 tables and chairs, one for each of the 13 colonies, one for the Speaker and one for the Secretary.

Kept Legs Warm

Each table is covered with a green felt cloth which we were told served as a suitable writing surface in those far-away days, kept the delegates' legs warm in winter and protected them from flies in summer.

A tall candle stands on each table to point up the fact that while most sessions closed before dark, if a night sitting was called, candles had to be brought in.

Now comes the most unique experience of the visit. For it is in this Assembly Room that you hear the delegates argue for and against a Declaration of Indepenence.

The ceiling lights dim, the candles flare into a soft glow that casts shadows on the green felt of the tables. And through an elaborate electronic sound system that utilizes a 14-channel magnetic tape, voices of actors well trained for their roles, come to you strong and clear.

Thirty-eight loud speakers, strategically placed, create the feeling that the men who lived and breathed and talked back in the 1770s are actually in the room.

No living person appears during the presentation. Yet, through the expert rendition there is an uncanny sensation that men are getting up, walking about and then as they conclude their speeching, coming back to their tables and sitting down.

Your Head Turns

So real is this illusion that as the voices ring out you find your head turning from place to place to follow these imaginary figures.

John Hancock is there in the Speaker's chair. You hear Benjamin Franklin chuckle and you smile at his dry humor. Thomas Jefferson speaks, also James Adams, George Ross with his rich Scottish accent, the two Lees and a number of others.

There are sound effects too, that make the scene even more real. A horse and wagon rattling over cobblestone streets beyond the windows and a fife and drum corps of the revolutionary army.

As the debate progresses you feel the urgency of the struggle in the minds of the delegates and you admire the ones who fought so determinedly for the declaration. At the same time, you understand the reasoning of those who spoke out against it.

When the decision is finally made the unanimously accepted with loud shouts and table thumpings and the candles dim and go out, it almost seems that in some way you have gone back in time and have actually participated in this historic gathering.

It's something of an anti-climax to come out of that Assembly Room and into the strong light of the Supreme Court Room, just across the hall.

However once the adjustment is made, there is much to be seen there, including the Betsy Ross flag of colonial days and an original copy of the Declaration of Independence, presented to Mr. Knott by direct descendants of George Ross.

And if you happen to be a direct descendant of one of the signers there is also a special register in this room, reserved for your name.

Controls Seen On Expo Rates

MONTREAL (CP)—A spokesman for Logexpo, Expo 67's accommodation bureau, says that proposed rates for the period of the world's fair submitted by hotels to the provincial authorities last June are being revised.

The revision is the first effect of the Expo 67 Lodging Price Control bill, which is expected to become law later this month.

The bill lays down maximum charges which may be made by hoteliers and other accommodation operators.

People Signed Death Warrant

By GORDON RITCHIE

The pollution of British Columbia's air and water is a major threat facing the province in the century ahead. The Times assigned reporter Gordon Ritchie to examine the many aspects of the problem in British Columbia and elsewhere. Here is his final report.

The tragedy of British Columbia had a happy beginning in a lush wilderness valley nestled among the snow-capped peaks of a majestic mountain range.

It opened with a merry chortle from the cold, clear waters of an icy mountain brook as they tumbled headlong out of the azure lake that vainly tried to trap them in its fathomless depths.

Freed at last they babbled gaily as they sped on their long pilgrimage to the Pacific, gulping lifegiving oxygen with every whorl and gurgle.

Past friendly eddies where speckled trout reveled in the purity of the sparkling waters. Past a shallow ford where a deer pranced gingerly down to the water's edge to lap its fill of the mountain elixir.

River's Song

The swift-flowing stream was swollen now with pride as tiny tributaries merged to add their voices to the river's song.

Their joyful chorus drowned out the discordant warning note sounded by the rusting oily barrel wedged among the rocks of the river bottom. Impatient to reach the sea they paid no heed as they swept away the deep brown stain of a creek discolored as it passed beneath a nearby black-top highway.

They blissfully ignored the gaping mouth of the abandoned water-intake pipe which years before had sucked in drinking water for a distant city, until an outbreak of infection was traced to the man-polluted river.

The river's voice was stilled now as it made its sluggish way past the roaring tunnel that daily bled off 50 million precious gallons of its deep green waters to feed the giant pulp mill that blanketed the sky ahead with a grey-brown pall of chemical smoke.

Grey Sludge

Around the bend the green river water took on a deep greyish turbulent hue as the borrowed water was flushed back a coffee color, laden with dissolved toxic chemicals and tons of tiny wood-fibres sinking slowly to the bottom to coat the river bed with a thick oxygen-devouring grey sludge.

As a finger of the sea reached up a long fiord to welcome it, the river seemed to hang back in shame and its hesitant tainted eddies were at once further fouled with the raw sewage from two nearby cities.

The turbid discolored waters, once the staff of life for all the river basin's grateful inhabitants and now unfit for any but the least demanding industrial uses, had run their course and waited in humiliation for the merciful tides to bear them off to Pacific oblivion.

This is truly the tragedy of British Columbia:

That man, the highest product and richest beneficiary of nature's infinitely complicated and painfully evolved balance, should use his tremendous powers blindly to impair that very balance on which his survival and the survival of his planet so delicately hinges.

Destruction

That a province bountifully blessed with nature's most precious life-sustaining resources should concentrate man's centuries of accumulated wisdom not on the jealous preservation of those resources but on their destruction.

For as we have seen there are rivers throughout this province whose fate at the hands of man is reflected in whole or in part in this story of one river and one record of senseless despoilation.

Cities and towns and villages, industries large and small, thoughtlessly depreciating the quality of, if not actually imperilling, the lives of the province's citizens.

No cold-blooded calculation of the necessary evils of rapid progress lies behind these potentially suicidal actions.

Pollution is the ominous consequence of man's lack of foresight and responsibility.

We have carefully probed the noisiest controversy of last year—Buttle Lake—only to discover the real issues were shortsightedly ignored.

Not nonexistent immediate human health hazards but long-run biological consequences support the argument against allowing a copper mine to dump its tailings into an unpolluted lake in a provincial park.

We also have carefully studied the situation of the Alberni Valley in the grip of heavy industrial pollution of both air and water.

Not the Worst

But Alberni was not chosen as the worst example of industrial pollution in the province. It was chosen as the most typical. An example of pulp mill pollution, the major source of air and water pollution in the province.

The waters used by many other industrial operations are more heavily polluted than the turbid oxygen-starved waters of the Alberni Inlet.

And two decades ago the pulp mill at the head of the inlet went to considerable and expensive lengths to meet all foreseen immediate dangers — went further than many other mills and other industries in the province.

But all dangers were not foreseen.

Critical

So today the inlet is in critical condition.

No industry in the province has spent more in recent years than the Alberni mill to alleviate the pollution it produces.

But the mill was built at a time when shortsighted men saw little harm in a little smoke.

When the mill was built cancer was just starting to loom as a threat and the link between bronchitis and air pollution was still unforeseen.

So today this multi-million dollar industry finds itself located in an impossible position, poisoning the air its workers breathe.

We have carefully looked at the situation in Victoria where 175,000 residents discharge raw sewage on to what have now become the most-polluted beaches in B.C.

Victoria is not the only city in the province to fail to treat its sewage. Only two out of five municipalities take this elementary precaution, only one out of four large municipalities.

Paying Penalty

The residents of Greater Vancouver who have started toward a comprehensive $44 million treatment system are still paying the penalty for their years of polluting their surrounding waters.

And Victoria's pollution while more obvious is much less dangerous than the raw sewage discharged into inland rivers by cities such as Nelson.

When Greater Victoria's sewers were first installed — some 70 years ago — they seemed adequate.

Victorians were not alone in failing to foresee the revolting and potentially dangerous results of the discharge of thousands of tons of raw sewage into waters just off her shores.

They were not alone in failing to foresee the social changes that would free so many to seek recreation on beaches once dismissed as too cold for swimming.

And they were not alone in having to pay a heavy cost for their lack of foresight.

The Greeks had a goddess called Nemesis — the goddess of retribution.

Her duty was to wreak vengeance upon mortals who had angered the gods with their unseemly short-sighted pride.

Total Neglect

Wallowing in self-admiration at our present prosperity — based on blind technology and preoccupation with short-run dollars-and-cents advantage — we persist in total neglect of unimaginably serious long-run dangers.

"This perhaps is the ultimate value of biology," a world-famous scientist once said. "That it can restore to us a needed humility which, in the arrogance of our accomplishments we have tended to lose."

But our failure to heed this warning has led another biologist to cry: "Man is the only animal ever known to set out deliberately and skilfully to poison himself."

Every citizen in every municipality and every occupation in B.C. has played a role in the rapidly-unfolding tragedy with which this province is faced.

As we enter the last act the only question that remains is whether we will continue to play out the roles in which we have been content.

If we do Canada quite simply will not celebrate another centennial. Before we reach the end of the next century man's burning of fossil fuels alone will have raised the temperature of the atmosphere by more than 20 degrees.

We cannot survive that rapid change.

Will we permit the curtain now hanging like the sword of Damocles over mankind's head to ring down the last act without a murmur of protest?

And await the appearance of the tragic clown to read the mournful epilogue penned years ago by a disillusioned humanitarian, Dr. Albert Schweitzer:

"Man has lost the capacity to foresee and to forestall.

"He will end by destroying the earth."

WORTHAM

Black Market Money Dealer Sets Appeal

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Buel Ray Wortham, young American tourist given a three-year sentence on currency and theft charges, was freed on bail today from a Leningrad prison.

The U.S. embassy said the 25-year-old former army officer, from North Little Rock, Ark., would remain free on bail until the Russian Supreme Court hears his appeal against the sentence, at the end of this month or early in February.

He was released by the Leningrad city court on bail of 20,000 rubles ($22,222) collected in a public subscription by citizens of his home town.

Wortham was sentenced to three years in a labor camp Dec. 21 after pleading guilty to changing money on the black market, and stealing a statue of a bear from a Leningrad hotel.

The embassy said Wortham and Harlan Moen, U.S. consular officer, who attended the bail hearing, would arrive by train in Moscow Sunday morning, and Wortham would stay in the embassy until the Supreme Court meets to consider his appeal.

THAT'S THE LAW—MURPHY STYLE

If It Shouldn't Happen, It Will

By GERARD McNEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Murphy's Law is plaguing centennial planners.

The law, simply stated, is that if anything can go wrong, it will.

A series of silent screens, foam rubber cakes and glaring gaffes in the last two weeks presages a year of Murphy Madness.

Centennial officials have tried to plan for every eventuality but this is just asking for it.

BANNER BOOB

The spelling was pure Murphy.

However, no one tuned in the crowd that showed up on Parliament Hill.

They saw the Queen on a silent screen and anyone more than a couple of yards away couldn't hear Mr. Pearson.

It turned out to be the toughest place in Canada to get a drink on New Year's Eve.

WHERE'S THE BAR?

One wicket was set aside for the sale of bar tickets.

That meant 1,500 people had to stand in line if they wanted a drink, which was served at a couple of other wickets.

Those who got one found they couldn't take it into the dancing area. That didn't matter much because the sound system kept failing and with it, the music.

THE PLAY'S THE THING

Then there was the Centennial Play, product of a committee of five authors commissioned by the federal centennial commission.

The one part critics enjoyed most upset the author responsible.

Robertson Davies' scene in a 1912 Ontario classroom had them laughing. It featured a 15-foot Union Jack, a satirical glorification of the Empire and an hilarious connection between hygiene and the evils of liquor.

The miffed playwright said he meant the scene to be gentle rather than satirical.

That's Murphy's Law.

FOCUS

By BRAD NUGENT

As if the Expo '67 didn't have enough headaches with just under four months to go before the opening, it is now involved in a hot argument over a theme song which, weeks after it was announced as the winner in an international competition, looks like it's going nowhere.

Worse, complaints are exploding all over the place from those who didn't win and many who had no part in the competition, that the winner was chosen under circumstances that demand an explanation.

Problem can be traced to the fact that the contest, which was said to have drawn 2,100 entries was actually run by a Montreal song-and-record publishing and promotion outfit.

Originally Expo officials said they wanted a song that would do for the Expo what Meet Me In St. Louis did for the fair in that city.

As it turned out, however, the winning number was something called Hey Friend, Say Friend by a 25-year-old Montrealer, Stephone Venne, with nary a mention of Expo, Montreal, Canada or the Centennial in the lyrics.

Venne, a composer with a so-far negligible reputation, says he had to decide whether to make the song a plug for Expo or a musical composition, and he decided on the latter because he felt since Expo isn't a commercial exhibition, a commercial song wasn't needed.

But, how did Venne's ditty come out on top when the rules called for some mention of Expo or Montreal in the lyrics? (In fact, Rule 5 said, "The song must reflect the general climate of Expo" — which is a pretty tough thing to pin down.)

It also turns out that Expo, not the Montreal publishing company was supposed to promote and distribute the song whereas the rules stated that the publishing company agrees to publish the song in all countries.

All of which, it now develops is much ado. Because Hey Friend, Say Friend just doesn't appear to have the appeal that would trigger the interests of publishers or deejays even in Canada, let alone other countries such as the U.S.

And as one Expo executive paraphrased a popular standard, "Without a song, we probably would have been much better off."

Follets Tell It Brightly

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Les Feux-Follets raised the curtain on the centennial program of Festival Canada here Thursday night and the Montreal folk troupe drew a standing ovation from the capacity audience.

The 65-member ensemble traced the history of Canada through dance and song from the time of the Plains Indians to the 1967 discotheque. It was the premiere performance of the centennial production directed by Michael Cartier.

65 CITIES

Watching the first of the performances which will be staged in 65 cities in all provinces was Secretary of State Judy LaMarsh and other federal, provincial and municipal officials.

* * *

Les Feux-Follets appears in Victoria at McPherson Playhouse Saturday, Feb. 4 at 2:30 and 8:30 p.m., sponsored jointly by Hudson's Bay Company and the B.C. Centennial Committee.

* * *

Miss La Marsh told the audience that if Canadians are to build a stronger nation, they must learn more of the various cultural traditions that make up Canada.

"What better source of enlightenment than this fabled company which has developed such an impressive repertoire of our ethnic heritage?" she asked.

The authentically - costumed dancers portrayed, in a swirl of color and unusual rhythms, a betrothal ceremony of the Plains Indians, the Klondike gold rush days, and the flapper and jitterbug era before moving into the present decade.

ACTS CONTRAST

Rituals of the West Coast Indians, performed with carved masks and elaborate costumes, contrasted sharply with the lone piper in the next scene playing the Skye boat song and a comic French-Canadian dance step.

Square dances, Scottish reels, an Indian hoop dance with flaming hoops, Acadian cotillions and dances of European settlers were all woven into the nutshell view of Canada's culture.

Les Feux-Follets is one of a dozen top companies on tour in the next 12 months, supported by $1,500,000 in grants, as part of Festival Canada.

The Festival Canada agency pays travel costs and has an arrangement with the provinces to subsidize box office receipts to keep prices of tickets down.

Among the other companies going on tour are Don Messer and his Islanders, Vancouver's Holiday Theatre and British Columbia's Barkerville gold rush days variety show.

"The Rio Grande, down Mexico Way, got Canadian weather last weekend (5 degress above zero) and Victoria enjoyed 50 degrees above," said the man in the blue suit.

"We should broaden this exchange," said his lunch companion in IMPERIAL dining room, the man in the brown suit. "We could ship them slickers in exchange for sombreros, our rock 'n' roll for Tiajuana Brass, our frigid Oak Bay water for some tepid waves from Acapulco, our salmon fishing for their . . ."

Blue Suit roared, "Stop right there. There's no swordfish to compare with a game silvery B.C. spring bucking on a light line; nothing anywhere carries the thrill of a bent-nosed coho choking down a bucktail . . ." He went on and on and on.

He didn't know that he'd just taken the hook himself. Brown suit had ordered for them in advance, Spring Salmon en Papillote, boned whole, stuffed with mushroom dressing, baked in individual servings. He knows there's nothing like it.

And IMPERIAL congratulations this week to Mrs. M. L. Greene, re-elected president of Rotary-Anns; to Arthur Cooke on retirement after 47 years with the A-G's department, and to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Tod who have marked a golden wedding anniversary.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE!

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Sympathy, dismay, anger, antagonism, curiosity, puzzlement—to have any or several of these reactions to the play The Potter's Field will satisfy its author, Louis Capson, and its director, Carl Hare.

The original full-length drama will be performed by University of Victoria Players Club in the Phoenix Theatre Jan. 24-28 and Jan. 31-Feb. 4.

Louis Capson worked with Mr. Hare by mail on revisions and polishing of his script. But once rehearsals actually started it soon became more than the author could endure to be 2,000-odd crow miles away from the action.

So he reached an understanding with a sympathetic Yale dean, took to the air and may be seen prowling the precincts of the Phoenix for the next two weeks, enjoying the heady anguish of watching his first long play come to life.

Up to now he has found none of the frustrations and despairs which are said to be the common lot of playwrights during production.

He knows the revisions and cuts have greatly strengthened the script and that the director's, and designer Pat Scott's concepts have illumined it.

"The exciting thing is that the play speaks to the actors," Mr. Hare says. "The students have become totally involved."

Louis is grateful for Mr. Hare's confidence in him and his courage in taking on the challenge of . . . "a play that was like raw, wet clay, just potential images, ideas, thoughts."

The Potter's Field is both tragedy and in a certain wry manner and from some points of view, comedy—as anything that attempts a sincere expression of the human condition is bound to turn out.

It fits into no prefabricated mold but has an important theme which the author crystalizes as 'the betrayal of one's commitment.'"

While writing the play, Louis "turned himself on" in all sorts of ways—with music, in crowds, in solitude. Many things work for him.

Not Overwhelmed By Yale

He likes being surrounded by people, wrote one of his most successful scenes with people coming and going all about him.

He says creating the play caused him much mental stretching and expanding. Mr. Hare feels it is doing the same thing for the actors and they both hope their audience will share the experience.

So far Louis is not exactly overwhelmed by Yale. He feels that some of the values in the Drama School are shallow, even, he says frankly, without artistic integrity.

Louis Capson impresses one as a seeker who is destined to collect many things of real worth but who will always be aware that there is no end to discovery.

His home and family are in New Brunswick but a chance meeting decided him to come to Victoria to attend university. Another spot decision in his first year caused him to take theatre 200 as part of his Arts course.

What after Yale? He's not sure except that there will be no more institutions for a while.

But no doubt he will turn another corner and make a fresh and firm commitment before these next three years are up. To the theatre, of course.

(See Sounding Board column above.)

Time Running Out For Festival Entry

With three weeks left before deadline, time is running out for Greater Victoria Music Festival aspirants.

Saturday, Feb. 4, is the final day for entries. These can be mailed or delivered to the festival office at Western Music Co., 820 Fort Street, up to midnight on that date.

There is provision for late entry fee but under this year's special circumstances, several classes may be loaded before the final day.

Major cash prizes to a total value of $11,000 will be available to those reaching the National level.

Local winners in senior piano, strings, woodwind or brass, vocal solo classes and choirs, junior classes of the same categories (except vocal) and performers of Canadian compositions may be eligible to proceed to the provincial finals in May and June.

Trophies and prizes will be awarded at this level.

However, only winners in the four senior solo classes and one choir from each province—on recommendation from a special team of adjudicators—will advance to the National Final Competitions to be held in New Brunswick in July.

Priestman Named To Lead National Youth Orchestra

Brian Priestman, conductor of the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra, has been appointed conductor for 1967 sessions of Canada's famed National Youth Orchestra.

Auditions for Eastern Canadian applicants have already been completed and Western auditions began in Regina this month.

Mr. Priestman will be in Victoria Feb. 1. He will conduct auditions at the School of Music from 6 to 8 p.m.

There have been more than 250 applications to audition this year, including the first applicant from the North West Territories.

In the last two years Victoria has had the highest per capita representation in the orchestra of any city in Canada.

He's One Of Best In World

A 36-year-old man, whom Robin Wood describes as one of the finest viola players in the world today, spent several hours in the Victoria School of Music auditorium one recent Saturday.

He was listening to a dozen or so young city musicians, some of whom were to be given their first chance to perform as concerto artists with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

True, he was one of a panel of three judges but as he was also to conduct the concert in question, the other two — Mrs. Jay Durand and Mr. Wood — allowed the decisions to rest with him.

Simon Streatfeild has appeared briefly with the Victoria Symphony this season, as first desk violist.

In Vancouver, where he has lived a little over a year, he follows a busy schedule, reaching toward fulfilment of his chief ambition — to conduct.

Trained at the Royal College of Music in London, Mr. Streatfeild became a member of the viola section of the London Philharmonic before he was 20.

Three years later, In 1953, he became principal viola in the Sadlers Wells Orchestra and in 1956 was appointed principal viola of the London Philharmonic. He held this position for nine years until coming to Canada in October, 1965.

TRAVELLED

While he was with the London Philharmonic, he visited many countries, appeared at major European festivals and worked with the world's leading conductors.

His interest in conducting grew as his knowledge of orchestral technique and repertoire deepened and he studied extensively with a conducting career ever uppermost in his mind.

Conducting opportunities were open to him in increasing numbers as the years went on, but more and more the extremely heavy schedule of the London Symphony stood between Simon Streatfeild and his goal.

RESIGNED

He finally realized he would never find the time necessary to his development as a conductor while he was first violist of such an orchestra. He resigned and came to a new world where beginnings were being made and where the pressure was less intense.

He deliberately chose a spot on the North American continent where the symphony season was only 22 weeks long, providing him with more free time for conducting assignments.

At the moment, in addition to being first violist with the Vancouver Symphony, Mr. Streatfeild is conductor of the Vancouver Youth Orchestra, Senior Division and conductor and musical director of the Jewish Community Orchestra.

He has also conducted on several occasions for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Mr. Streatfeild will conduct his first concert in Victoria, Thursday, Jan. 26. This will be the first occasion Victoria Symphony Orchestra has featured student soloists.

The fact that there are nine soloists on one program does not mean an endurance record for listening.

Three of the pianists, Jocelyn Abbott, Mary Chard and Diane Crowther, are grouped in a triple concerto. Most of the others—Ian Franklin, Barbara Ann Court, Corinne Dunn, Linn Hendry, Trudi Conrad and Cheryl Borris, are playing one or two movements only.

Besides the concertos, Mr. Streatfeild will conduct the orchestra in two overtures, Mozart's Marriage of Figaro and Cimarosa's The Secret Marriage.

Hopes are high that if there is interest and support for this concert the event will be repeated in coming seasons, perhaps become a tradition.

Styles Win Established

Mini-skirts have made news, all right, but they haven't revolutionized the fashion habits of American women in general—at least, not yet.

"That's how it is, too, with fashion in home furnishings," declared interior designer Mary Ann Wills, commenting on the succession of style trends that make headlines year after year.

"Few homemakers would consider replacing all their furniture, just to make their living rooms conform to the latest 'look.' And even those who happen to be furnishing new homes this year may think twice before buying whatever is declared 'in' for 1967. The majority will probably insist on established styles," Miss Wills predicted.

A VOICE FROM THE GALLERY

Art Books Need Sifting To Split Gold, Gloss

By TONY EMERY

The year just over brought us two books of great importance to all who are interested in the art and architecture of Canada.

Emery

One of them I can only mention in passing because it is being reviewed on another page (and it is by the chairman of the university department in which I pursue what I am pleased to call my work, so that I could hardly say how much I admire it without risking the accusation or galloping sycophancy) but I will urge you to buy Alan Gowan's Building Canada, because it will open your eyes to what is worth observing in your everyday environment, if you will let it.

The other book which should find a place on your shelves is Russell Harper's Painting in Canada (University of Toronto Press). This is the first thoroughgoing attempt ever made to chronicle the development of painting over three centuries of Canadian history and it represents an awe-inspiring amount of work, to say nothing of the grinding boredom that Mr. Harper must have had to endure while sifting through the mountainous heaps of pedestrian drawings and paintings to find those with some aesthetic merit.

All the well-known names are there but one of the merits of the book is the pleasantly unhackneyed choice of works to illustrate the mastery of the old masters of this country.

Equally impressive is the sure eye of the author in spotting and bringing forward talents which should have earned their possessors a greater share of celebrity than they have so far enjoyed in this country.

There are more of these than I can conveniently list here but I might perhaps draw your attention to the merits of Adolphe Vogt, William Cruikshank, W. G. R. Hind and George Reid among the painters of 19th-century Canada.

Of course the task that Russell Harper has set himself in his vast survey is impossible of success. It is difficult enough to tackle the paintings of one region or school or historical period and to relate it to its historical context, even if you are able to lean on a tower of books contributed by previous workers in the same field. To begin almost from scratch, and to attempt to say an illuminating word about everything of merit that has been produced so far in this country's artistic history was clearly beyond anyone's powers. But in this beautifully-produced book Russell Harper has come closer to success than any man has a right to expect. It is a work that will grace a thousand coffee-tables. You might try reading it, too.

Art books have continued to pour from the publishers in a glossy torrent but they are not all equally worthy of your attention, to put it mildly. Something of a snob racket has been going on in the art publications field in this past decade: pretentious tomes of enormous size and staggering expense are constantly being wheeled out to capture the market for books that can impress from across the living room. I would like to single (or should it be double?) out from this polychromatic flood a couple of sober volumes that may have escaped your attention last year, because they are too good to pass in the crowd.

Sir Kenneth Clark scarcely needs any introduction from me, I assume. His well-known books on "The Nude," "Landscape into Art" and "Leonardo da Vinci" have been widely read in paperback and his Phaidon Press monograph on Piero della Francesca is the definitive work on that majestic master. Phaidon have now published the text of the Wrightsman Lectures which Sir Kenneth (you should just call him "K," if you are one-upping a name-dropper as well as a coffee-table-topper) inagurated at the New York University Institute of Fine Arts. Entitled Rembrandt and the Italian Renaissance, the book traces Rembrandt's debt to the great Italian masters of the 15th and 16th centuries.

Clark himself draws the parallel between his own endeavors and those of Livingstone Lowes in the latter's The Road to Xanadu. He says: "And just as no one, I suppose, has thought the less of Coleridge's poetic powers because he took facts and even phrases from the diaries of old explorers, so no one, I trust, will find his admiration for Rembrandt diminished by the knowledge of what he owed to Raphael, Mantegna and Leonardo da Vinci. In fact, Rembrandt, by the force of his imagination, reshaped so completely the pictorial ideas and motives which he took from earlier painters that we could not have recognized them without intermediate stages which reveal their gradual transformation." Each of these stages is graphically traced and explained in this fascinating and scholarly book by one of the greatest living masters of the art of writing lucid and supple English prose.

Dutch Art and Architecture, 1600-1800 by Jakob Rosenberg, Seymour Slive and E. H. Ter Kuile is the latest volume in the Pelican History of Art. It will not command the readership of Sir Kenneth Clark's book because it is addressed to a more specialized audience, but it more than satisfies the expectations of those who have eagerly awaited its appearance. I cannot suggest any way in which it could have been improved, nor can I imagine any serious student of the Golden Age of Dutch Painting denying himself the luxury of his own copy for very long.

CHARACTERS IN CRISIS

A JEST OF GOD

Canadian Writer Avoids U.S.-Style Self Pity

Margaret Laurence: A JEST OF GOD. McClelland and Stewart Ltd., 202 pages, Cloth, $5.00; Paper, $2.50.

LAURENCE
. . . best of two worlds

Stephen Spender once remarked that the major difference between the 19th and 20th century novel is that the former was the novel of "they" while ours is the novel of "I".

Twentieth century morality—such as it is—is a matter of personal choice governed not principally by an external set of rules but by the individual's psychological development as the novel traces a character's inner struggle to achieve his own completeness.

It is possible to go further than this. It has often seemed to me that the modern English novel has retained far more of the "they" than has its American counterpart; the decisions of the central character are much more likely to be affected, and indeed altered by his consciousness of his social position.

The choices that face the characters in the novels of Iris Murdoch, Angus Wilson, or Anthony Burgess are not only turning points on the journey towards a completer self-identity; they open windows into the relationship between the man and the society in which he lives. In the contemporary American novel, on the other hand, one is frequently presented with a "catalogue of the bleeding heart" where the inner history invades so much of the novel that it is hard to place it in perspective; one is left with nobody's views on the justice of the central neurosis but the narrator's own.

This is a sweeping generalization — there is the supreme exception of William Faulkner — but it is not a hasty one. Updike's Rabbit Run and Bellow's Herzog (two greatly overestimated novels) are typical of the genre. The troubled outpourings of the "I" are not insulated by any objective view, so that it is impossible to go behind the central speaker.

The result is a long self-pitying monologue, and one suspects that the authors are themselves not sufficiently distanced from the narrator. There is no neutral territory from which to observe the "I". One either accepts him, like the author, and sympathizes with his predicament, or one is bored by him. Yet this technique does have its advantages, particularly in the immediacy with which the "I" is created, and a novel like Bellow's Henderson the Rain King, where the gargantuan egocentricity of the narrator is itself the meaning of the book, stands as a vindication of the method.

In Canada, Margaret Laurence has achieved and consolidated a growing reputation over the last five years, and on the evidence of her latest novel it seems that she has arrived at a style which combines the best of both approaches to the novel. Her first books, set in Africa, were remarkable for the way in which all the characters struggled to come to terms with a rapidly changing world and ultimately (once they had lost or found their place in society) with themselves.

Their decisions were a personal reaction to a problem that was general to a whole country. Each short story in the collection The Tomorrow-Tamer is an embryo of a larger history- a native village boy faced with a white man's bridge and the god it contains, an Armenian hairdresser troubled with the loss of his European clientele as the whites move out—are conflicts which are both important to the individuals concerned and of a far greater significance. Similarly, in her novel This Side Jordan, the pressures of an emerging nation give other wise everyday events, like shopping in an African market, an almost symbolic meaning; an ordinary act becomes a crisis as Africans and Europeans alike try to adapt their different personalities to a bewilderingly new world. Her last two novels, The Stone Angel and now A Jest of God, are set in the Manitoba township of Manawaka. There is still a sensitive awareness of the impact of the social scene upon the individual, the traditions of the Scots and Ukrainian settlers, the manners that have grown out of them and their effect upon a new generation, but in these two books the conflict is concentrated chiefly in the central "I." The narrator's sensibility is completely exposed but we are also able to understand many of the forces that play upon it.

A Jest of God is concerned with love, old age and death, and their acceptance as part of life's meaning. Like her biblical counterpart, Rachel Cameron has waited fourteen long years. Unmarried, dedicated to a mother with a heart condition and to an eternal Grade Two class, she lives in limbo in an over-neat apartment built significantly over a funeral parlour — a death of a life.

There are many answers to existence in this small town. Rachel's mother attempts to cheat death by her coy prettiness. Willard, the school principal, engages in endless time studies hoping to overcome his need for reassurance with a bustling efficiency of his own manufacturing. Calla Mackie, a fellow teacher, needing a woman's love, paints her walls brightly and finds involvement in the Tabernacle and the search for the Gift of Tongues. It is in a human dialogue that Rachel achieves liberty. A one-sided love affair with Nick Kazlik, the "shadow prince" of her sexual fantasies, brings new perspectives. The removal of a tumor, a quasi-pregnancy, transmutes "my children" (Grade Two) into "my child," her mother, and a firmer grasp on life's direction. The casual affair provides Nick with sexual release, an escape from his father's dogged attempts to shore up a broken world; Rachel's commitment leads to her realization that her father's withdrawal was itself an achievement, "he had the kind of life he wanted most," and then she herself cannot "go on apologizing for ever." Life is a jest of God, but it is also "God's mercy on reluctant jesters."

This new novel offers some interesting parallels with The Stone Angel. The narrators share the same sense of the irony of their lives, though Rachel's protest is of necessity more subdued than the cold fierceness that drives old Hagar.

The problems of age are turned inside out, and an elderly mother is seen from her child's point of view in the devastating portrayal of the insinuating innocence and cruelty of Rachel's mother. Although it probes as deeply, A Jest of God is a narrower book than the last, but it establishes Margaret Laurence as something more than a Canadian writer. She has become a distinctive voice in the world novel.

Survival of Periodical Borders on Miraculous

A CHOICE OF CRITICS, SELECTIONS FROM "CANADIAN LITERATURE," edited by George Woodcock. Toronto: Oxford University Press, 1966. 247 pp. Cloth $5.00, paperback $2.50. Reviewed by Ann Saddlemyer.

In this year of self-conscious evaluation it is not too surprising that one of Canada's major indigenous and introspective literary periodicals should choose to exhibit a selection of its critical essays.

And there is some justification for this timing, for as George Woodcock points out in his interesting if slightly complacent Introduction, seven years is a very long time for any literary magazine to endure; for one like Canadian Literature, devoted entirely to Canadian writers, this achievement borders on the miraculous.

For aside from the financial concerns, such a project implies the definition and evaluation of a nation's literature while the literature and the nation are both in the making; the critic must struggle with the concept of nationalism while balancing his critical mores against the subject-matter of the poem, play or novel. In an effort to isolate an author's "Canadianism," he can dangerously and often innocently ignore those touchstones of world literature necessary as artistic standards or, at the other extreme, invoke the heavies of other times and places in an effort to promote Canadian lightweights.

On the whole, Mr. Woodcock's selection manages to avoid both pitfalls, partly I suspect by playing safe with a small handful of able reviewers: the seventeen articles are written by twelve authors (including the editor who has written two of the essays), and three of the critics (A. J. M. Smith, James Reaney and Louis Dudek) turn up as subjects in other articles. Nor is the subject matter itself very extensive: two lengthy essays are devoted solely to the work of A. M. Klein; the names of Margaret Avison, P. K. Page, Jay MacPherson, Irving Layton, Raymond Souster and Hugh MacLennan crop up countless times; the history of the First Statement group and the Preview poets of Montreal is told with so many variations that one longs for yet one more properly documented article; and such frequent invocations finally belie Earl Birney's twice-quoted accusation, "It is by our lack of ghosts we're haunted."

★

But despite this obvious confederation and some rather annoying self-conscious posturings and pretentious myth-making, the choice of critics is very good indeed. By the end of the book one is aware that there are good poets and story-tellers in Canada and that not all are alike; in some cases the reader wants to know much more. Significantly perhaps, the best essays concentrate on an awareness of place and time which, by ignoring the call to nationalism, not only perceptively illuminate the literary method but invite the reader to an awareness of that world which is the author's own. So Hugo McPherson introduces us to Gabrielle Roy's Montreal, Miriam Waddington sensitively reveals the rich fabric of Hebraic linguistic tradition underlying Klein's The Second Scroll, and in the longest essay Warren Tallman explores the literary landscapes of Sinclair Ross, W. O. Mitchell, Hugh MacLennan, Ernest Buckler and Mordecai Richler. Here the critics too become artists.

★

Inevitably it will be pointed out that this choice of critics is not only English-speaking but assumes it is necessary to translate the few French Canadian writers who are mentioned. And a final note of disappointment: why, when the individual issues of Canadian Literature go one step further by illustrating the art of the printer and designer, must this selection be so inferior in design, paper and inking?

Unions Not Welcome In Early Wood Camps

TOUGH TIMBER, by Myrtle Bergren. Progress Books, Toronto. Cloth, $5. Paper, $3. Reviewed by A. F. Greenwood

Hjalmar Bergren is one of the finest gentlemen this reviewer has ever met in the woods. He used to entertain me often during the noonhour, after scaling his timber, with tales of his early efforts to organize the loggers of coastal B.C. against the strong, and sometimes violent resistance of the company officers.

Tough Timber is the story of Bergie and other dedicated men like him, who against fantastic odds finally succeeded in forming the International Woodworkers of America.

The author tells a tale of appalling working conditions, low wages, rudimentary living quarters and superintendents who hired and fired at will. (True. I was fired thus.)

★

Union men were unwelcome and all kinds of subterfuges were used to get into camp to see the workers. Travel from camp to camp without company co-operation became major treks performed under great hardship.

Told simply the union organizers' adventures would make a good story, but unfortunately the author periodically climbs a stump, leans heavily to the left and sounds off on Fascists, capitalists ('Capitalism is the costacle to progress"), and the glorious Soviet Union.

The propaganda does not help the book's cohesion and the story lacks organization both chronologically and geographically.

However, old loggers will read Tough Timber with pleasure and local historians will find it a useful reference.

Writer Traces Canadian Themes In History of Architecture

Alan Gowans, BUILDING CANADA — AN ARCHITECTURAL HISTORY OF CANADIAN LIFE. Toronto, Oxford University Press, 1966. 412 pp. Index. Illustrated. $15.35.

Reviewed by R. H. Roy

Building Canada is an altered and enlarged edition of Dr. Gowans' earlier (1958) edition of Looking at Architecture in Canada. Any book of this type which merits a second edition, many people will say, must be good — and in this case they would be correct.

This volume is a clear, concise, readable account of Canadian architecture from the earliest times to the present. Approximately half the book is text and half contains photographs to illustrate or elaborate on the views and explanations contained in the text.

Professor Gowans' range of interest covers Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the Iroquois longhouses to the most modern skyscrapers. He gives most attention to Quebec and Ontario, for here, and in the Maritimes, Canadian architecture is to be found in its earliest phases, and here too it set the pattern for much of what was built in Western Canada after 1870.

Perhaps the most interesting part of Building Canada is the author's attempt to show the historical origins of Canadian architecture. In so doing he traces the impact of both the mind as well as the material behind the various structures he describes as being typical of either a place or a period. Be it a church, a house or a public building, he wants to know why it was built when it was built, and to trace the connection between it and buildings similar in nature but different in construction.

This is a difficult task, and of necessity must be based on a considerable amount of educated guesswork. An example of this would be the author's conjectures regarding the construction of the Anglican cathedral in Quebec City built under the guidance of Bishop Mountain.

As a consequence, the reader (especially if he happens to be an historian) may, occasionally, question Dr. Gowan's conclusions. Nevertheless Dr. Gowans does an admirable job of supporting his contentions as to why certain areas followed one style of architecture and others preferred something different.

Tracing the styles and designs of architecture across Canada calls for a great deal of patient detective work, and as one reads on it becomes more and more fascinating.

Dr. Gowans is at present chairman of the division of art and art history at the University of Victoria. Now that he is living in the West we may hope that he will undertake a study of architecture on the West Coast — both Candian and American.

It would be interesting to see what influences there are on the architecture here, and let us hope that he will tuck in now and then something of the building practices. It would be a smaller book, but if it is as interesting as Building Canada, it would have an appreciative reception.

Dr. R. H. Roy teaches history at University of Victoria.

ON THE SEA

It keeps eternal whisperings around
Desolate shores, and with its mighty swell
Gluts twice ten thousand caverns, till the spell
Of Hecate leaves them their old shadowy sound.
Often 'tis in such gentle temper found,
That scarcely will the very smallest shell
Be moved for days from where it sometimes fell,
When last the winds of Heaven were unbound.
Oh ye: who have your eyeballs vexed and tired,
Feast them upon the wideness of the sea;
Oh ye! whose ears are dinned with uproar rude,
Or fed too much with cloying melody—
Sit ye near some old cavern's mouth, and brood
Until ye start, as if the sea-nymphs quired!

John Keats: 1795-1821.

TRITENESS SOURS SIMPLICITY

PARASITES OF HEAVEN, 1966, 80 pages, $4.50 ($2.50 pb), by Leonard Cohen. McClelland and Stewart Ltd.

Reviewed by Sean Virgo

Since his first book, Let Us Compare Mythologies (here reissued), the young Montreal poet and novelist Leonard Cohen has evoked comparison with such disparate writers as William Blake and Bob Dylan.

There are, certainly, two distinctive styles to be found in his fourth volume, Parasites of Heaven. One is a total simplicity of form (short, rhymed stanzas) and content (near-fairy tale narratives, or prayers to the Hebrew-Christian deity); the other is diffuse, socially aware and studded with striking, disturbing images.

★

The occasional gaucheries of sentiment and awkwardness of diction that the first volume (written between the ages of 16 and 20) inevitably shows, have largely disappeared in the new collection but so has some of the freshness. There may be a point in a writer's career when style hardens into mannerism. The twin dangers here are, paradoxically, self-consciousness and facileness. Parasites of Heaven contains much that is original and penetrating, but there is too much use of repetition in search of an incantatory effect:

With a picture of him
Standing by the window while she slept
With a picture of him
Wondering what adventure is Wondering what cruelty is
With a picture of him
Waking her with an angry
kiss . . .

Too often, moreover, a Blake-like simplicity is soured by triteness, as in the conclusion of the otherwise superb "I met a woman long ago":

Teachers, are my lessons done
Or must I do another one?
They laughed and laughed:
Child, you've just begun.

Nowhere in the new volume is there a poem with the unity and evocative powers of "Saint Catherine Street" in Let Us Compare Mythologies:

How can we love and pray
When at our lovers' arms
We hear the damp bells of them
Who once took bitter alms
But now float quietly away.

★

Images of comparable force to those drowned lepers are to be found in the prose poems included in Parasites of Heaven. Yet it is with these that I find most fault for they seem to betray a laziness and lack of discipline. Most of them are good source-material for poems but are not for themselves shaped or refined into poems. Others, like "You are the model," are telling, satirical vignettes:

Yet these hardly have the compression or intensity of poetry.

Certainly the reissue seems to be the better collection, but Parasites of Heaven includes poems both of value and interest. They reveal on the one hand a poet working towards a real mastery of unadorned ballad and prayer forms, implying far more than they state. But one can also see the creator of spectacularly poignant images searching for forms which can both associate and unify those images.

U.K. Price War On Cigarettes

LONDON (Reters) — British smokers today lined up at supermarkets which are defying manufacturers by selling cigarettes below fixed prices.

Supermarkets clipped between three and five pence (3¾ and 6¼ cents) off packages of 20 cigarettes normally prices from 50 cents to 80 cents.

But Jack Cohen, owner of the huge Tesco group of supermarkets which started the price war, said his stores had more than 30,000,000 cigarettes in stock and would continue to sell below the manufacturers' fixed prices.

Millions of pounds were knocked off the stock market value of tobacco shares Friday when Cohen announced his defiance of the fixed price rule.

Cohen has often defied manufacturers fixed-price embargoes on a number of products before—and always the massive turnover of his stores influenced the manufacturers to give in to him.

PRUDENTIAL SUBSIDIARY BANKRUPT

TORONTO (CP) — Triangle Equipment Ltd. of Toronto, a subsidiary of the bankrupt Prudential Finance Corp. Ltd. of Toronto, has gone into bankruptcy.

It was the sixth subsidiary of the Toronto-based company to go bankrupt since Prudential Finance was declared bankrupt Dec. 5, leaving liabilities of about $27,000,000 owing to more than 8,000 creditors.

Mine-Mill, USW Merger Draws Close

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The independent international Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers opens a convention here Monday to ratify a merger agreement with the United Steelworkers of America (AFL-CIO).

A mutual assistance pact leading to the proposed merger of Mine-Mill with the USW was signed by top officers of both nions last August.

The merger, if approved, will establish a united front of organized labor in negotiations with the non-ferrous metals industry in the United States. Many major contracts in the industry expire June 30.

Under terms of the proposed agreement, Mine-Mill will become an affiliate of Steel Feb. 1. Then July 1, Mine-Mill affiliates would be chartered as local unions of the USW.

Mine-Mill at present claims 28,000 members in the United States and 20,000 in Canada. The Steelworkers report a membership of 1,000,000 including more than 100,000 in Canada.

The merger could end up with a deep impact in Canada, though the eventual Canadian effect is a big question mark at this time.

The Canadian Mine-Mill is determined not to have its Canadian identity and atonomy swallowed up in the larger USWA.

The Canadian Mine-Mill became a separate entity in 1955 and has the final say on whether it would be drawn into the merger.

Luney Bros. Low Tender On Building

Eight Victoria construction firms have bid to bring beautiful British Columbia to Wharf Street.

Lowest tender on the conversion of the old Wharf Street Liquor Control Board warehouse to office space for Beautiful B.C. Magazine was Luney Bros. and Hamilton.

Other bidders were: Herb Bate Ltd., $86,853; William Campbell Ltd., $88,458; Burns and Dutton Const. Ltd., $89,800; Farmer Const. Ltd., $90,880; R. A. Hall Ltd., $92,490; G. H. Wheaton Ltd., $93,547; and E. H. Hunter and Sons Ltd., $105,086.

Renovation to the building at 1019 Wharf Street, is expected to be completed within three or four months.

The Beautiful British Columbia magazine is published by the department of recreation and conservation.

NEW BANK ACT now before the Commons represents an approach to flexibility which the country needs for continued growth, F. William Nicks, president of the Bank of Nova Scotia, told shareholders at the annual meeting this week. The bill does not contain everything the BNS hoped it would, but nevertheless is symptomatic of the need for economic and social diversity in Canada, he said.

More Exports To Canada Hope of U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States is counting on continued expansion of its big Canadian market in 1967, says a global department.

Some Canadian economic slowdown is anticipated but "U.S. exports to Canada, which rose at a phenomenal 20 per cent in the first nine months of 1966 . . . should make further gains in 1967."

The appraisal in the publication International Commerce shows the U.S., as usual, accounted for 72 per cent of all Canadian imports over the nine months, or $4,809,000,000 in that period, 60 per cent of all Canadian exports.

Says the study: "With the continuing strong demand for Canada's resources, Canadian exports should climb farther in 1967."

"Shipments of pulp and paper, newsprint, metals, petroleum and potash are expected to increase. Wheat shipments . . . are expected to be slightly lower and the outlook for lumber exports is also less favorable, as a result of the decline in home construction in the U.S."

The study says two-way trade in autos and original parts picked up under the 1965 Canada-U.S. production agreement but the U.S. trade surplus has declined.

Gold Price Hike Rejected by U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has rejected without qualification any idea of raising the price of gold for any reason whatsoever.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Lengthy Slump Break Out?

By LARRY DWORKIN

Canada's stock markets ran up another whopping gain this week, adding fuel to investors' hopes that the markets are about to break out of an 11-month slump.

It was a week which saw investor confidence overcome the shock of President Johnson's tax proposals, even though much of last week's strength was based on the belief that there would be no increase.

Overriding the increase was a pledge by the president of an easing of the money supply as well as consideration by a number of major U.S. banks of lowering of their primary lending rates.

Also contributing to the upswing were price increases in primary metals such as steel, aluminum and molybdenum.

At Toronto, the industrial index, the key indicator of the market's performance, jumped 6.22 to 156.71 on five consecutive daily gains. It was the eighth advance for the index since the beginning of the year.

Brokers said the test of the market's strength came Wednesday when it went into a tailspin in the morning following President Johnson's announcement, then rebounded for a healthy gain.

TRADING HOURS UP

Trading showed marked improvement as 18,240,000 shares changed hands compared with 10,964,000 last week.

Canada Cement led the advance, up 7 to 42 after the company announced record profits for the year ended Nov. 30.

Falconbridge moved up 4 to 92, Alcan 3½ to 33⅞, Inco and Alberta Gas Trunk 2 each to 95 and 34 and Massey Ferguson and B-A Oil 1¾ each to 26¼ and 36¼.

Bank stocks posted one of their best gains in the last six months as Imperial-Commerce rose 3 to 61½, Royal 2¾ to 72½, Toronto - Dominion 2½ to 61, Nova Scotia 2 to 66½ and Montreal 1½ to 56.

High-flying western oil issues continued to receive much attention from investors and speculators and the index jumped 10.09 to a high of 143.37.

Record drilling activity in the Rainbow and Zama Lake regions of northwestern Alberta plus sales of oil and natural gas leases in the province later this month are responsible for the group's surge.

Dome increased 4½ to 42, Home A 2 to 26½, Central-Del Rio 1¾ to 14¾ and Canadian Superior and Great Canadian Oil Sands 1¼ each to 32¼ and 11¾.

Pyramid plunged 1.90 to 3.60 in base metals after the company announced it had received a letter from the department of national revenue which proposes to tax the gain on the sale of assets to Pine Point Mines, Ltd.

In 1966 the company received 526,400 shares of Pine Point for its properties in the Pine Point area of the Northwest Territories.

Dennison, up most of the week, fell sharply Friday to finish down ¼ to 58¼. The drop followed a statement by French Finance Minister Debre that France would not buy Canadian uranium as long as there were strings attached.

However, the base - metal group managed a 2.06 gain on index to 89.59 on the strength of Noranda's 3¼ jump to 54¼. The company is planning a $122,000,000 takeover of Essex Wire Corp. of the U.S.

IF YOU PREFER TO AVOID THE
on our economic HIGH SEAS, invest in mortgages or a mortgage company. In this way the chance of loss is far less than most other investments. A mortgage represents only PART of the VALUE of the security, and if the value were to come down for any reason the reduction would be unlikely to be sufficient to effect a loss on the well-placed mortgage.
For example, if a $10,000 property with a $5,000 Mortgage upon it were to suddenly drop to $6,000, no loss would be inflicted on the mortgage.
Naturally nothing is 100% safe, but the Mortgage field offers the least amount of risk to the invested dollar.

New Financing For Island Mine

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Ever optimistic, Cowichan Copper Co. Ltd. president Oswood G. MacDonald Friday sent a letter to shareholders to say that new financing for the Sunro mine has been secured.

In a telephone interview Mr. MacDonald said he was hopeful of resuming operations at the Jordan River mine "soon."

KENT

The letter outlines terms and conditions that had to be met to fulfill agreement with Aetna Investment Corp., which was managing the mine prior to its shutdown last September.

And it says negotiations are being carried out with a view to reducing the royalty payment to Sunro Mines Ltd., which is 76 per cent controlled by Cominco.

Aetna closed the operation claiming production losses were making it uneconomic; Mr. MacDonald said this was due to mismanagement, and he states the mine can be made to pay.

To back his claim he says $100,000 financing has been arranged as one of the steps toward bringing the mine back into production.

He did not say with whom the deal had been made.

NEW PLANNING

The president has been involved personally with new planning and arrangements for taking over operating management.

A standby crew of supervisory personnel have kept the mine in condition and have made some improvements that will make production more efficient, he said.

Physically, the operation is "ready to move muck," he said, although final preparations are still in the engineering stage.

He is hopeful of opening production volume of 600-800 tons per day, compared with about 500 tons while Aetna had the mine.

But later, he said, volume should climb to between 1,200 and 1,600 tons per day with both milling circuits in operation.

And finally, a good word for the miners who were thrown out of work with about $48,000 in back wages owing:

Disposal of some 500 tons of ore concentrates has been completed, she shipment going to Japan.

"There should be more than enough in return to retire the rest of the back wages and other obligations of the company," Mr. MacDonald said.

Theoretically they were unavailable until next Tuesday morning but a $20 million 6¾ per cent issue of debentures by Husky Oil Canada Ltd. appears to be sold out already.

"We got only 10 per cent of our requirement," a Victoria investment dealer complained about the small-quota assigned to him.

The issue was so attractive, notwithstanding the offering price of $100, that dealers Friday were quoting the bonds at a premium of 3¼ to 4 points.

Growth potential of Calgary Power Ltd. is racing ahead of the national average, according to figures supplied by E. J. MacLeod, design and construction engineer for the company.

He said electric power requirements in Alberta, served largely by Calgary Power, are growing by 10-12 per cent a year compared with 7-8 per cent in the whole country.

And to try to keep pace Calgary Power is spending $100 million a year for the next few years in order to expand its production facilities.

Alberta's electric power consumption will have increased four-fold by 1980, thanks to demand for such things as home and office air conditioning, air pollution control devices such as electric autos and electric transit development.

By 1980 atomic energy could supplant coal and petroleum-fired steam for generating plants, Mr. MacLeod predicted, but meanwhile an eight-point program planned by the company includes projects on the Brazeau River, Wabamun and Big Horn totalling 2.265 billion watts.

Gains in B.C. lumber and plywood production for 1966 and 1967 are indicated even though markets sagged in the last quarter of 1966.

It is estimated by the bureau of statistics that 1966 will show an increase of 1.5 per cent over 1965 for a total of 7.05 billion board feet of lumber and about 7 per cent for plywood with 1.725 billion square feet (⅝-inch measure).

Distributes Record Sum

WINNIPEG (CP) — Investors Mutual of Canada Ltd., Canada's largest mutual fund, distributed $16,946,923 in dividends during the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1966.

The company's annual report, said this was an increase of 13.11 per cent over the previous year and amounted to a record 14½ cents a share.

AUTO SALES IN U.S. CONTINUE TO DECLINE

DETROIT (AP) — Early January sales of U.S. autos, the first important economic barometer of the new year, showed a 21.1 per cent dip below January, 1966.

All four major U.S. auto makers Friday reported sharp sales declines for the first 11 days of the month.

It was their deepest percentage dive for any 10-day sales period since 1967 models went on the market last fall. The decline interrupted more than a year of solid successes.

Steel Strike Pinch Starts

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Friday was the last payday at Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd. and it left 8,000 workers and their families faced with the bleak prospect of trying to live on unemployment insurance.

Algoma shut down its operations Dec. 18 after 80 bricklayers, members of the International Association of Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers, left their jobs and two railway unions refused to cross their picket lines.

The company and all three unions are separated by a seemingly - unbridgeable gap. John D. Speranzini, provincial conciliation officer, Friday said negotiations have been completely broken off, with no settlement in sight.

Mr. Speranzini said the two groups adjourned their talks because "there appears to be no area of settlement."

He said he was returning to Toronto to talk to the minister of labor and the director of conciliation services. He plans to make one more attempt to rescue negotiations.

FEEL PINCH

Workers at Algoma's plants in the Sault and Wawa are beginning to feel the pinch. The average weekly wage in Sault Ste. Marie is $110 a week and the cost of living is proportionate.

One worker, who averaged $100 a week at the plant, will have to think in terms of $36 a week—the amount he will get in unemployment insurance.

Mrs. Janet Plank, city welfare officer, said her office has been busy from the first day of the strike. "It was so bad we ran out of the necessary forms."

The 80 striking bricklayers are apparently living off their savings. Joseph Reed, Local 29 president, said the men are not drawing strike pay.

How long can this go on? "I don't know," he said.

Elsewhere in the city, banks and loan companies are either rewriting loans or arranging to defer payments. Stores have reported sharp declines in business and have laid off staff.

Bowling alleys lack their usual capacity crowds and hairdressers report few customers: Automobile dealers say it's almost impossible to sell new cars.

Directors Approve Hydro Bond Issue

A $50,000,000 bond issue was ratified this week by directors of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

The bonds carry a coupon interest rate of 5⅞ per cent.

No statement was issued following the directors meeting, but a spokesman said the price is $99 and yield about 5.95 per cent.

DOUGLAS, McDONNELL

Mammoth Aviation Merger

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Douglas Aircraft, Inc., and the McDonnell Co. agreed Friday to merge into a mammoth aerospace firm to be known as McDonnell Douglas Corp.

Douglas, a pioneer aviation concern, authorized merger discussions last December 12, after running into financial difficulties in production of its DC9 short-to-medium-range jet airliner.

McDonnell, headquartered in St. Louis, said it had offered to purchase immediately up to 1.5 million shares of unissued Douglas stock at $48.50 a share "to assist Douglas in meeting its immediate financial requirements."

About 250,000 shares of 5 per cent of Douglas' 5.2 million shares of common stock are said to be already owned by McDonnell, a producer of jet fighters and space systems.

Douglas announced merger plans after a three-hour board of directors meeting. The consolidation requires approval of stockholders of both companies and appropriate government agencies.

Basic terms of the merger call for an exchange of 1.75 shares of the new McDonnell Douglas Corp. for each share of Douglas stock. McDonnell shareholders would receive one share in the new company for each share they own in the existing McDonnell firm.

As a part of the proposal, McDonnell would issue a 6 per cent dividend in stock to its shareholders before the consolidation.

PURPOSE
The Tri-Service Identities Organization is a Canada-wide non-political group of people dedicated to the retention of adequate and efficient Armed Forces for the defence of our country.

OBJECTIVE
To preserve the combat efficiencies of the Navy, the Army and the Air Force by:

A. Demanding an immediate halt to any further steps towards the creation of a single military service.
B. Calling for a public inquiry or Royal Commission to determine whether the projected unification of the services will, in fact, result in a more effective, efficient and economical force, by:
  (1) Assessing the full effect of those actions already taken toward establishing a single military force.
  (2) Examining and determining the probable results of the implementation of the proposed plan for unification including such aspects as morale, efficiency, economy, recruitment, and re-engagement.
C. Co-operating with those citizens and organizations across Canada protesting the arbitrary decision to abolish the separate identities of the Navy, the Army and the Air Force.

To: TRIO, Box 306, Adelaide St. P.O., Toronto 1, Ontario
I subscribe to the above purpose and objectives of the Tri-Service Identities Organization. Please count on me for support.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

"Peter Rozelle, president of the National Football League today filed a Supreme Court writ against sportswriters in Canada, the U.S. and Lower Yangtsze province.

"The accused must show cause why they should continue to use the term 'Officials' in describing the referee and his five assistants who will handle the Super-Sunday game.

"Super-Sunday, in case your set has not been working, is THIS Sunday, January 15, 1966, A.D.

"On Super-Sunday — don't forget the name, now — Green Bay Packers and Kansas City Chiefs will meet in Los Angeles for the football championship of the WORLD! CBS-TV, of course, will bring the game to you in living blood—er, color.

★ ★ ★

"We have purchased every camera of Kodak and Bell Howell right from the factory in Nagasaki and Yokohama. We will have cameras on the field, in the dressing room, on flagpoles, ships at sea, bald eagles and swallows entering and leaving Capistrano.

"The network has been cleared to bring you pre-pre-game analysis of pre-game previews, THE GAME, post-post mortems of post-game post-mortems and other highlights.

"Hanoi, Saigon, Washington and Peking have given their diplomats Super-Sunday off with instructions not to start a war or anything.

"Now where was I? Oh, yes. In New York, NFL commissioner Rozelle is quite disturbed over the use of the expression 'officials' for Super-Sunday.

"Asked today what name should be used, Rozelle was explicit: 'Gosh-all-peanut-butter, fellas, this is not just another football game. This is for the ENTIRE WORLD. How plebeian to call referees and linesmen 'officials'. For the Super-Bowl, on Super-Sunday, there can be only one designation . . . Superficials!

"Now to bring you up to date on what the Superficials will wear, here is CBS sports fashion commentator, I. Ty Cravats.

"Good evening. In the Super-Bowl which Mr. Watertight may have forgotten to tell you will be shown on this network, there will be a new look. A Super look. The Superficials will use the regular NFL white pants, except there will be a thin black stripe down the sides. The shirt will have white and black stripes, like the NFL shirt. Only, instead of having a big number on the back, we will put a Super number on each sleeve. The sleeve will be black and the number will be white.

"In the NFL they wear a solid white cap. That's passe. I'm not sure what the AFL wears but on Super-Sunday Superficials will wear a white cap with a black bill.

"Now back to Waltham. . . .

"Thank you, I Ty. Elsewhere in the world tonight there's a battle raging in the Mekong Delta. Armed Marines are storming with fixed bayonets and . . . HOLD IT! We've just received another bulletin from commissioner Rozelle's office.

"The commissioner says four ballboys will be used on Super-Sunday. Two will stand on each sideline.

★ ★ ★

"One of the two will have a supply of NFL balls which will be used when Green Bay is on the offensive. The other will have AFL balls to be used when Kansas City is on the offensive.

"Now back to the ordinary news. . . .

"Peking is in a mess. Mao Tse-tung chewed out Chou En-lai in lieu of Liu Shao-Chi who had no yen for Chen Yi. The Red Guard are red-dogging and the blitz is reaching fever pro . . . HOLD IT! Another bulletin from commissioner Rozelle. . . .

"In an addenda to his previous announcement, Rozelle explains that the NFL and the AFL use different balls.

"The AFL ball is made by Spalding and NFL ball by Wilson, explained the commissioner. They differ in three respects.

"First the laces on the AFL ball are about a quarter inch longer.

"Second, there is a difference in the area from the lace to the point of the ball. This area is known as the ogive (pronounced Oh-Jive). The NFL ball is more rounded in this area. The AFL ball is more pointed.

★ ★ ★

"The dimensions of the NFL ball were adopted, oh. I'd guess about 40 year ago. One reason for the shape is probably that it's a little easier to kick than a more pointed ball. The AFL just adopted the Spalding J5-V, which is a college ball.

"The third difference between the balls is that the NFL ball is put through a tanning process that gives it a good tacky feeling. It's not slippery."

"Thank you, Mr. Rozelle, for that interesting dissertation. Now back to the rotten, humdrum news. . . .

"In Havana, Premier Fidel Castro has threatened to break off with Russia. Mr. Castro's announcement came after lighting up a cigar, one of a batch sent from Vladivistok. After two puffs the premier heated up. To put the premier back is good spirits, Cuban officials have placed him on a strict diet of, so help me, Castro oil. . . .

"Thank you, and good evening."

OWNER OFFERS $10,000

Indians Start Work To Get Shore Bonus

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Springfield Indians apparently are taking seriously owner Eddie Shore's bonus offer as an incentive for the club to make the American Hockey League playoffs.

Shore said Friday he will grant the team a minimum $10,000 bonus if it wins 22 of its final 38 games and the Indians responded Friday night by edging Cleveland Barons 3-2.

The victory, under new coach Eddie Shore Jr., left them eight points behind the third-place Quebec Aces. There are three playoff spots in the Eastern Division.

In other games, Rochester Americans defeated Providence Reds 5-2 and moved into a first-place tie in the Western Division with Pittsburgh Hornets, idle Friday night, and Baltimore Clippers beat Buffalo Bisons 5-1.

PLAGER SCORES WINNER

Barclay Plager's goal with three seconds remaining gave Springfield the victory. Dave Amadio and Howie Glover also scored for the Indians.

Cecil Hoekstra and Howie Glover replied for the Cleveland.

Dick Gamble scored his 27th and 28th goals to pace the Americans. Terry Clancy, Gerry Ehman and Stan Smrke got the others. Pierre Brillant and Ken Stephanson scored for Providence.

European Veteran Named as Coach

John J. Rooney, club president, announced the appointment today.

Cleveland Retires Jim Brown's No. 32

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jersey No. 32, worn by fullback Jim Brown of Cleveland Browns for nine seasons, is being retired permanently.

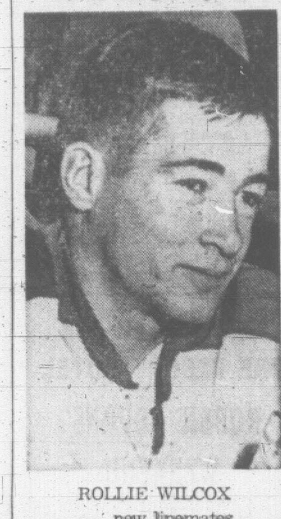
Browns' owner Art Modell will present the jersey to Brown at the Jim Brown Farewell Day activities Jan. 29. The event is sponsored by the Negro Industrial and Economic Union of which Brown is the national chairman.

Brown's former number is the third to be retired in the 21-year history of the club.

Saanichton Schedule

Three games will be played in the Saanichton Hall by Peninsula Basketball League teams tonight. Capitals face Saanichton in a pre-midget affair at 7; Esquimalt's midget boys will tackle the host club at 7:45, and First United "B" bantam girls play Navy at 8:30.

NORM JOHNSON . . . four-goal spree



ROLLIE WILCOX . . . new linemates

Norm Fires Four; Rivals Get More

If some of Norman B. Johnson's talent can rub off onto his Los Angeles teammates, this business of coaching would be a breeze for the Blades' Fern Flaman.

Johnson was at his slick-skating best Friday, but it wasn't enough as Vancouver Canucks fashioned a 6-4 victory and left the Blades in danger of toppling into sixth place in the Western Hockey League standings.

But the Canucks, snapping out a three-game losing streak, got more goals. Consequently, Victoria Maple Leafs get a chance tonight, at Memorial Arena, to break into fifth place.

Blades and Victoria each have 35 points, but a slight edge belongs to the Leafs because of tonight's home-ice advantage and a game in hand on Los Angeles.

In Friday's only other league game, winger Danny Belisle continued his hot pumping for Oakland and the Seals blasted San Diego Gulls 7-0 to stay in a second-place tie with Vancouver.

Both Vancouver and Oakland have 40 points, only five more than Los Angeles and Victoria.

BEST OF SEASON

Johnston's burst Friday — best one-game scoring effort in the league this season — gave him a total of 20 goals and 47 points. He seems almost certain to finish in the 80-point scoring circle, and that's in keeping with his average for several seasons.

Johnson has scored 577 points in the past seven seasons, an average of 82 a year.

The 34-year-old native of Moose Jaw hasn't shown any signs of slowing down, and that's why Flaman would like to have more of his kind.

Barry Watson, Marc Dufour, Larry Popein, Les Hunt, Dave Duke and Phil Maloney scored for Canucks. It was Duke's first game since coming out of retirement at the request of coach Bert Olmstead.

Duke, although still shy on conditioning, played a strong game. Maloney, playing centre for him, put Duke in on at least four occasions but the fine work of Los Angeles goaltender Jack Norris kept Dave from adding to Vancouver's score.

Canucks rang up a 5-0 lead on the Blades before the Los Angeles attack began to jell. Johnson got the Blades to within two goals, 5-3, with about 10 minutes to play.

LEAFS TRY FOR FOUR

A penalty to Al LeBrun a few minutes later disrupted the Los Angeles attack. The Blades killed off the penalty easily but Maloney put the game on ice by scoring a minute after LeBrun returned.

Leafs move into tonight's game without 17-goal scorer Bruce Carmichael, recovering from an eye injury. Rollie Wilcox moved into Carmichael's spot when the Leafs clipped Los Angeles 3-1 Wednesday and turned in a strong effort. He'll be at the spot tonight as Leafs try for their fourth straight win and fifth place.

At Oakland, the Seals drew 9,029 fans — the second largest turnout in the new Oakland arena — and made it a happy night by rolling to their fifth straight win in easy fashion.

In addition to Belisle, George Swarbrick also scored twice for Seals while goalie Jean Guy Morissette chalked up his first shutout.

Loss Won't End World For Super Bowl Rivals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Green Bay Packers and Kansas City Chiefs meet Sunday in the long-awaited, much ballyhooed Super Bowl, a game that likely will establish—for almost everyone except the coaches involved—which football league is superior.

While fan interest for this first meeting between the 47-year-old National Football League and seven-year-old American Football League centres around the superiority question, neither Green Bay coach Vince Lombardi nor Kansas City coach Hank Stram were viewing it exactly that way.

"It's a big football game," said Lombardi, "but winning or losing won't mean the end of the world as far as the Packers are concerned — or Kansas City either."

"Superiority of one league over the other will be hard to determine in one game," Stram said. "But it will give people a better picture than they've had.

"With the public it probably will 'prove' that."

RECORD LIKELY

There's little doubt that the viewing public will be the largest in the history of American sports despite the fact there probably will be empty seats in 93,000-seat Los Angeles Coliseum when the game gets under way at 1:05, PST.

Also guaranteed is the largest payoff in the history of pro team sports with $15,000 going to each member of the winning team and $7,600 to each loser.

The oddsmakers have made the Packers almost a two-touchdown favorite to grab the pot of gold.

USE OWN BALLS

Since the footballs used in the two leagues vary slightly—the AFL ball is supposed to be easier to pass; the NFL ball easier to kick—the Chiefs will use the American League ball when they are on offence and the Packers will use the National League ball when they're attacking.

Sudden death will be in effect if the two teams are tied at the end of regulation time and the leagues have agreed to use the NFL one-point conversion rule instead of the AFL's two-point conversion option.

Lombardi has hinted that running back Paul Hornung, his one-time Golden Boy, may see action at the halfback spot while there still remains some question about the status of Fred Arbanas, Kansas City's all-league tight end who suffered a slight shoulder separation in the AFL title game.

Packers are counting heavily on the passing of Bart Starr and the work of their fine defensive unit to prove their claim to the pro championship.

The Chiefs, anxious to show that the AFL finally has caught up with the older NFL, are pinning hopes on the accurate tosses of Len Dawson, the flashy running of Mike Garrett, the receiving of speedy Otis Taylor and massive offensive and defensive lines.

Rawlings Advance Into Semis

VANCOUVER—The Victoria Rawlings advanced into the semi-final round of the University of B.C. Thunderette women's basketball tournament Friday by defeating Simon Fraser University, 53-26.

University of Victoria Vikettes were dropped into the consolation round when they were trimmed, 70-39, by Vancouver Molsons after trailing by only two points at half-time.

In today's semis, Rawlings were scheduled to play Mount Pleasant Legion, a 53-38 winner over Central Washington State College, and Molsons were drawn against UBC, which thumped Prince George, 64-12.

MISCONDUCT GALORE

Sports Centre—Where Action Is

The Esquimalt District Hockey League is about ready to borrow a television title as its new slogan . . . "Where the action is . . ."

Misconducts, game misconducts and a prolonged, "let-'em-go" fight after the final whistle provided more than enough action at the Sports Centre Friday night.

The scores—University of Victoria Vikings 6, Armed Forces Combos 2; and, Tudor Monarchs 8, Stocker's North Americans 4—seemed incidental.

Most of the action occured during and after the Vikings-Combos game. In that one, referees doled out nine minors, three misconducts and two game misconducts.

The match penalties were assessed Combos' Glen Bennett and Bill Sloan of Vikings. They tangled in a wild, fist-swinging match after the final whistle.

Bennett appeared to touch off their brawl when he shot a puck into the crowd after the final whistle. The puck struck a small boy.

That set Sloan off after Bennett.

When it was all over, Bennett was tagged with the game misconduct as well as a misconduct while Sloan drew a game misconduct.

REX PLAYS THIS HOLE VERY WELL

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Rex Baxter of Houston, who missed by inches Thursday, won a $4,000 car and $1,000 in other prizes Friday by sinking a hole-in-one on the 207-yard 18th hole in the San Diego open golf tournament.

Baxter used a one iron, the ball hitting on the front edge of the green and dribbling into the hole.

On the same hole Thursday, Baxter hit a two iron shot that hit the flag and dropped three inches away.

UNFAIR RAP . . . . . . SAYS TOM BOLT

Sam Better Thrower

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Tommy Bolt says he hasn't thrown a club in five years, but he can't escape the ever-present mark as golf's Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang.

"Actually, it's an unfair rap," he said. "I figure I've thrown about half as many clubs as Sam Snead or the great Bob Jones did in his day."

Bolt is the man the leaders, Bob Goalby and Randy Glover, fear most going into the third round of the $66,000 San Diego open golf tournament today over the par-71, easy Stardust Country Club course.

Goalby, the 35-year-old veteran from Belleville, Ill., who hasn't won a tour event since 1962, and Glover, the winless 25-year-old regular from Florence, S.C., are tied for first place with 132, 10 under par, after shooting second rounds of 64 and 67 respectively.

George Knudson of Toronto had a 73 and a 72 for 145 while Al Johnston of Montreal was 76-77—153. Neither made the cutoff.

Canuck Golfer Placed on Top

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Gary Cowan, with a hefty slection of awards already tucked away, Friday was named top amateur golfer of the Americas for winning the 1966 United States amateur championship.

The ranking was made by Golf Digest, a monthly publication out of Norwalk, Conn.

"This is great," Cowan said when the award was announced.

"It's especially great for a Canadian. That's an American magazine—something must have gone wrong somewhere."

★ ★ ★

Jo-Anne Gunderson Carner of Seekonk, Mass., U.S. women's title holder, was chosen top woman amateur golfer in the U.S. in a list that omitted mention of Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto, ranked No. 2 last year.

It was the latest of a long list of triumphs for Cowan.

The Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association named him Ontario Athlete of the Year; the Ontario Golf Association chose him Ontario Golfer of the Year.

He came third, behind hockey's Bobby Hull and football's Russ Jackson in the Canadian Press year-end poll to choose the Canadian male Athlete of the Year.

Player Allocation Stickiest Problem Of NHL Expansion

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League governors will meet Tuesday and Wednesday, prior to the 20th annual All-Star game, in an effort to solve several sticky problems which must be decided before expansion becomes a reality for the 1967-68 seasan.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, said Friday he hopes the major issues can be cleaned up at the meetings.

Three subjects take priority. The first is a proposed three-year, $3,600,000 television contract with the Columbia Broadcasting System of New York.

The second is player allocation to the six United States clubs that join the league this fall.

The third is ratification of the pro-amateur agreement between the NHL and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Bill Putnam of Philadelphia will represent the six new owners during the television contract discussions, but the governors of the six existing clubs—Boston, New York, Toronto, Montreal, Chicago and Detroit—will have the final say in the other two matters.

The player allocation problem appears to be the toughest.

When franchises were awarded Los Angeles, St. Louis, Minneapolis-St. Paul and San Francisco - Oakland each new club put up $2,000,000 as its entry fee. For this each will receive 20 players.

Sam Pollock, Montreal Canadiens' general manager, was designated to work out a formula for stocking the new teams.

So far the current owners have failed to agree how to stock the new clubs.

However, Campbell said he believes after working with Pollock on the formula "that we have it two-thirds nailed down."

"One fundamental principle I feel we must follow is that each new team must have a starting lineup of established NHL players made available.

"However, we must also make sure the new teams are not allowed to denude the present clubs of all their talent."

Won't Interfere With Canadian TV

While he will not quote figures on how many players he feels should be made available to each new entry, he said that the existing clubs should be allowed to retain a goal tender, four defencemen and six forwards. That would leave seven players from each of the current clubs available for the expansion draft.

The television contract calls for eight league and three to five playoff games to be shown throughout the United States.

This year the network will show its game-of-the-week presentations after Feb. 12 on Sundays at 4 p.m. EST., with the playoff games being shown Saturdays at 2 p.m.

Next season the contract calls for a December start with Sunday afternoon contests featured. The same applies for the third year.

Campbell said the agreement in no way interferes with the current television coverage of Montreal and Toronto games by the CBC and CTV.

"However, in future years Montreal and Toronto must supply one game each to CBS."

He said he does not expect any trouble in getting final ratification of the new program agreement with the CAHA.

Two NHL governors will be named to join CAHA members in supervising the player-development plan.

The CAHA will receive $125,000 this year from the NHL for operating expenses and supervision of player development.

"Next year it will be a minimum of $350,000 and the amount will increase until it reaches $600,000 within four or five years."

One-Goal Victories For Soccer Leaders

LONDON (CP) — Winger Peter Thompson scored two minutes from half time today and kept defending champions Liverpool at the head of the English Soccer League on goals average over Manchester United.

Thompson scored on a breakaway after defending Bill Stevenson had cleared a strong Sheffield Wednesday attack. That Thompson goal gave Liverpool a 1-0 victory.

Meanwhile, Manchester United defeated Tottenham Hotspur 1-0 on a goal by centre forward David Herd in the 73rd minute.

So Liverpool and Manchester United now are locked at the top of the English first division equal on points—both with 35. Nottingham Forest, 1-0 over Leeds United, is third with 34 points and Stoke City, having a 1-1 tie with West Ham United today, fourth with 32.

The program calls for the completion of 42 games. Liverpool and Manchester United each have played 25 matches. Notts Forest and Stoke City have played 26.

HARWICK-ELGIN TIE

Meanwhile, in regular league play Celtic, on top of the first division standings, won 4-0 over St. Johnstone. The Rangers, tied in second place with Aberdeen, defeated Dundee United 3-1 while Aberdeen fought to a scoreless tie with Clyde.

The Manchester United - Tottenham match pulled in 58,000 fans and the game between Sheffield Wednesday and Liverpool attracted 45,000.

STAYED IN HUNT

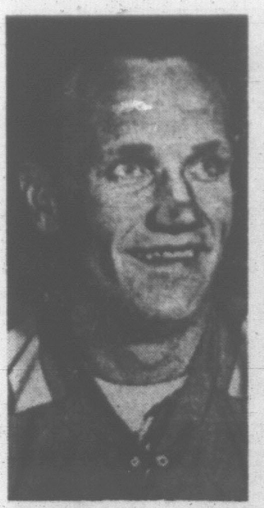
Nottingham Forest stayed in the championship hunt with a goal in the 21st minute. Leeds finished the game with 10 men after Billy Bremner was sent off for a foul on Forest goalkeeper Peter Grummitt in the 74th minute.

Stoke City earned a point at West Ham and so stayed within striking distance of the leaders. Henry Burrows made the score for Stoke in the 59th minute.

Chelsea, once the pace-setters, slumped yet again—this time to a 2-0 defeat by low-lying Sunderland.

Sunderland gambled everything on attack and first-half goals from Neil Martin (27th minute) and Bob Kerr (44th minute) did the trick for the home team.

Blackpool, beaten 3-2 by Aston Villa, is at the foot of Division I with Newcastle United, 2-0 winners at Burnley, second from the bottom. Blackpool has 15 points and Newcastle 16 points.



QUITTING as coach of Vancouver's Inter-City Lacrosse League team is Bob Marsh. Job promotion and wish to "spend more time with family" were reasons for resignation.

Chinook Grads Signed by Macs

Victoria Coffee Macs are beefing up their attack.

Playing-coach Darrell Lorimer announced today that the Macs have signed guard Ken Jackson and forward Barney Spaven.

BARNEY SPAVEN
. . . signed by Macs

They'll make their Inter-City Men's Basketball League debut this weekend. Macs will play Vancouver White Spots at Central Junior High tonight and Sunday afternoon.

Jackson and Spaven both are former standouts with the Junior Chinnoks, scheduled to play North Shore Mountaineers in the opening games of double-headers.

Games get under way at 7:45 and 9 tonight, 1:30 and 3 on Sunday.

Jackson, 5-11, is noted for his outside shooting. Lorimer said Jackson will only play in Sunday's game. A student at University of Victoria, Jackson "will fulfill his obligations to the Vikings" until the end of the collegiate season.

Vikings will be playing at Skajit Valley Junior College tonight.

Spaven, strong on defence, gives Coffee Macs another good rebounder, something the Victoria seniors have been missing. Spaven is 6-4.

VIKINGS BEATEN

Jackson was Vikings' brightest light Friday night in Vancouver as the Victoria team fell to a 100-55 defeat at the hands of Simon Fraser University. John Drew led the SFU drive with 22 points.

Sam Vandermeulen and Keith Margetson each scored 10 points to give Jayvees their 26th straight victory, including exhibitions and 11 in league play.

Poles Make Amends With $5,500 Cheque

NEW YORK (AP) — Poland has made a $5,500 payment and has opened the way for renewal of athletic relations with the United States.

The Amateur Athletic Union, in announcing the move, also expressed hope that the Soviet Union would follow suit.

The Poles and Russians shocked world athletic circles last summer by abruptly pulling out of the big California dual meets with the United States at Berkeley and Los Angeles.

They claimed American policy in Vietnam as the reason, but it was believed the Russians feared they would be beaten badly by a high-powered American team.

The AAU took up the situation and the losses involved — $11,000 for the Polish meet at Berkeley and $125,000 for the Russians at Los Angeles — at the congress of the International Amateur Athletic Federation in Budapest last August. It was understood that both countries agreed then to make the losses good.

Col. Don Hull, the AAU's executive director, said the Poles have kept their agreement to pay one-half with the remainder due within one year.

He said the door was open for them to compete here in indoor meets this season and that American athletes may compete in Poland.

HOOKED IT...!
IAIN, TELL ME SOMETHING. WHAT EXACTLY WERE YOU THINKING DURING THAT SHOT?
THAT'S THE TROUBLE WITH PEOPLE WHO WANT TO IMPROVE THEIR GAME. THEY THEORIZE SO MUCH THEY FORGET THE MOST IMPORTANT THING WHICH IS TO MAKE GOOD, SOLID CONTACT WITH THE BALL
YOU CANNOT POSSIBLY THINK OF THREE OR FOUR POINTS IN THE LIMITED TIME OF A GOLF SWING. YOU WILL GET MUCH BETTER RESULTS IF YOU THINK OF ONLY ONE THING, PLUS HITTING THE BALL SOLIDLY!

Footballers Face Life Suspension

LONDON (AP)—The English Professional Footballers' Association warned its members Friday they could be banned for life if they play in one of North America's two new soccer leagues.

The association warned its players not to join teams of the National Professional Soccer League which has said it plans to begin competition next year. The league is not recognized by the World Soccer Federation (FIFA).

Cliff Lloyd, secretary of the English body, said, "It would be unwise for our members to be attracted by American offers in view of what could happen when their contracts expire. They could outlaw themselves in the eyes of the FIFA and might never be allowed to play anywhere else again."

Some British sports writers warned that players migrating to the United States might be liable to the military draft.

Several British players have signed to play and coach in the league and Phil Woosnam, former Welsh player who has signed as player-coach of the Atlanta team, said the warnings were meaningless.

He also said none of the players would be subject to the American military draft.

The other league which plans to begin operations in the United States this year, the North American Soccer League, has received FIFA sanction.

RECESS DOES THE JOB

By PAULINE GRAVES

When building or remodelling a house, if you have a small room you naturally want it to look larger.

Windows, mirrors and sliding glass doors all help but not always are these devices possible or to your room's best advantage.

A recess of several inches however can take part of the bulk of a furniture piece or absorb the depth of shelves when you want the warmth of books as part of your decoration.

Here is a recess that small as it is includes a semi-desk. Because of the limited space it can scarcely be considered a "desk," hence the word "semi."

ADJUSTABLE

The four and a half foot wide recess, just ten inches deep, has adjustable shelves. To give the bottom shelf a purpose other than just holding books, it was made practical for writing by extending a 14-inch section four inches into the room, beyond the rest of the shelf.

In addition a 14"x16" box was installed below, on the right, for telephone books and notepaper.

The shelf directly above has a three-inch facing behind which hides a flourescent tube for direct light on the writing surface.

The entire recess is a handsome part of the room, the back lined with bonded wool suede in a gold color. Walnut frames the recess and all shelves are walnut as well.

Air Conditioning Is Cool, Man And Cuts Housework for Ladies

Today many modern homemakers are discovering that well-designed, properly installed year-round air conditioning produces endless benefits for their family's comfort and health, reports the Canadian Refrigeration and Air Conditioning Association. We are all aware of the benefits of proper heating, but how many of us do not know the other functions of year-round air conditioning and the benefits they bring?

Here are some actual effects of the cooling function of year-round air conditioning, on families in a study conducted by the National Association of Home Builders in the United States.

- Most families reported getting an extra hour or more sleep a night, as well as awakening refreshed and ready for each day.
- Many families said that daytime naps for children stretched out three times longer.
- Hot meals were, in many cases, 40 per cent more nutritious than those eaten under regular summer conditions. They also were enthusiastically eaten despite soaring outdoor temperatures. And cooking was more enjoyable in a cool kitchen.
- An average of $5.80 per week was saved by not having to use outside entertainment to "beat the heat."
- Summer clothes were reported as lasting longer and looking fresher — in many cases laundry time was cut in half.

Housewives also discovered additional benefits that can be enjoyed on a year-round basis...

- Many said housekeeping time was cut by one-third. With the windows closed, dust, dirt and bugs were kept out. Less dusting was needed. Furniture and drapes stayed clean longer.
- Many found more leisure time for hobbies, in completely air-conditioned homes, due to the reduction in the time spent on cleaning and laundering.
- Results of trips to the hairdresser lasted longer.

But perhaps more important was that wives, when asked what contribution complete air conditioning made to their lives, most frequently answered "harmony" and "better dispositions." A happier family. A happier home.

In another research project conducted by the National Association of Home Builders, the important influence of air conditioning on family life was shown. A "demonstration" village containing both air-conditioned and non-air-conditioned homes was developed. The families living in the air-conditioned homes spent more time together, and ate more meals as a group. Teen-agers spent more time at home. Families generally saw more of each other — and enjoyed it.

AND DON'T FORGET...

- Your home will be quieter since noises from the outside are minimized with windows and doors closed. With year-round air conditioning outside air can still be used; but it is cleaned and treated to bring it to the right temperature and humidity before it is circulated throughout your home.
- Humidity control eliminates too much or too little moisture.

Peeling paint, sagging wallpaper, stuck drawers and musty summer odors become problems of the past.

Packaged foods stored in cabinets or on pantry shelves remain fresh longer.

- Summer entertaining no longer will depend on the "whims" of the weather. Guests will enjoy the complete comfort of your home all year-round.
- Your year-round air conditioning may be used to ventilate, exhaust smoke and odors, or bring in cleaned outside air, even at times when it is not necessary to turn on the heating and cooling.

Your Wall Is 'You' Say Design Experts

"Objects that are put on the walls are a very personal expression of secret and sentimental experiences and yearnings," according to John Elmo, interior design consultant for Syroco, a maker of decorative wall accessories.

Elmo said clutter on the walls was formalized and merely a sign of affluence in the Victorian Age, but modern walls are being decorated with things closer to the heart, and in reaction to the mass-produced mechanized world outside.

What you put on the wall might be a collection of new miniature mirrors or prints to go with the scaled-down size trend in furniture. Or it could be those castanets you picked up in Mexico or the map of Paris you look at while dreaming of a trip abroad, or even clusters of family pictures.

Be it that or the most formal wall hanging or landscape, the important thing, the designers say, is that your wall is "you."

TIPS FOR HOME GARDEN

Somewhere...an Ideal Tree for You

By JACK BEASTALL

There are many home gardens in which an ornamental tree is needed to complete the present plantings.

To be in keeping with the design of the house and the surrounding gardens, a small tree is usually desirable, but it has to be a feature of the garden at some period during the year.

Jack

Our main difficulty is not from a lack of beautiful trees which can be successfully grown in this area, for we have a climate permitting the use of many genera that could not be considered in other parts of Canada.

The problem is to make a wise choice from the hundreds of species and varieties that are available.

All we can do in the limited space of this column is draw attention to a small but useful group of trees worth considering for a home garden.

In the same manner that we are likely to refer to all conifers as "fir trees," so we call this group Japanese cherries or Japanese plums, and immediately we have a picture in mind of the large ornamental trees we have seen on street boulevards.

But when we look at a fairly comprehensive catalogue of ornamental trees we find this group contains more than just Japanese cherries or Japanese plums.

Included is the whole genus Prunus, covering ornamentals referred to as plums, cherries, almonds and peaches.

SMALL GARDEN

In this genus alone we find many habits of growth suitable for a small garden. There are low round-headed trees, tall and narrow upright forms and some with spreading to weeping tendencies.

All are flowering ornamentals (distinguishing them from our fruit trees which are close relatives) and some have the habit of shrubs, that is, producing a bush-like growth of many stems instead of the single trunk which is characteristic of a tree.

Another genus is the flowering crabapples or Malus comprising mainly small round-headed trees, often with tiny apples the size of cherries which can be used for crabapple jelly.

Still another genus is Pyrus, the pear, in which there is one species of ornamental value, a tree of weeping habit with silvery, willow-like leaves.

It is practically impossible for the average home gardener to select the exact tree to suit his conditions from the colored tags on trees in a display rack when the trees are dormant.

ULTIMATE SPEED

While these tags convey some idea of color and type of flower, they give no indication of the tree's natural habit, nor its ultimate spread and height.

Information of this kind must be obtained either from authentic books and catalogues or from a nurseryman who specializes in growing these ornamentals.

Since the planting period is from November to late February or early March, depending on the season, there is not a great length of time left to obtain the necessary information on varieties, place an order, and do the planting. That, if we wish to have a tree in flower this spring.

When purchasing any new plant for the garden there is an old saying that is worth remembering: Haste leads to waste. A hastily made decision usually results in a compromise that never gives complete satisfaction.

Therfore it is a sign of wisdom to delay planting until fall (an excellent time in this area), spending the intervening time visiting the local nurseries where all the varieties can be compared while in flower and full foliage.

You will find flower colors ranging from pure white through all shades of pink into reds, flower sizes from large to small, and flower types from single, through various degrees of semi-doubleness, to large fully double, like small roses.

There is also a great variation in color of foliage. Some of these ornamentals have leaves that break in spring with a decided red cast but change to green later, while others produce foliage which is always a shade of plum red.

Within this large assortment there are trees suited to every kind of setting likely to be encountered in home garden planting and somewhere among them is the ideal tree you have been seeking for your particular conditions and needs.

WEEK'S WORK

House plants, on which are found aphids or other insect pests, may be dipped into a pail containing a solution of nicotine sulphate with soapsuds. Stand the plants to drain for 30 minutes then dip again in clear water. Plants with thin, soft leaves should not be treated with nicotine.

Power machines can be checked now and motors cleaned and run for 30 minutes or so.

Pot up all geranium cuttings which have rooted, using small pots, a sandy mixture and keep the pots fairly dry while the weather is dull.

Seed of herbaceous penstemon and pansy can be sown indoors but keep them cool after germination. The plants should be ready to put out into the garden by April.

Sow seed indoors of Spanish onion, leek, cauliflower and lettuce, using a variety which will grow in cool weather—Early Evergreen is good, also All-Year-Round.

Cut wood strips for row and plant labels, two by 12 inches, paint white or other light color and use black lettering.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Q. My Christmas cactus has been blooming well. When all the flowers are over, shall I let it be dry for a while? I would like to have it bloom again next Christmas. M. K. B, Sidney, B.C.

A. The plant known as Christmas cactus is found in the wild growing in crotches of trees in hot steamy jungles and is not a desert cactus. After flowering, our plants in pots need to be watered whenever the soil becomes somewhat dry and kept in a warm room which has not too dry an atmosphere.

Repotting, if it is necessary, may be done after flowering is over, using a mixture of leafmould, sand and screened compost. A little dry fertilizer such as 6-8-6 (a level teaspoon to a six-inch pot) mixed into the soil will provide food during the next six months when the plant should make its growth. The month of October seems about right for the drying period.

Q. I would like to grow some broad beans, but never having seen them or eaten them, I am at a loss to know what part of them is eaten. There must be other people in the same situation. Will you please enlighten me? N. K., Ross Bay.

A. Broad beans are a great delicacy when grown at home. The pods are picked when the outline of the beans is well defined, the shells removed and the beans (seeds) are cooked in a small amount of rapidly boiling, slightly salted water for 10 minutes or less. Experience will soon tell you when the pods are ready to pick, and how many minutes they need to boil.

Football Giants Tangle Sunday In Super Bowl

The Super Bowl, the historic first meeting between the champion Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League and the Champion Green Bay Packers of the National League, will be broadcast by the NBC Television and Radio Networks Sunday, starting at 1 o'clock on Channels 2, 6, 7, 12.

Curt Gowdy and Paul Christman, outstanding broadcasting team of professional football, will handle the NBC-TV colorcast play-by-play and color commentary respectively. Christman played for the Packers in 1950 to cap off a brillianst career as an All-American quarterback at Missouri and a member of the "dream backfield" for the professional Chicago Cardinals.

The AFL Chiefs and NFL Packers earned the right to represent their league in the first AFL-NFL World Championship Game by winning their league championships two weeks ago. Kansas City toppled the defending AFL champion Buffalo Bills, 31-7, while Green Bay held off a last-minute Dallas Cowboy threat to win by one touchdown, 34-27.

Fine Records

The Super Bowl, the most eagerly awaited and talked-about game in the history of football, matches each league's finest representative. Both the Chiefs and Packers were the teams generally picked to lead their respective leagues. The Chiefs wound up their regular season play with 11 victories, two losses and one tie while the Packers won 12 and lost two. Both teams dominated their league All-Star selections, including quarterbacks Len Dawson of Kansas City and Bart Starr of Green Bay, each of whom led his league in passing.

Coach Hank Stram's Chiefs, offensively, rely on a varied attack and led both leagues in scoring with an average 32 points per game. The Packers are a ball control team, rely on a power ground game which permits quarterback Starr to puncture the defensive secondary with a pass completion percentage of over 62 per cent.

The Chiefs have power—they are the biggest team in pro football—with a fine ground game, air game, defence and depth. Dawson was the year's best quarterback in the AFL and his backup, Pete Breathard, is not too far behind, Rookie Mike Garrett finished second to Boston's Jim Nance in rushing. He is a swift, well-balanced explosive runner and teams well with power fullback Curtis McClinton.

Size and Power

Flanker Otis Taylor, strong youngster, is a touchdown threat every time he goes out for a pass. The Kansas City line has unusual size and power at the guards in Ed Budde and Curt Merz, with a 290-pound tackle in Jim Tyrer. The defensive line has two of the best in tackle Buck Buchanan and end Jerry Mays. The defence is bolstered bu linebackers Bobby Bell and E. J. Holub.

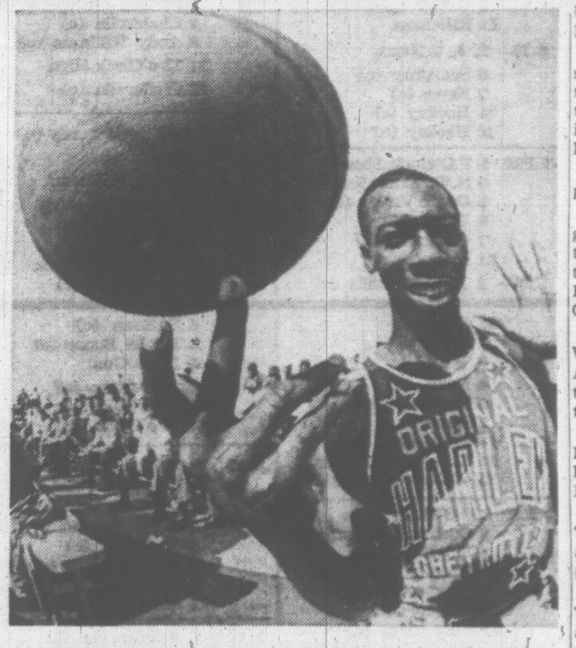
The Packers, if Starr is knocked out of acton, can bring in backup quarterback Zeke Bratkowski, and not lose quality. Starr can pass to a number of good receivers including Carroll Dale, Marv Fleming, Boyd Dowler, Max McGee and Bob Long.

Coach Vince Lombardi's Green Bay squad, in the words of Paul Christman, also has "running backs coming out of its ears." Jim Taylor and Elijah Pitts have been doing most of the damage to the opposing lines. Pitts took over at halfback for Paul Hornung when the latter suffered a pinched neck nerve midway through the season and has not been replaced through the NFL championship season. However, Hornung is available in addition to Donny Anderson and Jim Grabowski, two of the best rookie running backs in the game.

Boast Experience

Defensively, the Packers boast of a front line that has bulk and experience. Lionel Aldridge, Ron Kostlnik, Henry Jordan and Willie Davis can exert pressure on a quarterback while linebackers Dave Robinson, Ray Nitschke and Lee Roy Caffey are considered some of the best at plugging holes in the line.

T.H.E. CAT? . . . The howlingly hilarious feline behind the mask is America's No. 1 comedienne, Phyllis Diller, clowning it up as a night club "Kittycat" girl on the Phyllis Diller show Friday at 9:30 on Channel 4.



HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS will display their famed basketball skills and unique court antics against the New York Nationals in a game aboard the aircraft carrier Enterprise when the "CBS Sports Spectacular" returns for its eighth season on Channel 7, 12; on Sunday morning at 11. Hubert Ausbie is seen balancing a spinning basketball.

The Packers secondary shows two all-pros in cornerback Herb Adderley and safety Willie Wood plus two other solid players in Bob Jeter and safety Tom Brown.

The AFL-NFL world championship promise to be one of the most hard-fought contests ever played. In addition to the players husting for the glory of their respective leagues, each winning player will receive a $15,000 cheque while each losing player will get $7,500.

VICTORIA DAILY TIMES

She Only Sang In Bathtub

"I've never sung before, except in the bathtub," she said.

She spilled this bit of intelligence in view of her new singing career, the result of a recent episode on NBC-TV's "Get Smart" series colorcast Saturdays, in which she sang a couple of songs.

It all came about in typical "Get Smart" fashion.

"Sure, I'm game," said Barbara.

It's how she got into commercials, too.

There is only one problem. Nobody knew whether Barbara could sing. They asked her to audition.

"I wouldn't," she laughed. "I just said, 'I'll sing.' Why not? It all started as a gag anyway. We did the record and everyone was relatively surprised."

Including Barbara.

"When I heard how I sounded, I wanted to do it over," she said. "They wouldn't let me. I signed up for singing lessons immediately."

The record, which came out last spring, featured "Max" on one side and "99" on the flip side.

"We had such fun doing it that I said 'Yes' when they asked if I would sing on the show," said Barbara.

"I played the piano for six months, she said. "It was too beautiful to resist. I started to neglect everything else — so I went back to painting. It's quicker, and the neighbors think it's quieter. I think I'll take up the guitar next."

"I love to do a nice, low-pitched ballad," she said. "My voice teacher says I'm a lady baritone. I can sing-along-with-Mel Torme."

Barbara, who speaks rhapsodically on all subjects of interest, waxed lyrical over her singing kick.

"I'm completely relaxed when I sing," she said. "I feel boyant, like when one acts with a good actor. Depending on how inspiring the other actor is you get carried along with the performance."

Barbara hit high-C, in a figurative, baritone-manner of speaking.

"It's a great feeling, singing!" she said. "It's like getting on a bicycle — the music carries you where it goes. It's as if you and the music . . . are holding hands."

Hope Special Wednesday

Musical Special 'Cinderella' Stars Great Ginger Rogers

The Bob Hope Christmas Special, highlights of Hope's tour to entertain troops in war-torn Vietnam and U.S. military bases in the Far East, will be telecast on Wednesday at 8:30 p.m., Channels 2, 6.

The 90-minute color special follows Hope and his entertainment troupe to Vietnam, Guam, Thailand and the Philippines, showing them at each stop along their journey.

The popular comedian was making his 15th annual overseas pilgrimage to entertain American servicemen, and marking his 25th year of playing to the troops. This phase of his career began in the Second World War.

Accompanying Hope this year were comedienne Phyllis Diller, actress-entertainer Joey Heatherton, singer Anita Bryant, singer Vic Damone, the Korean Kittens (an internationally known song-and-dance trio), and Les Brown and his Band of Renown.

The 90-minute Bob Hope special will pre-empt the first half-hour of the usual CBC-TV Festival time slot on this occasion. At 10 p.m., following the Hope Christmas show, Festival will present a repeat telecast of its one-hour drama, The Spirit of the Deed, starring Amelia Hall and Mary Savidge, with special guest star Gordon Pinsent. First seen on the series last October.

'Cinderella'

It's entirely fitting that Ginger Rogers should portray the Queen in Rodgers' and Hammerstein's "Cinderella," 90-minute musical special to be rebroadcast in color Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. on Channels 7 and 12.

Off screen and on, Miss Rogers still wears the crown as one of the reigning show-business queens of the past three decades.

"I continually enjoy working," says the everlastingly beautiful actress-dancer, who has made 72 starring motion pictures, been a guest star on dozens of television shows and recently replaced Carol Channing in "Hello, Dolly!" on Broadway. "I feel that my cup is still overflowing."

Miss Rogers divides her appearances on television among shows that give her a chance to express herself as a singer, a dancer and an actress. She took the part of the Queen in "Cinderella" because she liked the idea of doing a straight dramatic part in a musical.

Her taking an acting role evokes memories of her many solid dramatic performances, including her Academy Award performance in "Kitty Foyle" in 1940.

Northwest Traveler

Two island groups, 4,000 miles apart and each about 250 miles off U.S. mainland coasts in different directions, are explored in "Gulf Islands of Canada and Nassau, Bahamas" on "Northwest Traveler" Wednesday at 7 p.m. on Channel 4, in color.

A comparison of sea life in the two areas, the adventure was filmed by Dr. Don Kruzner, Seattle, regional district superintendent of schools and veteran motion picture photographer.

Vari-colored starfish are filmed underwater in the cool, temperate waters of Canada, and on the tropical shores of the Bahamas, shiny, pastel conchs are photographed.

DONNING SERVICE uniforms Anita Bryant (left), Joey Heatherton (centre) and Miss World (Reita Faria) help to entertain troops in South Vietnam, Guam, Thailand and the Philippines during Bob Hope's annual Christmas tour of military bases.

Chamber Backs Breakaway

CHEMAINUS — A lone trustee's efforts to have Chemainus break away from Ladysmith school district has won the support of Chemainus Chamber of Commerce.

Trustee Cyril White will press a resolution asking that senior secondary students be farmed out to the neighboring school districts of Cowichan and Nanaimo.

Their opposition was the cause of a $1,000,000 referendum being defeated in November, 1965.

The chamber executive this week pledged to do eveything in its power to oppose the consolidation plan.

Stafford Andrews, chamber president, said Friday: "We view with concern the undemocratic intention of the school board to offer only the consolidation plan in a new referendum."

He said the board should be offering the chance to vote on the alternative of developing the senior secondary schools in both towns.

Mr. Andrews said the board's plan was depriving Chemainus children of having their eduction in Chemainus and imposing unnecessary travelling.

Beatty Davis, chairman of Ladysmith school board, has said trustee Whyte's separatist resolution "has no chance of success."

The board chairman says the referendum to be voted on, probably in March, "has a greatly increased chance of being approved."

School Board Virtually Family Affair

At swearing-in ceremonies for trustees Friday, Beatty Davis was made chairman while his son Howard was named a trustee.

Mr. Davis Sr. is going to need all the support—family and otherwise—he can get as he faces the controversial Chemainus breakaway coup.

'DOCTOR WRONG'

Epidemic Feared By Crofton Family

By DON DINGWALL

CROFTON—Earlier this week, Dr. Hamish Symons, director of Central Vancouver Island Health Unit, denied there is an epidemic of infectious hepatitis.

But don't try telling it to Mrs. Pat Fetchko of Crofton.

Mrs. Fetchkos' husband is in hospital with hepatitis and eight of their children are victims of the disease.

She said Friday: "The disease is spreading rapidly."

The husband in a second family which had contact is a suspected case.

Mrs. Fetchko said the health authorities concern is borne out by the fact a public health nurse has been making inquiries in the district, and compiling statistics. Mrs. Fetchko alleged the health authorities refused free gamma globulin shots to members of families which had been in contact with her own.

She said: "They were told if they wanted the shots they could pay for them." Duncan health unit confirmed Friday the blood plasma shots are in short supply, but stated the Fetchko family and others in contact received the shots.

Mrs. Fetchko said the health authorities should be more thorough in explaining necessary precautions.

She said any isolation practised by her family was voluntary and the result of their doctor's advice, and not because of any instruction from the health unit.

A nurse told Mrs. Fetchko her children could go to school "as long as they look hale and hearty."

Mrs. Fetchko insisted it is the health unit's duty to inform people of the hepatitis symptoms and the necessity for infected people to go on a fat-free high-protein diet.

She said: "The health authorities may be concerned but they are not going far enough in their responsibilities.

"If people are educated about hepatitis in the same way as they are about TB we would not have the situation of sewer bylaws being defeated."

Salvage Talks Begin

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiations between the federal government and owners of the deep sea diving vessel Pisces are under way in a bid to salvage the sunken tug Gulf Master.

The tug sank off Sechelt Wednesday with the loss of five lives.

The Pisces, a $60,000 rig designed and built in Vancouver, is capable of diving to depths of 3,000 feet. The Gulf Master is believed to be lying in 450 feet of water in the Strait of Georgia.

Don Sorte, one of the Pisces' three owners, said it would be no problem to bring the sunken tug to the surface.

He said: "We are negotiating with several parties to bring up the Gulf Master and we should have the deal concluded by Monday or Tuesday. The main interest in bringing her up is to find out why these things are sinking."

The disaster, already the subject of a preliminary Department of Transport inquiry, has highlighted considerable concern over the mounting toll of tugboat tragedies in B.C.

The Canadian Merchant Service Guild has called for an immediate public inquiry into the design, construction and sturdiness of steel-hulled tugs.

"We want assurance that our members will not be sailing on death traps," said a guild spokesman.

Cowichan Ratepayers To Get Two Bylaws

Cowichan School District today was authorized to submit two money bylaws totalling $1,161,000 to its ratepayers for building more schools, classrooms, school board office and a school for mentally retarded.

One bylaw, totalling $170,000, will be for projects in which the provincial government will not share including certain school furnishings and eight site acquistions.

The other, totalling $991,000, will be used for various school expansion projects including:

$122,000 for J. H. Boyd Primary School; $72,000 for Stanley Gadon Intermediate; $239,400 for a new primary on the south shore; $167,000 for Lake Cowichan Secondary; $40,000 for unassigned classrooms; $20,000 for two portable classrooms; $5,000 for a bus garage; $50,000 for board offices, and $16,000 for Evergreen School for mentally retarded.

MEASLES HITS SCHOOLS

NANAIMO—A measles epidemic in the Duncan-Nanaimo area has kept up to 3 per cent of the school population at home.

Reporting at a meeting of the health board, Dr. Hamish Symon said doctors in the Nanaimo area are willing to donate their time to innoculation clinics if they are set up.

In order to buy the measles vaccine in bulk, at least 1,000 children must be found who require innoculation.

Dr. Hamish said that although measles are not as dangerous as they once were there is still a danger of pneumonia, mental retardation or even death if the patient is not properly cared for.

Sooke Pensioners Can Shop for Fun

SOOKE — Shopping day will be Fun Day for district pensioners.

The pensioners, many of whom get into Sooke village only once or twice a week, have been offered the use of the community hall.

To make the best of the twice-a-week offer, pensioner Mrs. Phyllis Johnson has offered to cook lunches for the pensioners.

The lunches will be provided for a nominal charge and will be followed by card games and a chit-chat period.

Said Mrs. Johnson: "I want them to have a place to come when they are through shopping.

"They live alone and just come into Sooke to get their groceries and then go home to rough it alone."

Knuckle News Ages Man By Thousands

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Man may be older than he thinks—by some 800,000 years.

Bryan Patterson, a paleontologist at Harvard University, announced the discovery Friday. Patterson said he came upon a fossilized chunk of an upper arm bone while walking near Lake Rudolph in Kenya.

"I found it about 4 p.m. on a hot afternoon lying on the surface," he said. "I saw this thing and said 'ho-hum, another damn knuckle thing.'"

A few hundred steps later "a light went on inside my head," Patterson said, "and I thought, 'by God, this must be it.'"

It was. Special measurements showed the bone was about 2,500,000 years old—give or take 200,000 years.

Up to now, scientists have proof of man existing about 1,700,000 years ago. It is based on the discovery of man-like fragments in Tanzania several years ago by African paleontologist Louis Leakey.

HE'S NUTCRACKER MAN

Patterson said Leakey's discovery was called injanthropus, or the Nutcracker man.

After Patterson made his find in August, 1965, a Harvard computer cleared up any doubts by him and other scientists that it may have been a bone from a chimpanzee or other ape.

He said the bone structure was closer to modern man's than those of apes or even Leakey's discovery.

Professor Ernst Mayer, director of Harvard's museum of comparative zoology, said the Patterson discovery indicates that the bone is from a type of early man called Australopithecus, believed to be in the main line of man's evolution.

Leakey's find, he said, is from a branch line of man which became extinct.

The scientists have nicknamed their find HH-1 and surmise he was about five feet tall, walked erect, had human-like teeth and possessed a small brain and large jaw.

Victoria Daily Times
VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JANUARY 14, 1967—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

If success stories interest you, permit me to introduce Emile Beltgens and Jan van der Have, two Victoria area teachers who are the co-editors of a neat little wonder-book titled "School and College Agenda."

It is a student's day book, 5¼-in. wide, and a touch less than half-an-inch thick. Hard yellow covers enclose its contents, it slips easily into a jacket pocket, and it swings like a pendulum do.

The two opening pages are given over to a schedule laid out in columns for day, subject and room. Diary-type pages with plenty of space for marking down homework assignments run from September through to June's last work period, to conclude with "Happy Holidays" in blackface caps.

There's much, much more, including photographs of singers and bands currently popular with the young, hints on how to do homework, two poems by Victoria's Cyril McColgan, and such pawky page-top maxims as "Don't try to remove the fly from your friend's forehead with a hatchet."

Emile Beltgens, Java-born and a Netherlands war veteran, came to Canada in 1950. Like his partner in the enterprise, he teaches a junior secondary class.

I first heard from him when he phoned me one evening to ask whether he should sell his work outright or insist on a per-copy royalty. Before he had even finished, I was lecturing him on the folly of the first course, and urging him, if he had an interested publisher, to hang tough for a percentage contract.

That was that until, months later, Mr. Beltgens dropped in—ruddy, smiling, and with the least trace of a Dutch accent—to tell me that Toronto publishers Holt, Rinehart and Winston had taken Agenda on.

A United States edition may follow, and there's an interesting possibility of eventual United Kingdom publication.

"After all," said adaptor Beltgens, "homework difficulties are the same all over. Perhaps we can even interest Quebec in a French version."

Until last year, he explained, handbooks of this sort were to the best of his knowledge unknown in Canada, although they have been standard student equipment in Netherland schools for generations.

The idea for transplanting them to Canada was hatched in 1963 when the two educators were cutting up touches at a convention.

"It was our Dutch namecards that drew us together," said Emile Beltgens; and a fortunate meeting it has proven to be.

★

Their own version, prepared in such spare time as a teacher can afford, was turned down by 20 Eastern publishers. So with Dutch stubbornness, they arranged for local publication at their own expense.

"Then," Emile Beltgens takes up the account, "we approached I don't know how many schools and school districts. Before our book was even printed, we had orders totalling $2,700. "From May through August of 1964 we sold about 5,000 copies to schools outside the bookstore areas and to bookstores elsewhere. We were stunned."

Even so, when costs were deducted from their take, they lost money that first year.

"But this year," he added, "with our operation on a royalty basis, we can't lose."

Of Mr. Beltgen's four children, one is too young for the super-diary. You'll find poems by Victoria's Cyril McColgan among the spare-page offerings in the 1966-67 issue, but two consider it a help to them. And does the fourth use it?

"I am sorry to say he doesn't," Mr. Beltgens admitted with a rueful smile. "But he really should!"

Shuffling Through History

Queue to view choo-choo is too, too long for many Victorians who drive out to Point Ellice yard and change their minds when they see the line-up. Two to three-hour waits are common. Confederation train has been catering to capacity crowds—500 to 600 an hour—since opening. Only two-thirds of this morning's line-up is shown.

Success Swamps '67 Train Despite a Few Mutterings

By PETE LOUDON

The Confederation Train has been swamped by its own success.

Since its doors opened Monday almost 40,000 people have seen its historic exhibits.

It was built to handle a capacity of 500 viewers an hour. There has never been an hour when it hasn't been filled.

Several times, 600 an hour have squeezed through.

The line-up this morning started at 7 a.m. although the doors don't open each day until 9.

By 10 a.m. there were more than 500 inside the train and 2,000 more standing outside under a colorful garden of umbrellas.

It's been a week of frustration for the train organizers. There have been complaints at the lengthy line-ups — some people wait two hours to make the 40-55-minute tour.

There have been complaints that the elderly citizens aren't getting a viewer priority. There have been complaints that school children are not getting a priority.

●

There have been complaints because parking is inadequate. Cars are parked on every roadway in a half-mile radius. Businesses in the area have had to police their lots to make sure customers can park.

"But how could anyone know in advance what the public interest would be. There was no blueprint. Canadians are noted for their undemonstrative ways. How could anyone know?"

Train manager Jean Latremouille, 33, of Ottawa said the planners determined that the tour should last throughout the centenary of Confederation. (It ends in Montreal next Jan. 5 after visiting 83 centres.)

"If it's going to be such a success, perhaps they might repeat it," he thought.

"They are trying to give everyone a chance. But if we stayed here three more days we would be required to take three days from some other city," he pointed out.

Monday's the last day here.

"We can't extend the hours. It's open at 9 a.m. and the gates are closed at 11 p.m. It's after midnight before the last people in are out. Then it takes the cleaning staff until 3 a.m. to get it ready for next day.

He said someone commented to him that if the visitors had been paying $1 each the tour probably would pay off the national debt.

At the same time, "People who have waited three hours said it was well worth the wait."

He complimented Victoria on the fact the crowds have been well behaved. Vandalism has been minimal. Buttons have been removed from some clothing displays. And a CNR policeman reported some "idiots" with knives have cut swaths from velvet drapery backing a display of provincial crests.

But how much opportunity is there for vandalism when the would-be vandal is surrounded constantly by hundreds of other, more sensible people?

There have been only two faintings. The staff of 10 attendants — all first aiders — easily managed the emergencies.

There have been a few lost babies—quickly found—and more than a few people discomfited by a reported difficulty in locating rest rooms.

●

Train organizers believe some of the problems can be eased. Victoria, having the honor of starting the train on its trans-Canada tour had also to serve as a testing ground.

But they feel certain that if the public in other centres, such as Vancouver and Montreal are as interested, the train will continue to be swamped by visitors.

One Victoria school teacher already has fired off a protest to Ottawa over the crowding.

A school board official has submitted a formal report to the board pointing out that the school tours are not responsible for the crush.

He pointed out that one problem has been the attendance of school parties from up-Island areas which later are to be visited by the motor caravans carrying the same exhibits.

The official, R. K. Bloomfield, points out that John Fisher of the federal centennial commission said at the train opening that the train was conceived as a birthday gift to the nation's youth.

He suggested the board appeal to Victorians to give children first priority today, Sunday and Monday.

Only a third of the population of this area can possibly climb aboard while the train is here. There is only one consolation. In Vancouver it will be able to accommodate only one in 10.

INSURANCEMAN:

'Black Risk' Plan Right

Automobile insurance companies should not change their ways just to satisfy irresponsible critics, a senior insurance executive told the Royal Commission on auto insurance here Friday.

Duncan McIntosh, of Galt, Ont., vice-president of the All-Canada Insurance Federation, the industry's principal trade association, said a lot of criticism is unwarranted.

He said one source of unjustified criticism is the "black risk" driver who complains because he cannot get instant coverage through the assigned risk plan.

This is the plan operated by companies under which drivers that the companies don't want to insure are assigned in rotation among all the companies.

Mr. McInutosh said the black-record driver, who has a bad driving reputation, is like a man who has gone bankrupt three times but still expects to get a $5,000 bank loan instantly on request.

RISK DRIVERS

The commission was told the "black risk" drivers comprise only 14 per cent, a total of 4,000 out of a total of 20,000 drivers insured under the assigned risk plan. (There are about 787,000 motor vehicles in B.C.).

McIntosh was backed up by another insurance executive, Thomas O. Makin of Montreal, eastern manager for the Zurich Insurance Co., and a member of the All Canada auto committee. He said that the 4,000 black risks include many people who should not be driving at all.

Earlier the commission had been told that some drivers have such bad records of accidents and convictions that it was virtually impossible, actuarily, to translate into premium dollars the hazard that they represent.

14-DAY WAIT

McIntosh and Makin were replying to questions put by Charles C. Locke, counsel for the Insurance Agents Association of B.C. The agents have proposed to the commission that applicants to the assigned risk plan should be accepted immediately, and that they should be insured for physical damage.

At present they have to wait up to 14 days from the date of application to receive their policy. And the plan does not afford coverage for damage to the vehicle of the insured.

The commission was told that both these features might be changed in the foreseeable future.

FORMING OWN ORGANIZATION

Welfare Recipients Pan 'Degrading' System Here

By DESMOND BILL

Social welfare recipients in Greater Victoria are organizing to change the present "irrational and degrading" welfare system.

A spkeswoman for the group said this morning, "We are not looking for handouts and we are not looking for someone to champion our cause.

"We want some basic changes made but we want to bring them about by our own action."

She said part of the trouble with the present system is that it is "paternalistic. The professionals think they know what is best for the people on welfare.

LOSE PRIDE

"It is no wonder that so many of us lose our pride. The system knocks it out of you. You have to report to a case worker as if you were on parole. You are treated as if you have commited a crime because you are in a position where you need help."

NO INCENTIVES

This woman said the present system gives no incentive to welfare recipients to become self-supporting.

"Studies show that most children who grow up living on welfare will themselves end up getting social assistance. There obviously is something wrong with a system that encourages that tendency but no one seems willing to take a chance and make some changes."

She said the welfare system now is run as if it were a "payoff" for the poor.

"Society provides what it thinks is enough for you to exist on. But the way it is administered is degrading to the people who are on welfare."

She said that the proposal to build low-rental housing in the Hillside-Blanshard area is typical of the sort of fuzzy thinking that guides government agencies dealing with low-income people.

COST LESS?

"That idea of providing special housing sounds great. But just think of what will happen when a whole community of these people are brought together. And think of the stigma that will attach to anyone with that address.

"It would be far better to provide low-cost accommodation scattered throughout the area. It might even cost less, too. But no one apparently has thought about that."

To get the protest movement going a meeting has been called for 8 p.m. next Thursday in the parish hall of First United Church, 936 Balmoral.

HHOPES FOR CROWD

The movement was first suggested by persons on welfare and individual social workers who are in touch with them.

One of these professionals, Reg Clarkson of the Alcoholism Foundation, said he is hopeful there will be a good turnout of persons receiving social assistance.

He said the movement will help persons on welfare to "overcome their feelings of dependency" and will be a means of voicing the opinions of those most concerned about welfare problems.

Anyone who wants to attend the meeting but needs a free babysitter or transportation should telephone 385-0182 or 386-1901.

3,000 READY TO MARCH FOR $40,000

Three thousand Greater Victoria mothers will go on the march the evening of Feb. 1 to raise money for the Rehabilitation Foundation of B.C.

Their goal this year is $40,000.

Proceeds of the Mothers' March will go to rehabilitation services for the handicapped, sponsored by the foundation throughout the province.

Mrs. George R. Pearkes, wife of the lieutenant-governor, has been named honorary chief marching mother.

Volunteers are needed to march in the door-to-door canvass. Those available should call the Rehabilitation Foundation's Victoria headquarters at 780 Vernon, 388-5196.

BROTHERS SENTENCED TO JAIL

Two brothers who failed in a holdup bid Thursday night were each sentenced to two years in penitentiary Friday.

"There have recently been far too many footpads slinking about the streets of this city," Magistrate Ostler told Mervin and Ronald Deyotte.

"It's quite intolerable that citizens cannot linger or walk about the public streets . . . without fear of attack from predatory ruffians like you."

The brothers, who both live at 701 Connaught St., were nabbed by police near midnight Thursday, moments after they accosted Adam Schulz of 1077 Davie St. as he waited for a bus on Craigflower Road near Raynor.

Court was told Friday morning that Mervin, 25, brandished a hammer handle as though it were a pistol while Ronald, 29, looked on. Mr. Schulz fled to a nearby bakery where the staff called police.

The brothers were picked up by officers only two blocks from the scene of the holdup attempt.

It's Wild Game Until 'Eye' Back

By GLEN ALLEN

Should we build arks? Are the skies falling? Will this be the wettest January ever?

We may never know—at least not in advance.

Its absence, said Victoria weatherman Alan McQuarrie, has broken a vital link in an international weather intelligence system.

★ ★ ★

"We're more or less floundering around—almost reduced to making wild guesse," said Mr. McQuarrie.

"Even the central analysis computers in Montreal and the U.S. are running into trouble.

"There was little enough weather information from the Pacific. Now with the Stonetown off Station Papa and in port, I can't really say whether we'll get rain all next week too, or not."

But looking into his magic book, mixing a few potions, and calling on the reserves every veteran weather prophet has, Mr. McQuarrie was able to say things may soon look brighter.

"If only because with half the month over we've almost filled not only our storm sewers but our monthly quota for rain."

More than three inches of rain fell on Victoria in the first two weeks of this month.

★ ★ ★

The usual figure for the whole of January is just over four inches.

There have also been fewer hours of sunshine but higher temperatures and lower winds than are normal for January.

"I'm inclined to think we may see clear skies next week."

The Stonetown docked this morning, having served five of her normal seven-week stint on the station.

She had developed a fault in the motor which runs the power steering.

Although repairs to the Stonetown could be done in two days, her sister ship, St. Catharines, will leave Sunday morning to take her place.

And Mr. McQuarrie and those fouled-up computers back east will be in touch once more.

Bobby Gimby is obviously delighted to have his daughter, Lynn, along as his own special Girl Friday. What's more they did just that for the entire year I was with them!" (Henry Tregillas photo).

On Fairy-Tale Tour With Canadian Pied Piper

'GAL FRIDAY' SMOOTHS ROUGH EDGES

By PAT DUFOUR

Canadian children of all ages will have a Pied Piper of their own during our country's centennial year. They may not know it—yet—but they'll also have a vivacious Girl Friday.

Bobby Gimby, in specially designed Pied Piper costume, will travel the length and breadth of Canada, leading children's choirs in "Can-A-Da," the catchy tune which he composed as the country's rallying song during its 100th birthday. Travelling with him, in order to smooth the edges of his year-long junket will be his 23-year-old daughter, Lynn.

While Lynn will keep mostly in the background, she's almost as newsworthy as her trumpeter father, who's known to millions through his Happy Gang appearances, recordings and such television programs as the Juliette series.

Lynn resigned from her job as make-up artist with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation in order to take care of her father on his tour which began in Victoria this week. Her make-up skills will be brought into play when she prepares her father for television shows.

In addition to travelling across Canada, the Canadian Pied Piper and his Girl Friday will also have to be prepared to take a few lengthy side-trips. Lynn reports, "So far, we know we have to go to New York, Hollywood and Miami. Now, they tell us we're wanted in Labrador and several of the universities are asking for appearances. I guess our schedule will have to be pretty flexible to fit everybody in."

How do you go about carving a career as a make-up artist in Canada?

LEARNED WITH EASE

In Lynn's case it was comparatively easy. "When Dad was on the Juliette show, Miss Winifred Walker was the make-up artist. She taught me everything I know." But, in case you feel it's a relatively simple profession to jump into, Lynn warns that she waited a year before she landed her first job. And, when you're 18, a year can seem like a century!

"I've just finished a film for the National Film Board which runs for two hours and 20 minutes. It stars the American actor, Ed Begley. At the beginning of the film, I had to make him up to look 35 and gradually age him as the story developed. Considering that he's in his 60s, I figured that this was quite a challenge."

Her 2½ years with CBC isn't the only make-up job to draw the interest of this versatile young woman.

When her parents decided to spend a stint in Europe after Bobby Gimby finished with the Juliette show, Lynn went along too.

She spent a year in London, England, as make-up artist with a well-known tobacco manufacturer, helping out with their world-circulated commercials. She's proud of the fact that she landed the job a little while before her father was taken on by the same company.

IT'S HER VOICE

Bobby Gimby's skill as a trumpeter is more in the public eye than his ability to compose commercials. Lynn let me in on a little secret. Hers is the little girl's voice that often woos us in some of his catchy jingles. I've made a mental note to listen to the next one, instead of making a beeline for the kitchen and a snack as is my usual custom.

In addition to the flexing of her vocal chords, Lynn has inherited more of her father's musical skill, this time as a pianist. But, she drew the line at learning to play the trumpet.

"Dad was quite disappointed. I had buck teeth and he'd have saved himself a fortune in dentists' bills if I'd taken up the horn. It's ideal for straightening the teeth!"

While Bobby Gimby and his daughter are pacing the centennial circuit, Lynn's mother will be at home in Toronto, carving (or perhaps, I should say snipping) her own career. She's a barber.

MOM'S NO 'SQUARE'

Lynn is equally proud of both her parents. "Mom looks younger than I do. She decided to take up barbering after she became fed up with the 'square' hair styles that some men never seem able to get away from."

Lynn and her father hope to "play hooky" a few times during centennial year so that they can sneak a few hours with her in Toronto. "After all, we're a pretty average family, we like being together."

Some might dispute Lynn's rating of her family as average. The versatility of their talents seems as varied as the places which she and her father will visit this year. But Lynn persists, "Never underestimate Canadians, most of them have a lot on the ball. That's what makes us the country we are."

You win, Girl Friday. With conviction like yours, your paternal Pied Piper will undoubtedly raise more than the sound of children's voices as you both step out on your year-long birthday visit.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Your Youngster Can't Lose These Mittens

By PENNY SAVER

My mother is one woman who claims that there is nothing quite like the good old safety pin. With an ounce of feminine ingenuity, the safety pin can be used for literally hundreds of things. One of my earliest recollections of safety pins and their uses is remembering Mother fastening mittens to my coat sleeves on cold winter mornings before I went to school. Pins or no pins. I somehow managed to lose, at the very least, one pair of mittens every winter.

If you have the same problem with youngsters in your household, you should have a look at the mittens I found in one shop. These Canadian-made mittens are of high bulk orlon wool to keep young hands warm in the coldest of weather. The "safety" feature is a wool cord that runs from one mitten to the other through the youngster's jacket. These mittens come in small, medium and large sizes and price is 98 cents the pair. They come in white with pink and blue designs, or in pink or blue with white designs. They're all hand-finished too.

Wherever there's a tot, you're bound to find a great liking for stuffed toys. The animals I saw in this shop will keep any child amused for hours, especially on rainy days when it's too cold for him to play outdoors. The most unusual toy I saw was a hippopotamus. His "skin" is a soft, furry white covering, with colorful green and brown designs on it. His wide open mouth is covered with red felt. This creature sells for $3.98.

Tall giraffes made with the same furry covering are also priced at $3.98. If one of your youngsters is having a birthday soon, pick up one of these toys.

Speaking of birthdays, my neighbor's three-year-old is invited to a party for one of the youngsters down the block. We went shopping together for a new suit for her young man. We found the most adorable plaid pants selling for $5.50. The matching shirt comes for $4.95. A bow tie to complete the set is priced at 50 cents. He looks like the perfect young gentleman in this outfit.

VICTORIA GIRL EXPO HOSTESS

A young Victoria woman has been selected to go to Montreal as one of 200 hostesses from all over Canada who will be assisting at Expo '67. Miss Maria Fauchoux, 1161 Chapman Street, is one of 14 British Columbians who will be leaving shortly for the east to take an extensive 10-week training course before the exposition opens.

A former Victorian, Miss Tamara Leiven, who now makes her home in Paris, France, is already on her way to Montreal for the course which includes instructions in grooming and deportment, protocol, etiquette, handling of visitors, first aid, and complete information about Expo.

The course also reviews Canadian history, geography and economy. During the exposition, hostesses will be responsible for information kiosks at various central points throughout the grounds, will assist visitors and escort special guests and press representatives, and will act as guides in Expo theme buildings.

ROYAL 'FIRST'

Margaret Will Mark Centennial at Ball

LONDON (CP) — Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, will attend the Canadian Centennial Ball to be held in London April 18, it was announced today, making this the first royal occasion of Canada's 100th birthday celebrations.

The ball, planned as a British curtain-raiser to Montreal's Expo 67, opening April 28, is being organized by the Canadian Women's Club and six other Canadian associations in London. Part of the proceeds, after donations to charities, will provide a scholarship for a Canadian student at a British university as a perpetual reminder of Centennial Year.

Described by the organizers as the most ambitious all-Canadian event ever staged in London, the ball will feature eight topline Canadian entertainers in a stage show produced by Norman Campbell of the CBC.

Vancouver-born Bernard Braden, a noted personality on British television, will be master of ceremonies of the show.

Artists taking part are Monique Layrac, rated Canada's leading chanteuse; singer Shirley Harmer; comedienne Libby Morris and singer Juliette, both natives of Winnipeg, folk-singers Malka and Joso of Toronto and baritone Joseph Rouleau of Covent Gardens opera.

The all-Canadian menu and wine list will include a specialty from each province, such as roast beef from Alberta; rolls made from Saskatchewan flour; sherry and sparkling white wine, vegetables and cheese from Ontario; maple syrup and cheese from Quebec; West Coast salmon and East Coast lobster.

Dean To Make Houses Homes

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Barbara McLaren, dean of the University of Toronto's faculty of food sciences, is one of seven Ontario and Quebec home economists and dietitians who are going north to help Eskimos turn houses into homes, it was announced this week.

They are to give special education to prepare Canada's northern citizens for a new way of life in modern, government-provided houses. The houses are being rented to Eskimos with the option of sale.

Electricity, oil furnaces and tile floors, among other things, are new to the Eskimos.

In many cases, the homemaking experts may have to use interpreters.

The two faces of (Madam and) Eve! . . .

What? . . . You thought the Madam and Eve Shop was strictly for your mod-mad, teenage daughter . . . more Eve than Madam? . . . Well, perhaps so, for awhile. But we assure you things are changing fast . . . and we're downright excited about it! . . . Last Monday we got a preview of some of the new styles M & E will be selling from here on in . . . the beginnings of "great things to come," we were assured with contagious enthusiasm . . . They're young and colorful but far from kookie . . . gay, sparkling fashions for you as well as your daughter! . . . Wonderfully tailored pant-suits, most of which come equipped with skirts so you can be either daring or demure as mood or occasion dictates . . . Oatmeal, Kelly green, raspberry . . . Crease-resistant juttah cloth dresses are excitingly styled . . . one in lime green, with plain front . . . has all the interest, including gold buttons . . . at the back . . . There's a gold wool dress with front pleats at the bottom . . . intriguing twisted cloth buttons . . . And here's something we consider tremendous . . . a blue raincoat with spectacular multi-colored diamond pattern lining, big matching scarf and umbrella . . . and the whole works just $36 . . . It's a stunner, and enough to make the owner pray for rain! . . . Madam and Eve Shop, Trounce, 383-7177.

Right now we just can't warm up to the idea of sleeveless coats which are so prominent in the New York collections for spring.

Treasures to take on your trip . . .

One of the few things we like about January is seeing the new resort clothes for cruising, and fun-under-the-sun generally . . . Cheers us up, even while exciting our envy of you lucky women who are off to Hawaii or Mexico or the Caribbean or Palm Springs! . . . Wilson's have just received a shipment of resort clothes you mustn't miss looking at . . . Liberty cotton dresses with a silky texture . . . cool and colorful and styled with that well-bred simplicity affected by the true sophisticate . . . One we like is sleeveless with cuffed neckline . . . a lovely print in which green and apricot predominate . . . Another print has a double pleat in front of the A-line skirt . . . low square neckline . . . brown, turquoise and violet in the pattern . . . and a similiar dress with a smaller design has the same colors plus green . . . There's a short-sleeved frock with flattering cowl neck . . . quite exotic colors, but not flashy . . . Another with the rich hues of a Hawaiian sunset . . . Knits with the resort look are very handsome and practical . . . A two-piece suit has navy and white striped blazer, navy skirt . . . also comes in tan and white . . . There's a smart white knit dress with French blue Chanel jacket . . . size 16 . . . A navy knit dress with white stripes down one side looks very slimming . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

We've known for some time that the Handloom had ordered Aran yarns from Ireland . . . but they were so long in coming we'd almost given up hope . . . Well, at last they're here . . . creamy white yarn, either oiled or scoured . . . to make up into those wonderful fisherknit sweaters most of us covet madly (but which some of us can't afford to buy when they're knit by the ladies in Ireland!) . . . Handloom have fisherknit patterns and directions too . . . pullovers and cardigans for men, women and children in several styles . . . age-old patterns which have been handed down for generations on the Aran Isles . . . And here's even bigger news: Handloom now has kits of colored Aran wool with Donegal tweed skirt lengths . . . Pink, gold, blue, brown yarn . . . with the loveliest complimentary tweed mixtures . . . Kit includes instructions for cardigan or pullover . . . As far as we know, there's never been colored Aran yarn in Victoria before . . . so go see the kits at the Handloom . . . Still on the subject of Aran . . . if your man would like a fisherknit pullover and you're not up to knitting it yourself, there are some very handsome ones imported from Ireland at Handloom . . . each signed with the name of the knitter . . . Handloom, 18 Centennial Square, 384-1011.

Expect to see plenty of bright, vibrant color in the new clothes for spring. Yellow and orange will be much in evidence.

A liberal education in fine furniture . . .

We know people who make a point of dropping in to the Gallery at Home Furniture periodically . . . just to feast their eyes on really beautiful traiditional furniture . . . then when they need a new piece for their own home, they know exactly what they want and where to get it . . . New imported pieces are arriving constantly . . . many of them ordered months ago . . . There's a striking group of three tables . . . 62" long cocktail table, six-sided lamp and chair-side tables, in carved oak . . . the carved tops covered with glass . . . Just $385 for the group . . . and you can have a lovely interior lighted curio cabinet in the same carved oak to go with the tables . . . These are just different enough to be conversation-making . . . We saw other new tables too . . . clear plate glass tops with antique gold or antique white base and legs . . . One is a round cocktail table (40" diameter) . . . also a smaller one . . . and a chairside table with black base . . . Very interesting-looking tables, these . . . Several handsome secretaires . . . mahogany or walnut with three or four drawers under the drop-front desk (not to mention the "secret" drawers to keep your love letters in!) . . . Home Furniture Company, 825 Fort St., 382-5138.

Norman Norell fetched the night-shirt from the bedroom and made it into short formals.

DEAR ABBY . . .

It's Best for All —Let 'Them' Talk

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My wife's widowed mother has made her home with us for the past 22 years. She was not a built-in babysitter for our children, neither was she a servant. (Fortunately we have always had help.) I will not say my wife and her mother get along "famously" — they had their differences, but my wife always deferred out of respect. I never interfered.

Lately my mother-in-law's mind has been affected, and her health is failing. She has made such a madhouse out of our home that our teen-age children can no longer have their friends over. My wife and I have discussed putting her mother in a fine rest home, but my wife's only worry is, "What will people say if I send my own mother away to be cared for by strangers?" If you have a comment on this, I would like to see it in print.

SILENT IN EUGENE

DEAR SILENT: Elderly people who pose a problem in the homes of their children, should, for their own sake as well as for their children's, be cared for in a rest home, if possible. Of all the reasons for refusing to send her, "What will people say" is by far the poorest.

DEAR ABBY: I am the secretary of a man who employs 22 people. He planned a dinner party at his home to honor a retiring employee and he set the date for Friday. One woman spoke up and said if the party were to be on a Friday he should postpone it until after the first of December so everybody could eat meat! A few others joined in and agreed with her. My employer and his wife entertain graciously and I am sure they would have made ample provisions for those who couldn't eat meat on Friday. (Maybe they planned on serving fish to everyone for all I know!)

Anyway, my boss was so disgusted he abandoned the idea of the party, and he and his wife entertained the man alone and bought him an expensive gift.

Now the employees are miffed. They feel that the boss promised them a party and he "cheaped out." What is your opinion?

GIRL FRIDAY

DEAR GIRL: I think your boss was unfair to have punished all the employees for the boorishness of a few. Now those employees who wish to pick a bone with him, have their choice of fish or meat — any day in the week.

DEAR ABBY: The letter written by "RECENT WIDOW" could have been written by me for I am also a recent widow who resents being given condolence in public places by people who never got around to sending me a note or paying a call. But I would have added this: What on earth is wrong with people who say to a grieving widow, "Well, Annie, how are you doing?"

I fight the urge to reply, "How would you be doing if you were in my shoes?"

How much better it would be if these thoughtless people would just take my hand and say, "I am glad to see you." When they ask me how I am doing I want to break right down and cry.

NOT DOING VERY WELL

New York Mayor a 'Hit' with Fashion Patter

Times' fashion editor is presently in New York, having made the trip to cover the showings of the New York Couture Group. Here, she gives another glimpse of fashions that will make the headlines in the seasons to come.

NEW YORK — Would you believe John V. Lindsay, mayor of New York, as a stand-up comedian in the Persian Room of the Plaza Hotel? As a surprise for the fashion writers attending the 48th New York Couture Group fashion showings, Sears, Roebuck and Company invited this city's handsome, volatile mayor to meet the fashion press. For 15 minutes he captivated every person in the room with his off-the-cuff patter on current fashions.

Sear's lively fashion presentation certainly proved that you don't have to have a Paul Getty fortune to join the 1967 fashion explosion. Everything from teensy bikinis to sheer evening culottes carried a price tag of less than 30 dollars. All the fresh new looks and all the blazing new colors were included in the lively fast-moving show.

Nona

Tony Sandler and Ralph Young who are the current entertainers at the Persian Room gave us an hour-long show. These two presentable comedians, whose great success is just a year old, have appeared several times on the Ed Sullivan show.

Larry Aldrich, past president of the New York Courture Group, commentated his own delightful show. His is a collection for the elegant sophisticated woman with poise who wished to maintain a young contemporary spirit without being avante garde. All the sharp color combinations and great color smashes are included, but beautifully cut side-buttoned coats and coat dresses really bespeak the Larry Aldrich label.

Really new is the kimono dress, probably one of the season's most significant silhouettes. It has a broad top and pencil slim skirt . . . something like a billowy, upturned kite. In wild, wonderful print, or in silk crepe, it is a "look!"

Adolph Klein, the president of Townley Incorporated, is also the new president of the Couture Group. Mr. Klein commentated the collection designed by Chuck Howard for Townley.

Twin worsted coats, silk raincoats and daytime costumes were designed with Mr. Howard's typically flavorful American expression but, when the night lights begin to twinkle, his Arabian Nights flavor brings forth some of the prettiest, most feminine and exotic colors and shapes in the whole fashion strata of today.

"Born Free" . . . and meant to keep their owners that way are the leopard spotted creations that opened the Originala collection. Almost the crisp texture of canvas and weatherproof, the fabric is used in a whirl of a collarless tent coat . . . a dashing tightly-belted trench coat and a one-piece knee-length pant suit, topped by a tailored jacket. Coffee-brown wool was used in suits, costumes and coats. . . usually combined with milk-white buttons.

This big color explosion we keep hearing about has struck in more ways than one. I had been invited by Pierre Henri, one of New York's cleverest hair stylists to come to Saks Fifth Avenue and have my hair done. They gave me a brilliant tangerine cotton smock to wear . . . other customers had shocking pink or a lively cocoa color. The girl operators in the salon were all in jersey shifts in the maddest possible print . . . the whole scene was so bright and gay that I am sure it must make one's place of work a happy place to be.

INSIDE CITY HALL

Province Stands Still For One Man

By JIM HUME

Mayor Hugh Stephen says he isn't to worried about the failure of the provincial government to sign the agreement which will provide the green light for the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal scheme.

Hume

I can only hope that his lack of fear is justified.

The gentlemen who work beneath the statue of Captain George Vancouver have never been known for speedy decisions. Procrastination has ever been the watchword.

But the delay in writing a letter of consent to the city has now gone beyond justifiable time limits.

Mayor Stephen, possibly trying to be the nice fellow during his first few months in understandable because deputy minister of municipal affairs J. Everett Brown is on vacation and he, doubling as housing commissioner for the province, must sign the letter.

Even Charlie Brown might be justified in a "good grief" on that. Surely the wheels of government do not grind to a halt when just one man is absent from those hallowed halls.

They do? Ah, well, and so we learn something each passing day.

But, seriously, Mr. Brown (that's J. Everett) will be back on duty Monday morning. That should mean that city hall will get an affirmative reply on Wednesday.

In the meantime let it be generally known that some department heads at city hall do not share Mayor Stephen's confidence.

They feel the delay in the written commitment is, to date, uncalled for. And they fear that authorities higher than a deputy minister on vacation are responsible for the lack of the much-needed letter of intent.

For the record, the government has (1) assured the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation that it approves the scheme; (2) has verbally assured, via Minister of Municipal Affairs Dan Campbell at the opening of Bastion Square, that it will approve the scheme.

And (3) has failed to date to put in writing the approval necessary before work can commence.

* * *

Just in case city officials haven't already noticed, March of this year marks the 100th anniversary of the establishment of Victoria as the capital of British Columbia.

It wasn't easy, persuading the legislature (when was it?) that New Westminster was a doomed community while Victoria was the ever burgeoning centre of population.

The vote (13 to 8) was clinched when Victoria boosters promised, cross their hearts, that the move was only temporary and they pledged that when the population of the Interior outgrew the population of Victoria they would solidly support the transfer of the capital back to the mainland.

Suitable ceremonies will undoubtedly be held—without the pledge being renewed, please.

Incentive Pay Scales Planned for Reserves

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's 30,285-member reserve forces will be assigned specific duties to back up the regular forces, Maj.-Gen. Michael Dare said Friday.

The deputy chief of reserves at Canadian Forces headquarters said in an interview that this plan, to come into effect Jan. 1, 1968, will replace the reserves' general training program.

At that time, he added, a new reserves pay scale based on an incentive system will be introduced. The reserves now comprise 26,544 militiamen, 2,900 naval reservists and 841 air force reservists.

Gen. Dare presented the plan to the Conference of Defence Associations, a group representing all reserve components which meets here annually in closed session.

AMENDMENTS

Brig. George B. Robertson of Halifax, conference chairman, said the associations generally agree with the plan with only some minor amendments.

Its key feature will be that selected army reserve units from the armored, infantry, artillery, signals, engineers and other corps will train with Mobile Command with modern command equipment.

This means that the reserves will not have to be outfitted with heavy equipment which, in any case, they would have difficulty maintaining.

Gen. Dare said the reserves are not being reorganized but are being given more realistic duties.

The reserves will be divided into the ready reserve, Canadian regional reserve and Mobile Command reserve.

EARMARKED

Ready reserve will comprise selected individuals who will be earmarked for regular force units to fill specific positions in an emergency.

Examples are staff officers, radar and intelligence specialists and medical, dental and legal personnel. Personnel in the navy reserve will be almost entirely assigned to this group. Those selected will be able to train with the regular forces for up to 14 days at any time of the year they choose.

The regional reserve will comprise units of the reserve army and RCAF auxiliary whose jobs are directly related to the defence of Canada, including internal security and civil emergency operations.

The Mobile Command reserve will provide a training organization from which the command will be able to draw reinforcements. Units will be selected on a competitive basis and will train annually with the command, using regular force equipment.

Navy reserve headquarters at Hamilton will be moved to Ottawa during the coming summer and the reserve will come under the command of the director-general reserves at Canadian Forces headquarters.

The RCAF auxiliary for now remains under command of Air Transport Command at Trenton, Ont.

In the army reserve, five of the existing district headquarters will be redesignated regional headquarters and be commanded by regular force officers. They are at Vancouver, Winnipeg, Oakville, Ont., Quebec City and Halifax.

Each of the other seven will be headed by a reserve force colonel with a regular force staff.

U.S. Planning Second Look At Moon Sites

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said today a camera-equipped spacecraft will be launched next month to take a sharper look at the most promising potential landing sites on the moon.

Lunar Orbiter III will carry the wide-angle and telephoto cameras as it whirls around the moon scanning only the most promising of the potential Apollo spacecraft landing sites photographed by Lunar Orbiters I and II.

NASA tentatively scheduled the new launch, from Cape Kennedy, Fla., for Feb. 3, or the four days following.

"Unike the earlier flights which represented mainly a site search in the zone of the moon in which Apollo landings are planned, this will be a site confirmation mission," said Clifford H. Nelson, project manager at NASA's Langley Research Centre, Hampton, Va.

Of 13 primary and 17 secondary sites that have been photographed by the two spacecraft, Nelson said about 10 look especially promising.

ISSUES PHOTOS

NASA made public Friday more than 30 photographs taken by Lunar Orbiter II in late November. Among the new pictures was one showing the whitish crater left when Ranger VIII plunged into the moon two years ago, and another showing the trail, one-third of a mile long, left by a 40-foot-wide rock that had rolled from a crater rim down a slope to the crater's level interior.

The latter picture, particularly, was considered a good indication that the moon's surface has considerable bearing strength and in some areas at least can support the weight of a spacecraft and its crew.

Dr. Leonard Reiffel of NASA's office of manned space flight said scientists are looking for smooth oval areas three to five miles in diameter, with a 30-mile-long approach area clear of mountains or craters that might interfere with the spacecraft's radio altimeter.

Dr. Lawrence C. Royan, head of the geological survey team that is working on the project Apollo site selection, said one particular site looked favorable in photographs from both Orbiter missions. It is in the Sinus Medii area, in the centre of the moon just above the equator.

FIRST WITH THE NEWS —THE INSIDE STORY?

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — The San Diego state college newspaper, the Daily Aztec, devoted an issue last November to marijuana and LSD, concluding there was widespread student use of both drugs.

Friday, Bonni Jo Bilyeu, 21, the newspaper's editor during the fall term, was arraigned on suspicion of smuggling $4,000 worth of marijuana across the Mexican border.

Leap to Safety Fails for Four

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—An apartment building was swept by fire Friday night, killing four children in one family. Seven persons were hurt.

The children, ranging in age from three to eight, suffocated. Twenty persons leaped from the three-storey building.

Doris Demore, mother of the four victims, was in another apartment while her children were in the third-floor suite. She smelled the smoke.

"My children, my children!" she screamed. But she was driven back by the flames.

Killed were her three daughters and a son: Evelin, about 8, Mathel, 7, Gwendolyn 4, and William, 3.

J. Stadamire, building superintendent, said 10 families, 28 children and 13 adults lived in the building.

There were individual acts of heroism as motorists stopped on the busy street and reacted quickly.

Two detectives, Russell Sabat and Robert Tonne, said they caght 12 to 15 persons jumping from the building, including two infants dropped by a girl from the third floor.

John Pusker, 43, a mailman, was driving by when he saw the flames. He climbed to the second floor and dropped three children into the arms of passersby.

HEAR SCREAMS

John Appling was driving by with three friends, including Specialist Richard Brooks, home on emergency leave from Vietnam. They saw Shirley Reed, mother of seven, screaming for help.

"First we ran to the window where the little boy was hanging from the ledge," Appling said. "We told him to hold on until we got there, but he slipped off and we couldn't catch him."

Appling said he and Brooks locked arms and caught three other children as they jumped from the third floor.

LAW CHEATS INDIAN, SAYS CHURCH BOARD

TORONTO (CP) — The board of evangelism and social service of the United Church of Canada says Canadian Indians are being cheated of their traditional rights by federal law.

"The government of Canada promised our Indian people free hunting and fishing rights," Rev. J. R. Hord, secretary of the board, said in a statement this week.

"The Migratory Birds Convention Act should not supersede prior treaties with the Indians. The fining of Indians for hunting and fishing out of season is a clear breach of faith with our Indian people."

The board appointed Rev. A. G. A. McCurdy, associate secretary, and Alfred Best, Q.C., to join a delegation of the Ontario Indian Association which will present a brief to the federal government Thursday about hunting and fishing rights.

Youth Walks, Eats Regular Meals After Month

Kidney Transplant Successful

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Alvin Altop, 17, is "doing as well as can be expected" with the life-saving kidney he received last month from the body of a young traffic victim.

Officials at Children's Hospital said the boy is listed in satisfactory condition, but no longer is under intensive care and is allowed to walk and eat regular meals.

A month ago, before the transplant, doctors held little hope for Altop's survival. A victim of progressive kidney failure, he he was in critical condition.

But Dec. 23, doctors transplanted a kidney from the body of Nancy Hancock, a nine-year-old Columbus girl killed in a traffic accident, and began weeks of waiting to see if the new kidney would work.

The transplant team was essentially the same one that made a successful kidney transplant last June on Linden Loehner, 11, of Lancaster.

Altop, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Robinson, had suffered kidney failure before and had been in hospital several times. He was last admitted four weeks before the transplant and had been using an artificial kidney.

PANEL AIRS RELIGION IN SCHOOLS

A Look at Them All?

Should all religions be studied in British Columbia's public schools?

The question will be debated at a panel discussion in the War Amputees Hall, 1610 Oak Bay Avenue, Sunday at 8 p.m.

The discussion is being sponsored by the Humanist Fellowship of Victoria.

"Many teachers and clergymen are in favor of comparative religious teaching in public schools," said Lloyd Brereton, a member of the fellowship's executive.

"I personally am in favor of it providing all religions are taught and the study of Humanism is included."

The panel will discuss the merits of teaching such religions as Bhuddism, Hinduism, Confucianism, Humanism, Unitarianism and all Christian faiths.

Two Victoria students — Arthur Warren of Victoria Senior Secondary and Miss Leslie Woodland of Oak Bay Senior Secondary — will take part in the discussion.

Others will be Macdonald Burbidge, assistant professor of education at Simon Fraser University; Peter Bunn, chairman of Greater Victoria School Board, and Canon Hilary Butler, canon-lecturer at Christ Church Cathedral.

Two Victoria school teachers, David Reimer and Miss Mary McDonald, will also participate in the discussion, with Mr. Brereton as moderator.

'Uniformity of Worship Would Be Deadly'—Cleric

By NORMAN CRIBBENS, Times Church Editor

Christians should walk and talk together, but there is no reason why they should lose their identity as members of different church denominations.

"We need unity of purpose, not uniformity of worship," says Rev. Bruce Molloy, newly-inducted associate minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Victoria.

A uniform church with a uniform kind of worship would be deadly. It is natural that different forms should appeal to people of different temperaments.

"The Anglican form is as important to our Christian community as the Roman Catholic, the United and the Presbyterian, and I would hate to see anyone of them disappear.

"Variety is a good thing. Division is another. To be faithful to Christ, we must strive to understand and appreciate each other's ideas."

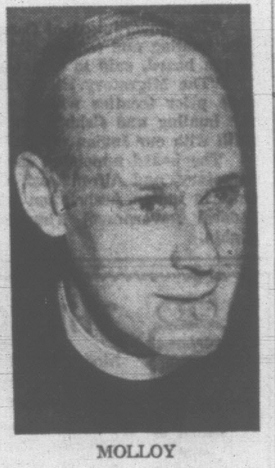
TOLERANCE

Following this line of thought, Mr. Molloy thinks many Christain churchmen should be more tolerant of Evangelist Billy Graham.

"It is easy to jibe and say his appeal is emotional. The truth is Dr. Graham is doing a better job in his own particular field than any of us.

"There is a definite place for this kind of evangelism and it should harmonize with the work of the churches, not conflict with it."

Born at Sydney, Australia, Mr. Molloy first came to Victoria in 1960 and was assistant minister at St. Andrew's from 1960 to 1962.



MOLLOY
. . . unity of purpose

From 1962 to 1966, he was minister of St. John's Presbyterian Church, Toronto. He returned to Victoria recently as associate minister of St. Andrew's in partnership with Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean, DD.

"It's what we call a collegiate ministry," Mr. Molloy said, "but Dr. McLean is, of course, the senior minister."

Mr. Molloy was inducted as associate minister of St. Andrew's last week after the appointment had been approved by the Victoria presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

FLYING DOCTOR

Following service with the Royal Australian Air Force in 1944 and 1945, he studied arts, law and theology at the University of Sydney, Australia.

He then volunteered for chaplain service in the Flying Doctor country of New South Wales — an area of some 80,000 square miles. From his headquarters at Bourne, he flew to lonely settlements and co-operated with medical men in ministering to the sick and injured.

"It was a great experience in human relations," he said, "and I don't regret any part of it."

Since coming to Canada, Mr. Molloy has served on presbytery and assembly committees, and is a member of the Inter-Church Relations Committee.

He has represented the Presbyterian Church in Canada at the North American consultation on Church Union at Lexington in 1965 and at Dallas in 1966.

'BRIGHT FUTURE'

"I believe there is a bright future for the ecumenical movement," he said. "It is true that many Presbyterian churches declined to join the United Church of Canada when it was formed in 1925.

"But there is a close fellowship between the Presbyterian and United Church and both have contributed substantial leadership to the Canadian Council of Churches."

Mr. Molloy is now awaiting his thesis examination for the degree of Master of Theology at the University of Toronto. Meantime, he has taken up residence in Victoria with his wife, Barbara, and their children Kathy, 8, and Andrew, 22 months.

"We are very happy to be back," he said.

Lesson in 'Life'

"Life" is the subject of this week's lesson-sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches on Sunday.

"Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live: and so the Lord, the God of hosts, shall be with you as ye have spoken."

This reference from Amos will be the golden text.

Bus Dedication

A new bus dedicated to Victoria and Vancouver Island Multiple Sclerosis Society will be dedicated at St. George the Martyr Anglican Church, Cadboro Bay, Sunday at 3 p.m. It is the gift of Mrs. Elisa Fielding, 1420 Beach Drive, who made her donation through Victoria Cosmopolitan International Service Club.

Full Program At Sidney End of Month

Membership in the new Silver Threads Centre at Sidney, which opened last Monday, has already reached 55.

Card games, sing-songs and discussion groups similar to those at the main centre in Victoria are in full swing at St. Paul's United Church Hall, Malaview Street, Monday through Thursday from 1 to 4 p.m.

Beginning next week, concerts will be held every Monday at 1:30 p.m. Arts and handicrafts lasses, to be held four days a week, will begin towards the end of January.

They will include leather work, basketry, copper work, pastels and painting.

"There is a happy atmosphere in the new centre," Frank Allen, vice-president of Victoria Silver Threads, said today, "and we know it will serve a useful purpose in Sidney."

St. Paul's United Church has offered its church hall rent-free and is sharing overhead expenses. The expansion at Sidney is part of the decentralization of Victoria's overcrowded centre at 4 Centennial Square.

COSMIC consciousness will be the sermon topic of Dr. Douglas Alcorn, psychiatrist, theologian and philosopher, at the Unitarian Church of Victoria Sunday at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. and Thursday at 6:30 p.m. The church meets in the Servetus Hall, 106 Superior Street.

'ECUMENICAL ENTHUSIASM'

Deviations Worry Bishops

TORONTO (CP)—Bishops of the Anglican Church of Canada have voiced concern over deviations from church discipline and practice arising out of "ecumenical enthusiasm."

The church has played an important role in bringing about a relaxation of tensions that for centuries kept Christianity divided, they say.

But they emphasize that negotiations with other churches have union and full communion as their objective and until this is attained Anglican clergy and laity should observe canonical laws and regulations.

In connection with marriages of Anglicans and non-Anglicans the House of Bishops has reaffirmed that Anglican clergy may accept invitations to participate in services in other communions provided that no breach of the matrimonial discipline of the Anglican Church of Canada is involved.

The House of Bishops says it recognizes that the instruction on mixed marriages issued in Rome last March represents a real effort by the Roman Catholic Church to solve some of the problems involved in this difficult question. However, the bishops feel that the instruction does not really succeed in meeting the Anglican viewpoint.

DEFINE PRIEST'S ROLE

Therefore, in the case of a marriage in a Roman Catholic church involving an Anglican who has given a pre-nuptial undertaking respecting the nurture of children in the Roman Catholic faith, the participation of an Anglican priest is not permitted. Such participation, by the terms of the Rome decree, is limited to a post-service exhortation and word of goodwill. If the Anglican party to the marriage has made no pre-nuptial agreement, the regulation does not apply and each case must be dealt with individually.

At the marriage of an Anglican and a member of another communion in an Anglican church, a non-Anglican priest or minister may be invited to assist, reading from the Anglican marriage service such prayers as are generally allowed by diocesan bishops.

To meet increasing pressures for inter-communion and to regularize practices that have developed in some churches, the Anglican House of Bishops has modified regulations concerning the administration of holy communion to unconfirmed persons. The bishops stipulate, however, that Anglican clergy are not authorized to issue any open invitation to holy communion.

LIST IS LIMITED

The new ruling, to be used by diocesan bishops at their discretion, would permit holy communion to be administered to the following baptized persons of other communions:

Isolated communicants who have no regular opportunity of receiving the sacrament from their own ministers; staff members and pupils in hostels, boarding schools and colleges where there is a chapel in which the eucharist is celebrated; staff and inmates or patients of institutions in which there is an Anglican chaplaincy; Christian people gathered together for dialogue and prayer for the unity of Christendom; tourists and travellers attending Anglican churches; members of families, some non-Anglican, who on special occasions wish to receive holy communion together.

Generally speaking, Anglican clergy do not refuse communion to any baptized persons, but in some cases they inquire into the communicant status of individuals.

New Breed Cleric Organizing Union

By TERRY McINNES

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rev. Lester Kinsolving has little patience with what he calls injustice and pettiness in his church and has organized a clergy's union to change things.

The 39-year-old Episcopal Anglican priest, the son of a bishop, is one of a new breed of clergymen who work outside the traditional job of shepherding a flock in an assigned parish.

"Rather," he says in an interview, "it is a vocational association modelled after the American Bar Association or the American Association of University Professors."

He writes a weekly religious column for the San Francisco Chronicle, works as a reporter for the newspaper, campaigns for reforms in California's abortion laws and is president of the new priests' association.

"There are many causes for the association to fight for," he says, "because the church is analogous to a large corporation with 10,000 graduate executives and no personnel department."

"Widows of priests are paid one millionth of the fund's total assets per month," the priest says. The fund, Kinsolving says, totals $160,000,000 and pensioners "receive an average of $153 a month."

"The church pension fund is operated in a manner approved by the general church convention," says Bishop John E. Hines, leader of the church's clergymen. "Some church institutions are subject to criticism by people who think they can run them better."

Bishop Hines has described Kinsolving's association as "outside the nature of the church."

OUT IN COLD

Kinsolving also wants pensions for female relatives who serve as housekeepers for priests.

"These women, in many cases, devote their lives to a clergyman and are just left out in the cold when he dies," he said.

The association also is campaigning for higher pay for priests.

"The $4,000 minimum salary is below the salary floor for federal anti-poverty program participation," Kinsolving says. "We also want unemployment insurance for clergymen because if an Episcopal priest is without a church or a job in the church administration, he is on his own."

Kinsolving himself is in that situation. He supports himself, his wife and three young children by his newspaper work and by writing magazine articles.

Farmers Ask Manpower Study

B.C. Federation of Agriculture Friday asked the B.C. cabinet to study further the harvesting manpower needs of farmers and evaluate an experiment last year in which 200 Williams Lake Indians were recruited for fruit-picking in the Okanagan.

The federation also asked for government legislation to protect farmlands from "desecration" by prospectors and free-miners and were told by Resources Minister Ray Williston this was under study.

SAANICH councillor and school principal Alan Newberry will speak on the layman's view of Christian unity at a special service in the Anglican church of St. David-by-the-Sea, Cordova Bay, Sunday at 10:30 a.m. The service, conducted by the vicar, Rev. H. Gordon Walker, honors Victoria's Week of Prayer for Unity.

RC Hopes For Union Widened

Churches of various denominations will participate in an octave of prayer for Christian unity in St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Church from Wednesday, Jan. 18, to Wednesday, Jan. 25.

The following speakers and choirs will be heard:

Jan. 18, Rev. John C. Dowd of St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral and the choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Jan. 19, Monsignor Michael O'Connell, chancellor of the Roman Catholic diocese of Victoria and the Sanctuary Choir of Metropolitan United Church.

Jan. 21, Rev. David Metzger of Victoria Lutheran Church and the University of Victoria Choir.

Jan. 23, Rev. Samuel Parsons, DD, of Centennial United Church and the Centennial Church Choir.

Jan. 24, Rev. Patrick Ratchford of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church and the choir of St. Patrick's.

Jan. 25, Rev. Leon Belanger, Royal Canadian Navy chaplain at Belmont Park and the choir of St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral.

FIFTH SERVICE

The fifth inter-church service, organized by Victoria Council of Churches and the Roman Catholic diocese of Victoria, will be held in First United Church Sunday, Jan. 22 at 3 p.m.

Rev. Roy Hoult of Christ Church Anglican Cathedral and B.C. provincial archivist Willard Ireland will be the speakers.

Victoria Citadel Salvation Army Band will accompany the service.

Paris Weekly Doubts Famed Author Exists

PARIS (UPI) — The French rightist weekly "Minute" doubts the existence of Rejean Ducharme, a young French-Canadian novelist who was nearly awarded France's top prizes for literature.

In an article published in this week's issue, "Minute" said that according to (unidentified) Canadian journalists the author of the highly praised "L'Avalee des Avalees" (The One Swallowed By Those Who Were Themselves Swallowed) is an elderly Canadian "a diplomat, according to some, a university professor, according to others."

According to Minute Rejean Ducharme apparently never existed.

"The only photograph given to the editor is apparently that of a student who died several years ago," it said.

"One thing is sure," added the newspaper, no one has ever seen Ducharme even after the great success of his book in Paris."

YOUTH CORPS FACING SEVERE TEST

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP) — When the Company of Young Canadians was launched, Prime Minister Pearson expressed the hope it would be 1,000 strong by next June.

It has 77 volunteers in the field now and its chances of hitting the target within six months are slim.

Its new director, Alan Clarke, 37, says he has no idea how fast the company will multiply.

"I think there will be fewer than 1,000 but it's hard to predict. The first 77 are the hardest."

The company, likened by some to the U.S. Peace Corps, was first proposed by Mr. Pearson in April, 1965, officially came into being last June with passage of legislation by Parliament, and began its field work in August.

Mr. Clarke, a native of Stratford, Ont., defines the company as "a group of young people committed to going into communities where people are troubled, to become involved and to assist them in fundamentally changing the situation."

The volunteer is meant to be only a catalyst. He doesn't tell the people what they should do. He helps them do whatever they have decided on themselves.

Admits Problems

Mr. Clarke, a dark-haired stocky man, admits the CYC has had its problems. He says its first, and controversial, training session last summer at Antigonish, N.S., probably took place too early in the life of the company.

"But that's hindsight. If I'd been here then, I probably would have pushed for the same date."

At that time, headquarters staffing was still incomplete. Members of the interim council were new to the job and to each other. Selection and training techniques for the volunteers had to be worked out from scratch because the type of operation was unprecedented.

Newly-installed in a rambling old house in residential Sandy Hill, the company now is running more smoothly, Mr. Clarke says.

"We're moving towards a sounder base, but problems will probably plague us as long as we're in existence."

The company is "increasingly thinking about our strategy" for expanding the service overseas. The prospective CYC abroad would be "modelled on what we're attempting to do in Canada."

Mr. Clarke came to his $20,000-a-year post Nov. 1 from the directorship of the Canadian Citizenship Council.

Worked for YMCA

From 1950 to 1960 he had worked with youth recreation, education and leadership programs with the Toronto YMCA. In the same period he studied for his BA in philosophy and ethics from the University of Toronto.

He holds memberships in the Student Union for Peace Action and a number of other organizations. He is active in the National Council of YMCAs, the Baptist Church, in which he is a deacon, and the Ottawa Welfare Council, of which he is a director and honorary secretary.

Mr. Clarke is quiet-spoken and informal with a confident, sincere manner. He seems to typify his definition of a good CYC volunteer.

What the company is looking for is basically "an open person—relaxed with himself; one who has arrived at some degree of security about himself."

Mr. Clarke sees these young people as different from his generation in their late teens and early 20s.

"I don't mean to seem critical of my generation, but we didn't opt, as today's young people are opting, for involvement in communities and with people. Of course there weren't these alternatives in the late 1940s and early 1950s.

"My generation tended to make different kinds of choices. We saw society as a collection of pressure groups.

ALAN CLARKE
. . . still confident

These volunteers say society is people.

"This generation is not revolutionary, but they are much more democratic than my generation. They feel that if a decision affects you, you've got to be involved in making it."

He first became aware of the new idealism of today's youth when the Citizenship Council did a study of conventional youth groups in churches and the YM and YWCA.

Shun Old Groups

"Data came in from these youth groups of my generation that young people were not joining established organizations in a volume consistent with their numbers."

Mr. Clarke feels this is because established institutions tend to stand between young people and the community they want to be directly involved with.

"I think this generation is saying 'We're not sure we want to participate in the affluent society as long as there are sectors of that society getting a raw deal'."

His own role in the company is legally that of "the responsible officer to Parliament and the prime minister."

"I'm also responsible to the council which will become largely an elected body" with a large proportion of volunteers.

But Alan Clarke says he sees his role like this:

"My concept of administration is best expressed in the Indian saying 'The best chief is not the one who persuades most people to his point of view, but the one in whose presence men find it easiest to arrive at the truth.'

"I think I can operate that way. I see myself as proving an ultimate base for something that's honest to develop."

A MESSAGE TO MANAGEMENT IN VICTORIA

Are you looking for a man of integrity? — Do you want someone with considerable management ability? — Someone who can meet the public? — A person who has had a responsible staff position for years? — If so I may be the person you need.

Remuneration is not the paramount consideration. I am more interested in finding a position which will be stimulating and provide a challenge. I am not interested in house to house selling or promoting wildcat schemes. My references are adequate. Replies to Victoria Press, Box 112.

Opening lead—♣K

West had lots of problems with today's hand. To start with, he didn't know if he should pass or bid one, three, four or five clubs. We can't find fault with his selection of a three-club call, although we would prefer to start with one club only to allow for the possibility of getting together with partner in spades.

West's next problem came after North and South arrived at six hearts. He thought about sacrificing at seven clubs but finally came to the right decision and passed. Then he had to make his opening lead.

This did not seem like much of a problem to him. He placed the king of clubs on the table.

South had been having his own problems with the bidding. He had made a fine decision when he went to three hearts after his partner's three diamond overcall but he had almost lied about aces and was tempted to bid five clubs in response to his partner's Blackwood four no-trump.

When he looked at dummy, South wished he had lied. It seemed that East would surely hold the king of hearts and that the slam would go down.

East did hold the guarded king of hearts and if West had opened the ace of spades, South would have been unable to make his contract, but the club lead gave South an extra chance and he took advantage of it.

At trick two South led the jack of hearts but he went up with dummy's ace. Then he proceeded to run off dummy's diamonds and poor East had to follow suit while South jettisoned all his spades.

PRIVACY

"PRIVACY"—according to the most recent surveys is the feature most desired in housing. How do you get PRIVACY on a standard building site? Buy a lot in the middle of a forest (almost impossible if you want all the amenities such as sewer, bus service, close proximity to schools, etc.)—or—build a fence around your home higher than the municipality will allow, or have Tech Designed Homes build you their house specifically designed to give you PRIVACY. A living room that looks into its own PRIVATE atrium or garden court—a living room that is located on a separate wing on a different level which gives you the ultimate in PRIVACY in interior design. Each room has its own private entrance (no crossing through the room to get to another). A PRIVATE bathroom and sunroom to keep you glowing with health even in this rainy season. Plus many other features found only in more expensive homes. Our price on this fantastic home is (including lot) $21,500—as low as $2,600 down with NHA and extended financing.

Council Hopes To Expand Park

Central Saanich has moved to expand its Centennial Park on Wallace Drive.

Negotiations are under way to purchase nine acres of property from William Naysmith, 1785 Hovey Road, to add to the park.

If the deal goes through, it will increase the area of the park from 25 to 34 acres.

Centennial park has become in the past few years the most used recreational area in the north end of the peninsula. During the summer months, the picnic area is booked solid by local organizations.

It is also a centre for soccer, baseball and tennis, and a playground for children.

Facilities will also be improved and expanded this year by Central Saanich centennial committee. Under consideration is a plan to clear the underbrush, construct a bowling green and increase the number of picnic tables.

Charles Mollard, acting chairman of the parks committee, said the acquisition of an additional nine acres would "round off" the park area. The property is situated on the north side, along Hovey Road.

The councillor said council is stretching it's park budget to acquire land.

"We feel this is the time to acquire property — not later," he said. "The use that Centennial park is put to indicates there is a need for more recreational areas."

The park was originally 13 acres in area, but in the past two years council purchased additional property, increasing it 25.

It is bounded on the west by Hagen Creek, Hovey Road on the north, White Road, west and Wallace Drive on the east.

Young Life Members Skiing At Mount Baker

Seventy Victoria high school students are skiing at Mount Baker in Washington state this weekend as part of a trip sponsored by the Victoria branch, Young Life of Canada.

Young Life is an interdenominational Christian group for students not already involved in a church. Chairman of the group is Arnold Webb, deputy minister of public works.

Twelve leaders accompanied the students to Mount Baker, where they were joined by another group from Vancouver.

In addition to skiing, there will be club meetings and entertainment provided by members of the groups.

They expect to return to Victoria Sunday at 9:15 p.m.

The ski trip is one of various outings arranged by Young Life throughout the year. One is a vacation at Camp Malibu, the organization's independent camp settlement 100 miles north of Vancouver.

MPs CHARGE

'Tampering' Old Tale, Says Firm

WINNIPEG (CP) — An MP's accusation that Hudson's Bay Co. northern staff have been guilty of tampering with the mails and altering cheques apparently is based on a single incident "long since resolved," the company said today.

A company spokesman issued a statement deploring what was described as a morale-damaging smear of HBC personnel, calling the charge by MP Frank Howard "unwarranted, unfair and senselessly derogatory."

Mr. Howard, New Democratic Party member for Skeena, said in the Commons Thursday that the HBC has "engaged in criminal activity" by tampering with the mails and altering cheques. He said he has documentary evidence to prove his allegations.

The HBC reply said Mr. Howard appears to have based his charges on a single incident at Fort Chippewyan, Alta., in November, 1965, which has long since been resolved to the satisfaction of both the post office and the complainant.

The statement said:

"The company operates 71 branch post offices in isolated stores as a public service. It would be surprising if in these communities, where many recipients of mail can neither speak English nor read and write, occasional mistakes did not happen.

"Nevertheless, any complaint received by the company with respect to post office service has always been quickly settled to the satisfaction of post office authorities."

FOLLOWED BIRDS

The cranberry is thought to have been named after cranes, because early settlers saw the birds eating the berries and so learned they were not poisonous.

City Veterans Disagree Over Dieppe

Two Victoria veterans of the disastrous Dieppe raid of 1942 today disagreed on the question of whether a delegation of 100 German veterans should attend 25th anniversary ceremonies at the Canadian cemetery in Dieppe next Aug. 19.

HONORS 1,000

"This ceremony honors 1,000 Canadians who lost their lives at Dieppe," said Ivan C. Smith of 1770 Ross Street. "I don't think it would be fitting for a German delegation to attend.

"I bear no animosity against the Germans, but I think it would be ironic for them to attend a ceremony which rightly belongs to Canadians and their allies."

Mr. Smith served in the Dieppe raid with the Calgary Tank Regiment, 14th Canadian Armored Corps. He recalled that, in addition to the dead, 600 Canadians were wounded and about 2,000 taken prisoner.

Hank Rowe, 1430 Grant Street, who was wounded three times at Dieppe and won the Military Medal, took the opposite view.

"After 25 years I think we should forget our animosities. If the Germans want to honor our dead, I see no reason why they shouldn't be allowed to attend the ceremonies."

A former Victoria basketball star, Mr. Rowe served as a gunner at Dieppe. His basketball career was cut short by multiple wounds.

The controversy was sparked when the Stuttgart Association of Veterans of the 302nd Infantry Division, which fought at Dieppe, asked that 100 members be allowed to attend the Canadian ceremonies.

The association said it wanted to honor the dead as a demonstration of western comradeship and unity.

The proposal was strenuously opposed by Harry Lister, president of the Royal Canadian Legion's Wingate branch in Toronto.

"It would be like dancing with your killers," he said.

Hundreds of Canadians who took part on the assault on Dieppe with the Canadian Second Division will attend the ceremonies.

Pounds, Shillings And Pence

When they ask questions on the Isle of Man, England, they want answers — in pounds, shillings and pence.

At least Miss J. D. Cooper, 13 Selbourne Road, Douglas, I of M, does.

In a letter to city clerk Morran Waller the lady ran the gamut of 11 questions seeking information on whether Canada was a sound country in which to invest money to a request for the rate private doctors charge for house or surgery visits.

In between were requests for the rate lawyers charge for interviews or writing letters, what government hospitals charge per day, the location and rental rates of apartments, and the price contractors would charge per square foot to erect a brick veneer house.

And, after each question, was the additional request that the monetary answers be provided in pounds, shillings and pence, please.

Mr. Waller is still scratching his head.

It has been suggested that if he can find all the answers — in pounds, shillings and pence, naturally — he may then apply himself to answering the mystery of how the Manx cat, a native of the Isle of Man, lost its tail.

Soviet Develops Plot To Smear China Chief

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP)—In the back rooms of the Soviet Communist party headquarters, a plot has developed to try to ruin Mao Tse-tung's reputation.

The outlines are gradually becoming visible as the Soviet press whittles away at various claims to greatness made on behalf of the Chinese leader.

Informed sources report that the sharpest attack is yet to come: A Soviet contention that Mao stole Russian ideas on guerrilla warfare to establish his reputation as one of history's great military theorists.

Other parts of the plot range from assertions that Mao's regime is soft on capitalists—to a Communist, the blackest sin—to scoffing at his much-vaunted poetry.

The plot is just one part the current Kremlin attack on "Mao Tse-tung and his group," who are accused of following an increasingly dangerous anti-Soviet policy.

There never has been any love lost around the Kremlin for Mao, who rose to prominence in the late 1920s by ousting Moscow influences from the Chinese Communist party. He repeatedly defied Soviet thinking on the proper course toward victory on China. Success proved him right.

Things got nasty in 1947 when Liu Shao-chi, then Mao's deputy but now his opponent in the Peking power struggle, made a bold claim for the leadership.

"Mao Tse-tung's great accomplishment has been to change Marxism from a European to an Asiatic form," Liu said.

Lenin's Soviet heirs never have been willing to admit that anyone but themselves has the right to interpret Marx. Rival claims are met with the fervid anger of religious fanaticism.

So Liu's claim, and later elaborations that sought to insert Mao between Marx and Lenin in the Communist pantheon, opened a theoretical rift to match the dispute over practical matters.

Soviet Communist party spokesmen now are attacking Mao's concepts of communism as erroneous. They are labelled "pseudo - revolutionary phraseology and dogmas," bound to lead to failure.

The informed sources say Soviet historians are going to publish documents intended to prove that Mao's ideas on guerrilla warfare were stolen rather than conceived by him. The documents are instructions by the Comintern, the Kremlin's international arm in the 1920s and 1930s, on conduct of guerrilla warfare. Copies were taken to China by Soviet advisers.

Parkinson's Disease Group May Be Established in City

Mr. Mortimer said the disease, usually associated with tremors and rigidity of the limbs and body, is not a terminal sickness but is inhibiting to patients.

Their tendency is to withdraw from social life, one of the very things that doctors say they should not do.

Mr. Mortimer said the aim of a local association should be to provide some social life for Parkinson's disease patients. A group in Toronto has been formed, proved successful, and now the move is on to spread it across Canada.

Mr. Mortimer said the Canadian association also aims to rovide physiotherapy and occupational therapy for patients and to further the work of basic research.

Mr. Mortimer met with local medical men interested in the problem and also with some Greater Victoria residents who have the disease.

He said anyone interested in helping to form a branch of the associaion here should contact Rody Ryan, of the Rehabilitation Foundation of B.C., at 780 Vernon Avenue.

Driver Blameless In Dog Death

Saanich police investigating the pathetic death of a puppy Wednesday have concluded that the driver of the car involved is blameless.

Bob, the six-month-old spaniel of the Willams family of 4487 Majestic Drive, lay bleeding for almost an hour on the front lawn after being cut open by the spinner hubcap of a car.

He died on the way to an animal doctor who said he could have been saved with immediate attention.

The first story children who witnessed the incident told was that the puppy had been cut by the hubcap which flew from the car. The driver stopped long enough to retrieve the hubcap but then drove off, ignoring the dog.

Officers who have looked further into the case report Bob was chasing another puppy when he ran into the rear wheel of the car.

The driver stopped but the dog ran off, apparently uninjured. Unknown to the driver, who did not get out of the car, the hubcap had been knocked off.

Five-year-old Gordon Williams, crushed by the loss of his puppy, is all smiles today.

Another youngster, Gregory Ross of 4153 North Rd., gave the Williams boy another puppy Friday. Gregory knew how Gordon felt. His dog too was killed two years ago in much the same way.

CATWOMAN WINS BATTLE IN COURT

WINNIPEG (CP) — Bertha Rand, the catwoman of suburban St. James, won a county court legal battle Friday when the City's "anti-cat" bylaw was declared null and void by Judge J. W. M. Thompson.

He ruled that St. James Council had exceeded its authority in legislating that no resident can keep more than three cats without the permission of the city. He said the bylaw was discriminatory legislation because council had reserved the right to determine who could keep more than three cats.

Miss Rand had appealed a $10 fine levied under the bylaw. She was reported to have kept about 30 cats around her home.

Even Rail Tickets Are Now Bilingual

MONTREAL (CP) — Lawyer Marc Briere's fight against unilingualism on the Canadian Pacific Railway was won Thursday.

One of the CPR's English-speaking conductors complied with Mr. Briere's wishes and asked the lawyer in French for his ticket.

★ ★ ★

He was the same conductor who bounced Mr. Briere off the train, a west-end Dorion-Montreal commuter run, when the lawyer refused Jan. 6 to hand over a ticket because the conductor did not ask for it in French.

Mr. Briere's victory Thursday, witnessed by his lawyer and a group of reporters, came after a long battle, which began on St. Jean Baptiste Day in 1965.

Feeling patriotic—St. Jean Baptiste is Quebec's patron saint—Mr. Briere asked the conductor if he might ask for the ticket in French. The conductor refused. Mr. Briere refused to hand over the ticket.

There followed an 18-month war of nerves. Since being ejected from the train last Friday the lawyer had not ridden the train.

"It was not a very happy incident," Mr. Briere said. "But I'm happy that the ticket collectors seem resolved to ask for tickets in two languages."

However, a union official said Friday night a few conductors have threatened to walk off the job to hold study sessions if they are forced to speak French to passengers.

Swift Results On Lost Items

A new public service column instituted by The Times last Saturday has produced swift results, police reported this week.

In an effort to unite owners with the mountain of lost and found items turned in to police, the first of a weekly list of goods recovered appeared a week ago.

Saanich police said Friday owners of about 10 of the 24 bicycles they were holding have come around to identify and claim them.

Two of three watches officers were holding were also returned to their owners. Some of the goods recovered have been in police hands for six months, a spokesman said.

Both city and Saanich forces are still waiting for people to claim a huge collection of glasses, bicycles, wallets and a variety of other items.

Found this week :

Seven boy's and one girl's bicycle as well as a bunch of keys, held at the Saanich police office.

INFLATION LEAP PLAGUES SAIGON

By KENNETH WHITING

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. officials say continued inflation is the worst threat to Vietnam's fragile economy in 1967. No knowledgeable Vietnamese or American pretends the economic crisis is past. Tax collection is inadequate, heavy rice imports are necessary, labor unrest continues and corruption is widespread.

The sidewalk black market near the U.S. Embassy, wiped out with publicity in November, has slowly reappeared.

Inflationary pressure weighs heavily on the piaster, Saigon's monetary unit. Experts agree they will have to settle for "mild" inflation this year, perhaps as much as 20 per cent.

One official estimate is that each additional U.S. soldier adds $1,000 a year to the Vietnamese economy. There now are 389,000 soldiers. This is money that goes directly into Vietnamese pockets and is soon exchanged for goods and services.

Consumer goods are high in price but plentiful. There is none of the austerity that marked cities near the fighting fronts in the Second World War.

Saigon's abundantly stocked stores reflect the main thrust of the anti-inflation program. Instead of urging Vietnamese to tighten their belts for the duration, the government has—with U.S. backing — imported massive quantities of consumer goods to absorb purchasing power.

The idea is to add somewhere near $1,000 in imports for each soldier brought in so the spending for and by that soldier can be absorbed without inflation. One economist calculates that 10,000 troops cause a two or three per cent inflation unless there are additional imports.

The import program has filled the streets here with bright clothing, watches, motor bikes and transistor radios from Hong Kong, Japan and elsewhere.

Retail prices rose 35 per cent in 1965 and 67 per cent more in 1966. Number one grade rice costs 113 per cent more now than a year ago.

Salary Increased Before Staff Hired

The Regional District Board decided Friday to increase the salary of its as yet un-hired secretary-treasurer.

Reeve Hugh Curtis, chairman of the board and also chairman of the special committee established to hire a secretary-treasurer, said he felt that a $10,000 to $12,000 annual salary would attract more skilled men than the $7,000 to $8,000 originally offered.

"It is a job of major importance," he said. "The committee felt that the higher salary range would attract more applications."

The board agreed to re-advertise theposition at the higher salary.

Some 21 applicants answered the first advertisements but were reduced to eight possibles after the first series of checks. The eight remaining were reduced to three after personal interviews.

Reeve Curtis said that there were "no personal reflections on the earlier applicants" but that the higher salary range might attract more qualified men.

At the February meeting newly elected members will take their seats and a chairman for the 1967 term will be elected by directors of the board.

Carburettor Blamed For Fire

A flooding caburettor is blamed for setting a car engine on fire this morning and causing about $50 damage to the wiring.

Saanich firemen doused the blaze in the car of John Haight, 4160 Hawkes Ave., when it burst into flames at Birles and Baker.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

To see a stamp of St. Helena featuring the Great Fire of London of 1666 seems incongruous, to say the least; but nevertheless a set to be released before long will include a value showing this design.

The historical background leading up to this stamp issue is as follows: The Dutch had originally annexed St. Helena in 1633 and formed a small settlement on it. By 1652 they also had started a colony in the Cape of Good Hope, and this seemed so much more promising a project that the St. Helena settlers were removed to Capetown in that year.

★ ★ ★

In 1659 the English moved in to St. Helena to take their place, an event which the island commemorated with a set of stamps 300 years later. By 1666 there were about 100 inhabitants on the island.

They arrived in February, 1667, and it is this event that is now being commemorated with a set of four stamps. The 1d value shows London ablaze; the 3d features the "Charles," a typical three-master East Indiaman of the period, which transported them to the island; the 6d "the arrival at St. Helena"; and the 1s 6d, "settlers at work clearing land."

It would be interesting to know if any of the 4,500 people inhabiting the island today are descendants of the 30 refugees who landed 300 years ago.

★ ★ ★

The two main factors in making a stamp increase in value are popularity and scarcity. In most cases the former is the more important.

The recently issued Gibraltar 2s honoring "Our Lady of Europea" had a total issue of 210,000 copies, which is a fairly large number for a British Colonial commemorative — yet it was a sell-out from the start.

Compare this with the recent I.C.Y. issue of St. Lucia. Total sales run to 59,434 sets to they are more than 3½ times scarcer than the Gibraltar item — but this causes no excitement simply because the former stamp has by far the greater popular appeal.

HOW MUCH IN THIRTY DAYS?

Seeking to dramatize the advantage of savings accounts in the New Year, a bank sent out a pamphlet in which it asked prospective depositors this question:

"How much money would you have to your credit at the end of the month if you were to deposit a penny the first day of the month and doubled the amount of your deposit every day for 30 days?"

Answer: According to our figuring you'd have $10,737,418.24 plus the interest the bank payed on your account.

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

HUSSEIN
... under attack

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — "Sometimes I feel like the central character in a detective story."

This was King Hussein, speaking of his 15 turbulent, melodramatic years on the throne of Jordan, a reign that began in gunfire and now once again is shadowed by menace.

In 1951, when he was only 15, Hussein saw his grandfather, King Abdullah, killed. The assassin turned the gun on him. Miraculously, a medal saved him, and the bullet ricocheted off harmlessly.

Trouble dogged him. From 1955 to 1958, he held his kingdom together through chaos and violence stirred by his Arab rivals. He escaped at the controls of his own plane from a murderous attack by two Syrian MiG jets. He put down a military uprising by driving into the midst of the shooting. He avoided two other attempts on his life — a bomb and acid in his medicine chest.

RIOTS ERUPTED

The latest crisis exploded Nov. 13 when Israel, rankled over raids by guerrilla forces which Jordan has been unable to control, sent troops and tanks rolling across the armistice line and smashed the Jordanian village of Es Samu.

Riots erupted in Jordan, not so much against Israel as against Hussein, demanding arms, action and vengeance. Jordan's Arab neighbors joined the cry.

On the present crisis, Hussein told The Associated Press: "There is nothing we can do except to continue as we have done — continue trying to build the country in face of attempts by Israel, and other Arab countries, too, to destroy everything we have built."

This calm assessment is typical of Hussein, now 31. His personality, dashing way of life and appeals for reason and moderation present, at least to the West, the most appealing image of any Arab leader. Those same characteristics, however, plus his family's long associations with the West, damn him in the eyes of other Arab leaders

SEEKS PROGRESS

Hussein is a conservative in a society where conservatism is widely construed as weakness. He seeks progress with quiet words, in an area where wild declarations are often more esteemed. And he is a king, of statelyancestry and British education, in a region where military presidents and socialist juntas have seized the spotlight.

Hussein took the oath of monarchy May 2, 1953, when he was not yet 17 years old.

Jordan was a bitter enclave, its population tripled by 1,000,000 new Jordanians seething with hatred. The cause — and the cause of Jordan's troubles today — was the Arab-Israeli war of 1948.

When the Zionists proclaimed Israel a state, the Arab armies struck to recover the Holy Land. Jordan's little Arab Legion bore the brunt of the fighting. When a temporary truce was proclaimed, Jordanian forces held Jerusalem and more than 2,000 square miles of Palestine.

CRIES OF OUTRAGE

After the armistice of 1949, King Abdullah annexed as part of Jordan the half of Palestine his troops had won, and gave Jordanian citizenship to its 1,000,000 embittered people. Cries of outrage erupted from the other Arab countries that Abdullah had sided with the British to allow the creation of Israel.

Today, two-thirds of Hussein's 2,000,000 subjects are Palestinians. Half were driven from their homes in Israel, and some 230,000 still live in bitter futility in United Nations camps. They are the most explosive element in the Middle East.

Unrest has swollen since the emergence of the Palestine Liberation Organization in Cairo. Hussein refuses to sanction Palestinian guerrilla raids into Israel and refuses to allow the PLO to operate in Jordan.

ACTS CIRCUMSPECTLY

Hussein is as fervently Arab and anti-Israel as any of his rivals, but with a 350-mile frontier to defend against Israel, he acts more circumspectly.

"Jordan is a country that depends upon good neighbors for its existence," Hussein says.

"On one side we have Israel, on the other side are our sister Arab states, comrades against the common foe of Israel, but also frequently hostile to us."

He opposes domination of the Arab world by President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic, but feels the major threat to the Middle East is Communism. If the Arab states fall under its sway, he believes, Israel will get the full backing of the West.

The present Arab propaganda against Jordan seems to have become "more serious," summarized a western source. "Jordan has always been a political hot potato and the other Arab countries seem to be out to destroy the regime."

The king himself countered: "The future is not too bad." And if he were assassinated?

"I think Jordan would continue to exist.

New Safety Rules to Hit Headache Preparations

OTTAWA (CP)—New safety measures are being studied and may be applied in Canada this year to headache remedies, apparently the greatest poison danger in the country.

A special advisory committee examining the problem is expected to make safety recommendations to the federal health department this spring as a result of a year-long study of the problem.

Informants said that, among the possible safety steps being considered are limitations on the number of pills in a bottle, safety caps and drastic warnings about keeping pills out of the reach of children.

In the United States, the federal food and drug directorate has reached voluntary agreement with the drug industry and the medical profession on such safety measures. They include reducing the number of flavored children's headache tablets per bottle to 36 from 50. The limitation applies to preparations containing acetylsalicylic acid.

OVERDOSE IS 35

One U.S. study indicated that the peak of severe illness or death from such pill poisonings among children came when 35 or more pills were consumed.

The U.S. standards also will require a new warning in addition to the present injunction to keep medicines out of the hands of children. Labels will have to state:

"Caution—no cap is 100-per-cent childproof. In case of accidental overdose, contact a physician immediately."

Safety caps have been a controversial subject in the poison safety field for some time.

A U.S. expert, Dr. Alan K. Done, associate director of pediatrics and director of the Poison Information and Therapy Centre at the University of Utah, advocates individual wrapping of pills in strips or sheets on the theory that children are likely to lose interest or be detected before taking an overdose.

Poisonings reported to Canadian poison centres have been rising—23,000 in 1964, 32,000 in 1965 and higher than that last year although complete figures aren't yet available.

Poverty No Excuse For Theft: Ostler

"No doubt you have had a hard time making ends meet," he said in sentencing Alice Moon of 2228 Oak Bay. But this did not give her the right to augment a meagre income by taking goods from stores, he added.

The accused had last week pleaded guilty to shoplifting Christmas gift-wrapping paper, ribbons and stickers from The Bay.

She was ordered to sign a $250 bond guaranteeing her good behavior over the next year.

"It was just a matter of touch and go whether you would go to jail on this occasion," the magistrate told another shoplifter who appeared for sentence.

Daniel MacDonald of 132 Niagara had also pleaded guilty earlier to taking two packages of cigarettes and two Christmas tree decorations from The Bay without paying.

He had decided to accept a probation officer's recommendation, said the magistrate in fining MacDonald $100.

Terrorist Sheet Tells Members Avoid Violence

MONTREAL (CP)—A mimeographed sheet describing itself as the organ of the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec says centennial year 1967 is "horrible" but any "impetuous" violence by Quebec separatists must be avoided.

The six-page sheet called la Cognee, or The Hatchet, was mailed to the offices of some news organization. Dated Dec. 30-Jan. 15, the issue said the current atmosphere in Quebec "scarcely facilitates the achievement of a suitable climate for struggle."

The development of a solid organization was needed, if the ELQ's "sad experiences of the past" were not to be repeated.

"A number of years" might be needed for the establishment of an organization sufficiently strong to sustain an effective pro-separatist campaign by the ELQ.

ASTIGMATISM

Nearly nine out of ten people have astigmatism, many without knowing it. Astigmatism causes an uneven focusing of the light rays that enter the eye. The rays of light in one section of a beam are focused at a different point. Thus a blurred picture or image results. In many cases, the image can be made quite clear by a constant focusing of the lens in the eye. This, however, usually causes a great deal of strain, fatigue, soreness of the eyes, and frequent headaches. To have comfortable vision and to protect the only pair of eyes you will ever have, be sure they are free from this common defect, or that they are properly corrected for it. It is advisable to have your eyes examined at least once every two years.

VANCOUVER POLICE TROUBLES

Embattled Mayor May Sue for Report

Food Poisoning

CANNING EYED AS TWO DIE

SUMMERLAND, B.C. (CP) — Improperly preserved home canning was being investigated today as a possible cause of the deaths of a woman and her son apparently stricken with food poisoning.

The father, meanwhile, was in improved condition in hospital after being admitted unconscious Friday.

Dr. D. A. Clarke, medical health officer for the South Okanagan, said early indications are that Mrs. Frederick Gordon Hollinger, 32, and her son, Todd, 9, died of botulinus poisoning, generally associated with improperly preserved home canning.

Samples of food from the Hollinger home here were being sent to the University of B.C. for analysis.

Hollinger's father, Peter Hollinger, found his daughter-in-law dead and his son and grandson unconscious.

Both were taken to Summerland Hospital and the boy was transferred later to Penticton General Hospital.

Four doses of anti-toxin were ordered from Vancouver, but the boy died before they arrived.

A police spokesman said the family apparently had eaten at home Thursday night. He said a report that they had visited a restaurant in Penticton had been proved incorrect.

7 CHILDREN, PARENTS DIE IN HOME FIRE

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A man, his wife and seven of their 12 children died today when fire swept their narrow three-storey home in the north Philadelphia section of the city.

Neighbors said the flames engulfed the house so quickly the victims were trapped on the second and third floors. Three children escaped by leaping from windows in the upper floors.

Fired Men Judged Incompetent

VANCOUVER (CP) — Many of the 34 carpenters fired from their jobs on the Peace River power project were judged incompetent, a spokesman for the employers said Friday.

Ed Peck, general manager of Peace Power Constructors, the employing authority on the project, said his investigation into the firings still is going on.

So far, he said, he has found that 12 men were fired for poor production, nine because they were unsuitable for underground work, 11 for failing to return from Christmas holidays and two more for other reasons.

He added that employers have recommended firing 11 more men, and this matter is being studied.

"A lot of these men were apparently only recent hirees," said Mr. Peck. "The main test for new men is job performance."

New Market Drive By U.K.

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson prepared today to launch a new drive to get Britain into the European Common Market, but diplomatic reports indicate French President Charles de Gaulle will veto the renewed application.

Wilson and Foreign Secretary George Brown fly to Rome Sunday on the first leg of a European tour.

Holed Ship Hanging On Reef

The tanker Esso Seattle rammed the freighter at 6 a.m. just outside Apra harbor. A hole 70 feet long and 30 feet high was torn in the No. 4 hold. The freighter, with the aid of a tug, limped to the coral beach.

Three navy tugs pushed the Guam Bear on to the reef. The bow rose high into the air and the No. 4 and 5 holds submerged. The fate of the 10,937-ton freighter depends "on whether the engine room bulkhead holds," said Gmelch. "If it does, there is a chance to salvage her."

20 Officers Reported Named

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun says a controversial report on the Vancouver police force names about 20 policemen suspected of being involved in crimes or of showing malfeasance in the performance of their duties.

The newspaper also says the Murray report is critical of former police chief George Archer and that it mentions Tom Campbell, now the city's mayor.

The report says Mr. Campbell, an alderman at the time the report was written, failed to give lawyer George Murray information Mr. Campbell had indicated" he had on criminal activity among policemen.

Mayor Campbell now is embroiled in a dispute over the Murray report. He has threatened court action unless Attorney-General Robert Bonner gives him a copy of the report, which the new mayor says he will make public.

The report was compiled in June, 1965, by Mr. Murray at the request of former Mayor William Rathie.

DAMAGE MORALE

As an alderman last year, Mr. Campbell had urged that the report be made public. Mr. Murray said the report should not be disclosed because it would be damaging to police force morale and possibly libellous.

Thursday, Mayor Campbell walked out of a Vancouver police commission meeting when he was refused a copy of the report. The mayor is chairman of the commission.

Attorney-General Bonner said later he had all copies of the report and that he would give one to Mayor Campbell only if the majority of police commissioners approved.

Mr. Campbell said Friday night his only recourse appeared to be legal action to get a copy.

The Sun says it has learned that the Murray report also recommends further investigations into the police force, though it praises the force as a whole.

The newspaper says the report mentions improprieties among members of the police jail staff, and says that some of these suspects were known during the regime of Mr. Archer.

The report says the suspects were transferred to the police jail staff so they would be in the least sensitive positions on the force and so that the force's public image would remain clean.

Union Bugging Tapes Silenced By Court Order

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice T. A. Dohm Friday ordered controversial tape recordings made during the electronic bugging of a pulp union's November convention turned over to the B.C. Supreme Court until further notice.

Mr. Justice Dohm granted the order to the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, which objected to playing of the tapes in public by a royal commission investigating the bugging on grounds that it would constitute an invasion of privacy.

He said the tapes will be kept by the court and ruled they will not be played unless special permission is granted by a judge.

O'NEAL RESTRAINED

WEATHER HAMPERS AIR RAIDS

Sharp Fighting Flares In Viet Triangle Drive

SAIGON (AP)—Sharp fighting flared up and down South Vietnam today and the big American drive in the Iron Triangle pushed Communist losses beyond 450 men.

The U.S. and South Vietnamese Commands listed many small clashes and these other developments:

- A Norwegian motorship and a U.S. Navy minesweeping boat collided in a river 30 miles southeast of Saigon and the navy boat sank with the loss of three of her seven-man crew.
- U.S. B-52 heavy bombers struck at a suspected concentration of North Vietnamese troops less than a mile south of the demilitarized zone.
- Bad weather continued to hamper U.S. air raids over the North but pilots attacked coastal targets and reported putting 54 junks and barges out of action.

HIT OUTPOST

A South Vietnamese military spokesman said two battalions of Viet Cong—a force estimated at 400 men—over-ran a military post 325 miles northeast of Saigon and the defending platoon of 30 militiamen pulled out.

The spokesman said the militiamen "dispersed" and he had no report on casualties. At last report, the post was still in Communist hands.

Elsewhere, however, South Vietnamese troops reported killing 38 enemy troops in four small clashes ranging from 54 miles southwest of Saigon to 276 miles northeast of the capital.

U.S. marines operating in the northern provinces of South Vietnam reported killing 74 of the enemy in a series of light skirmishes and with artillery barrages.

In Operation Cedar Falls, the week-old drive to clear out the jungles of the Iron Trie 20 to 30 miles north of Saigon, U.S. forces counted 286 Viet Viet Cong dead so far, 64 captured and an additional 105 who surrendered.

Civilian Killings Explained

An earlier official account had said the civilians were killed when the Viet Cong used them as "human shields" and government troops had fired into them while protecting themselves from a Viet Cong attack.

Ten children were killed and 25 other persons were wounded in the incident. Conflicts and contradictions in the original account have now aroused controversy.

A U.S. government official said today the original account came first from South Vietnamese military reports and was confirmed by the U.S. military. Later when questions were raised, he said, the U.S. military investigated again and found that the casualties had been caused by government artillery.

MILITARY HIDEOUT STORMED

Anti-Mao Officers Arrested in China Purge

TOKYO (CP) — A Chinese military unit has stormed a hideout of military officers opposed to Communist Chairman Mao Tse - tung and arrested "scores" of the officers, a Japanese newspaper reported today.

It appeared to be the first report of violence within China's 2,500,000-man People's Liberation Army over Mao's purge of his opponents.

Peking radio reported earlier that an "acute and complicated" struggle involving a small but influential group of anti-Maoists has built up within the army.

ASKED RETRACTION

The reports said the demand could indicate that Liu was confident of maintaining his power and that he had launched a counter-attack against Mao and Defence Minister Lin Paio.

The Peking correspondent of Mainichi Shimbun said the officers were arrested last Tuesday in Lanchow, a city of more than 150,000 700 miles west of Peking on the Yellow River.

The poster said the captured officers were "black military elements" loyal to Gen. Liu Chih-chien, ousted by Mao's supporters as director of the military revolution committee and No. 2 man in charge of ideological matters in the army.

The officers' documents were reported confiscated.

Correspondents of the Yomiuri and Sankei newspapers, quoting wall posters, in Peking, said President Liu had defended his sending of "work teams" about the country last year.

Posters put up by Mao's Red Guard supporters last December said Liu had confessed at a central committee meeting in October to dispatching work teams opposed to Mao's purge while Mao was absent from Peking for 50 days before last July 18.

According to the Japanese reports today, Liu said:

"The dispatch of work teams was not erroneous.

The 69-year-old Liu, Mao's comrade-in-arms and close adviser during the Chinese revolution, had been considered Mao's successor before the purge developed last summer.

Peking radio said today anti-Maoists within the army were "staging a counter - attack" while military units and "revolutionary rebels" throughout China were rallying to Mao's support.

If sucess stories interest you, permit me to introduce Emile Beltgens and Jan van der Have, two Victoria area teachers who are the co-editors of a neat little wonder-book titled "School and College Agenda."

It is a student's day book, 5¼ wide, and touch less than half an inch thick. Hard yellow covers enclose its contents, it slips easily into a jacket pocket, and it swings like a pendulum do.

The two opening pages are given over to a schedule laid out in columns for day, subject and room. Diary-type pages with plenty of space for marking down homework assignments run from September through to June's last work period, to conclude with "Happy Holidays" in blackface caps.

There's much, much more, including photographs of singers and bands currently popular with the young, hints on how to do homework, two poems by Victoria's Cyril McColgan, and such pawky page-top maxims as "Don't try to remove the fly from your friends forehead with a hatchet."

Emile Beltgens, Java-born and a Netherlands war veteran, came to Canada in 1950. Like his partner in the enterprise, he teaches a junior secondary class.

I first heard from him when he phoned me one evening to ask whether he should sell his work outright or insist on a per-copy royalty. Before he had even finished, I was lecturing him on the folly of the first course, and urging him, if he had an interested publisher, to hang tough for a percentage contract.

That was that until, months later, Mr. Beltgens dropped in—ruddy, smiling, and with the least trace of a Dutch accent—to tell me that Toronto publishers Holt, Rinehart and Winston had taken Agenda on.

A United States edition may follow, and there's an interesting possibility of eventual United Kingdom publication.

"After all," said adaptor Beltgens, "homework difficulties are the same all over. Perhaps we can even interest Quebec in a French version."

Until last year, he explained, handbooks of this sort were to the best of his knowledge unknown in Canada, although they have been standard student equipment in Netherland schools for generations.

The idea for transplanting them to Canada was hatched in 1963 when the two educators were cutting up touches at a convention.

"It was our Dutch name-cards that drew us together," said Emile Beltgens; and a fortunate meeting it has proven to be.

Their own version, prepared in such spare time as a teacher can afford, was turned down by 20 Eastern publishers. So with Dutch stubbornness, they arranged for local publication at their own expense.

"Then," Emile Beltgens takes up the account, "we approached I don't know how many schools and school districts. Before our book was even printed, we had orders totalling $2,700. "From May through August of 1964 we sold about 5,000 copies to schools outside the bookstore areas and to bookstores elsewhere. We were stunned."

Even so, when costs were deducted from their take, they lost money that first year.

"But this year," he added, "with our operation on a royalty basis, we can't lose."

Of Mr. Beltgen's four children, one is too young for the super-diary. You'll find poems by Victoria's Cyril McColgen among the spare-page offerings in the 1966-67 issue, but two consider it a help to them. And does the fourth use it?

"I am sorry to say he doesn't," Mr. Beltgens admitted with a rueful smile. "But he really should!"

Shuffling Through History

Queue to view choo-choo is too, too long for many Victorians who drive out to Point Ellice yard and change their minds when they see the line-up. Two to three-hour waits are common. Confederation train has been catering to capacity crowds—500 to 600 an hour—since opening. Only two-thirds of this morning's line-up is shown.

Success Swamps '67 Train Despite a Few Mutterings

By PETE LOUDON

The Confederation Train has been swamped by its own success.

Since it's doors opened Monday almost 40,000 people have seen its historic exhibits.

It was built to handle a capacity of 500 viewers an hour. There has never been an hour when it hasn't been filled.

Several times, 600 an hour have squeezed through.

The line-up this morning started at 7 a.m. although the doors don't open each day until 9.

By 10 a.m. there were more than 500 inside the train and 2,000 more standing outside under a colorful garden of umbrellas.

It's been a week of frustration for the train organizers. There have been complaints at the lengthy line-ups — some people wait two hours to make the 40-55-minute tour.

There have been complaints that the elderly citizens aren't getting a viewer priorty. There have been complaints that school children are not getting a priority.

●

There have been complaints because parking is inadequate. Cars are parked on every roadway in a half-mile radius. Businesses in the area have had to police their lots to make sure customers can park.

"But how could anyone know in advance what the public interest would be. There was no blueprint. Canadians are noted for their undemonstrative ways. How could anyone know?"

Train manager Jean Latremouille, 33, of Ottawa said the planners determined that the tour should last throughout the centenary of Confederation. (It ends in Montreal next Jan. 5 after visiting 83 centres.)

"If it's going to be such a success, perhaps they might repeat it," he thought.

"They are trying to give everyone a chance. But if we stayed here three more days we would be required to take three days from some other city," he pointed out.

Monday's the last day here.

"We can't extend the hours. It's open at 9 a.m. and the gates are closed at 11 p.m. It's after midnight before the last people in are out. Then it takes the cleaning staff until 3 a.m. to get it ready for next day.

He said someone commented to him that if the visitors had been paying $1 each the tour probably would pay off the national debt.

At the same time, "People who have waited three hours said it was well worth the wait."

He complimented Victoria on the fact the crowds have been well behaved. Vandalism has been minimal. Buttons have been removed from some clothing displays. And a CNR policeman reported some "idiots" with knives have cut swaths from velvet drapery backing a display of provincial crests.

But how much opportunity is there for vandalism when the would-be vandal is surrounded constantly by hundreds of other, more sensible people?

There have been only two faintings. The staff of 10 attendants — all first aiders — easily managed the emergencies.

There have been a few lost babies—quickly found—and more than a few people discomfited by a reported difficulty in locating rest rooms.

●

Train organizers believe some of the problems can be eased. Victoria, having the honor of starting the train on its trans-Canada tour had also to serve as a testing ground.

But they feel certain that if the public in other centres, such as Vancouver and Montreal are as interested, the train will continue to be swamped by visitors.

One Victoria school teacher already has fired off a protest to Ottawa over the crowding.

A school board official has submitted a formal report to the board pointing out that the school tours are not responsible for the crush.

●

He pointed out that one problem has been the attendance of school parties from up-Island areas which later are to be visited by the motor caravans carrying the same exhibits.

The official, R. K. Boomfield, points out that John Fisher of the federal centennial commission said at the train opening that the train was conceived as a birthday gift to the nations' youth.

He suggested the board appeal to Victorians to give children first priority today, Sunday and Monday.

Only a third of the population of this area can possibly climb aboard while the train is here. There is only one consolation. In Vancouver it will be able to accommodate only one in 10.

BROTHERS SENTENCED TO JAIL

Two brothers who failed in a holdup bid Thursday night were each sentenced to two years in penitentiary Friday.

"There have recently been far too many footpads slinking about the streets of this city," Magistrate Ostler told Mervin and Ronald Deyotte.

"It's quite intolerable that citizens cannot linger or walk about the public streets . . . without fear of attack from predatory ruffians like you."

The brothers, who both live at 701 Connaught St., were nabbed by police near midnight Thursday, moments after they accosted Adam Schulz of 1077 Davie St. as he waited for a bus on Craigflower Road near Raynor.

Court was told Friday morning that Mervin, 25, brandished a hammer handle as though it were a pistol while Ronald, 29, looked on. Mr. Schulz fled to a nearby bakery where the staff called police.

The brothers were picked up by officers only two blocks from the scene of the holdup attempt.

'Black Risk' Plan Right

Automobile insurance companies should not change their ways just to satisfy irresponsible critics, a senior insurance executive told the Royal Commission on auto insurance here Friday.

Duncan McIntosh, of Galt, Ont., vice-president of the All-Canada Insurance Federation, the industry's principal trade association, said a lot of criticism is unwarranted.

He said one source of unjustified criticism is the "black risk" driver who complains because he cannot get instant coverage through the assigned risk plan.

This is the plan operated by companies under which drivers that the companies don't want to insure are assigned in rotation among all the companies.

Mr. McInutosh said the black-record driver, who has a bad driving reputation, is like a man who has gone bankrupt three times but still expects to get a $5,000 bank loan instantly on request.

RISK DRIVERS

The commission was told the "black risk" drivers comprise only 14 per cent, a total of 4,000 out of a total of 20,000 drivers insured under the assigned risk plan. (There are about 787,000 motor vehicles in B.C.).

McIntosh was backed up by another insurance executive, Thomas O. Makin of Montreal, eastern manager for the Zurich Insurance Co., and a member of the All Canada auto committee. He said that the 4,000 black risks include many people who should not be driving at all.

Earlier the commission had been told that some drivers have such bad records of accidents and convictions that it was virtually impossible, actuarily, to translate into premium dollars the hazard that they represent.

14-DAY WAIT

McIntosh and Makin were replying to questions put by Charles C. Locke, counsel for the Insurance Agents Association of B.C. The agents have proposed to the commission that applicants to the assigned risk plan should be accepted immediately, and that they should be insured for physical damage.

At present they have to wait up to 14 days from the date of application to receive their policy. And the plan does not afford coverage for damage to the vehicle of the insured.

The commission was told that both these features might be changed in the foreseeable future.

It's Wild Game Until 'Eye' Back

By GLEN ALLEN

Should we build arks? Are the skies falling? Will this be the wettest January ever?

We may never know—at least not in advance.

Its absence, said Victoria weatherman Alan McQuarrie, has broken a vital link in an international weather intelligence system.

★ ★ ★

"We're more or less floundering around—almost reduced to making wild guesse," said Mr. McQuarrie.

"Even the central analysis computers in Montreal and the U.S. are running into trouble.

"There was little enough weather information from the Pacific. Now with the Stonetown off Station Papa and in port, I can't really say whether we'll get rain all next week too, or not."

But looking into his magic book, mixing a few potions, and calling on the reserves every veteran weather prophet has, Mr. McQuarrie was able to say things may soon look brighter.

"If only because with half the month over we've almost filled not only our storm sewers but our monthly quota for rain."

More than three inches of rain fell on Victoria in the first two weeks of this month.

★ ★ ★

The usual figure for the whole of January is just over four inches.

There have also been fewer hours of sunshine but higher temperatures and lower winds than are normal for January.

"I'm inclined to think we may see clear skies next week."

The Stonetown docked this morning, having served five of her normal seven-week stint on the station.

She had developed a fault in the motor which runs the power steering.

Although repairs to the Stonetown could be done in two days, her sister ship, St. Catharines, will leave Sunday morning to take her place.

FORMING OWN ORGANIZATION

Welfare Recipients Pan 'Degrading' System Here

—By DESMOND BILL

Social welfare recipients in Greater Victoria are organizing to change the present "irrational and degrading" welfare system.

A spkeswoman for the group said this morning, "We are not looking for handouts and we are not looking for someone to champion our cause.

"We want some basic changes made but we want to bring them about by our own action."

She said part of the trouble with the present system is that it is "paternalistic. The professionals think they know what is best for the people on welfare.

LOSE PRIDE

"It is no wonder that so many of us lose our pride. The system knocks it out of you. You have to report to a case worker as if you were on parole. You are treated as if you have com- a crime because you are in a position where you need help."

NO INCENTIVES

This woman said the present system gives no incentive to welfare recipients to become self-supporting.

"Studies show that most children who grow up living on welfare will themselves end up getting social assistance. There obviously is something wrong with a system that encourages that tendency but no one seems willing to take a chance and make some changes."

She said the welfare system now is run as if it were a "pay-off" for the poor.

"Society provides what it thinks is enough for you to exist on. But the way it is administered is degrading to thee pople who are on welfare."

She said that the proposal to build low-rental housing in the Hillside-Blanshard area is typical of the sort of fuzzy thinking that guides government agencies dealing with low-income people.

COST LESS?

"That idea of providing special housing sounds great. But just think of what will happen when a whole community of these people are brought together. And think of the stigma that will attach to anyone with that address.

"It would be far better to provide low-cost accommodation scattered throughout the area. It might even cost less, too. But no one apparently has thought about that."

To get the protest movement going a meeting has been called for 8 p.m. next Thursday in the parish hall of First United Church, 936 Balmoral.

HHOPES FOR CROWD

The movement was first suggested by persons on welfare and individual social workers who are in touch with them.

One of these professionals, Reg Clarkson of the Alcoholism Foundation, said he is hopeful there will be a good turnout of persons receiving social assistance.

He said the movement will help persons on welfare to "overcome their feelings of dependency" and will be a means of voicing the opinions of those most concerned about welfare problems.

Anyone who wants to attend the meeting but needs a free babysitter or transportation should telephone 385-0182 or 386-1901.

3,000 READY TO MARCH FOR $40,000

Three thousand Greater Victoria mothers will go on the march the evening of Feb. 1 to raise money for the Rehabilitation Foundation of B.C.

Their goal this year is $40,000.

Proceeds of the Mothers' March will go to rehabilitation services for the handicapped, sponsored by the foundation throughout the province.

Mrs. George R. Pearkes, wife of the lieutenant-governor, has been named honorary chief marching mother.

Volunteers are needed to march in the door-to-door canvass. Those available should call the Rehabilitation Foundation's Victoria headquarters at 780 Vernon, 388-5196.

A MESSAGE TO MANAGEMENT IN VICTORIA

Are you looking for a man of integrity? — Do you want someone with considerable management ability? — Someone who can meet the public? — A person who has had a responsible staff position for years? — If so I may be the person you need.

I am under 50 and healthy. I have recently retired after a successful career in the Service in positions where, from time to time, I have had the responsibility for the welfare of 250 men and the security of $2,000,000 worth of equipment in both the British and Canadian Armies.

Remuneration is not the paramount consideration. I am more interested in finding a position which will be stimulating and provide a challenge, I am not interested in house to house selling or promoting wildcat schemes. My references are adequate. Replies to Victoria Press, Box 112.

HAMBROOK, "THE HANDY MAN" Landscaping: tree, stump removal, pruning, repairs and fence building, rock and cement work, hauling. Reasonable. 384-1645 or 384-5296.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Association

West had lots of problems with today's hand. To start with, he didn't know if he should pass or bid one, three, four or five clubs. We can't find fault with his selection of a three-club call, although we would prefer to start with one club only to allow for the possibility of getting together with partner in spades.

West's next problem came after North and South arrived at six hearts. He thought about sacrificing at seven clubs but finally came to the right decision and passed. Then he had to make his opening lead.

This did not seem like much of a problem to him. He placed the king of clubs on the table.

South had been having his own problems with the bidding. He had made a fine decision when he went to three hearts after his partner's three diamond overcall but he had almost lied about aces and was tempted to bid five clubs in response to his partner's Blackwood four no-trump.

When he looked at dummy, South wished he had lied. It seemed that East would surely hold the king of hearts and that the slam would go down.

East did hold the guarded king of hearts and if West had opened the ace of spades, South would have been unable to make his contract, but the club lead gave South an extra chance and he took advantage of it.

At trick two South led the jack of hearts but he went up with dummy's ace. Then he proceeded to run off dummy's diamonds and poor East had to follow suit while South jettisoned all his spades.

Sixty Children Missing

STE. AGATHE, Que. (CP) — Provincial police here said today they were unable to locate about 60 children who had been secretly removed from Laurentian monastery after their parents sought the return of the youngsters. A police spokesman in this resort community 50 miles northwest of Montreal said police had been asked by the Quebec social welfare department to help locate the children.

Creditors Get Better News

TORONTO (CP) — Shareholders of Victoria and Grey Trust Co. have been told that many assets of British Mortgage and Trust Co., previously considered doubtful, may yield "a reasonable rate of recovery."

President Walter Harris told Victoria and Grey's annual meeting this week that with the exception of "the Atlantic and allied securities" British Mortgage assets were well secured.

Israeli Boat Attacked By Syria

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Syrian border guards fired on an Israeli fishing boat in the Sea of Galilee today, military spokesmen said. They also charged Syria with planting a mine on the Lebanese frontier which killed one man and seriously wounded two others.

Woman Dies, Paintings Lost

PARIS (AP) — A score of impressionist paintings worth millions of francs were burned today in an apartment fire which also claimed the life of the 88-year-old amateur collector.

Eight Aim for North Pole

CALGARY (CP) — Four Canadians and four Americans plan in March to make the first overland attempt to reach the North Pole since it was discovered in 1909, a Canadian member of the expedition says. RCAF Cpl. John Austad, 35, of Edmonton, said in an interview the men plan to travel the 800 miles from a weather station on Ellesmere Island in the Arctic on motorized toboggans.

Food Poisoning

CANNING EYED AS TWO DIE

SUMMERLAND, B.C. (CP) — Improperly preserved home canning was being investigated today as a possible cause of the deaths of a woman and her son apparently stricken with food poisoning.

The father, meanwhile, was in improved condition in hospital after being admitted unconscious Friday.

Dr. D. A. Clarke, medical health officer for the South Okanagan, said early indications are that Mrs. Frederick Gordon Hollinger, 32, and her son, Todd, 9, died of botulinus poisoning, generally associated with improperly preserved home canning.

Samples of food from the Hollinger home here were being sent to the University of B.C. for analysis.

Hollinger's father, Peter Hollinger, found his daughter-in-law dead and his son and grandson unconscious.

Both were taken to Summerland Hospital and the boy was transferred later to Penticton General Hospital.

Four doses of anti-toxin were ordered from Vancouver, but the boy died before they arrived.

A police spokesman said the family apparently had eaten at home Thursday night. He said a report that they had visited a restaurant in Penticton had been proved incorrect.

Fired Men Judged Incompetent

VANCOUVER (CP) — Many of the 34 carpenters fired from their jobs on the Peace River power project were judged incompetent, a spokesman for the employers said Friday.

Ed Peck, general manager of Peace Power Constructors, the employing authority on the project, said his investigation into the firings still is going on.

So far, he said, he has found that 12 men were fired for poor production, nine because they were unsuitable for underground work, 11 for failing to return from Christmas holidays and two more for other reasons.

He added that employers have recommended firing 11 more men, and this matter is being studied.

"A lot of these men were apparently only recent hirees," said Mr. Peck. "The main test for new men is job performance."

Mayor Threatens Suit To Get Police Report

7 CHILDREN, PARENTS DIE IN HOME FIRE

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A man, his wife and seven of their 12 children died today when fire swept their narrow three-storey home in the north Philadelphia section of the city.

Police said when they arrived flames were pouring out of every opening. One policeman said "flames were even coming out the cracks."

Neighbors said the flames engulfed the house so quickly the victims were trapped on the second and third floors. Three children escaped by leaping from windows in the upper floors.

Holed Ship Hanging On Reef

The tanker Esso Seattle rammed the freighter at 6 a.m. just outside Apra harbor. A hole 70 feet long and 30 feet high was torn in the No. 4 hold. The freighter, with the aid of a tug, limped to the coral beach.

Three navy tugs pushed the Guam Bear on to the reef. The bow rose high into the air and the No. 4 and 5 holds submerged. The fate of the 10,937-ton freighter depends "on whether the engine room bulkhead holds," said Gmelch. "If it does, there is a chance to salvage her."

New Market Drive By U.K.

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson prepared today to launch a new drive to get Britain into the European Common Market, but diplomatic reports indicate French President Charles de Gaulle will veto the renewed application.

Wilson and Foreign Secretary George Brown fly to Rome Sunday on the first leg of a European tour.

WEATHER HAMPERS AIR RAIDS

Sharp Fighting Flares In Viet Triangle Drive

SAIGON (AP)—Sharp fighting flared up and down South Vietnam today and the big American drive in the Iron Triangle pushed Communist losses beyond 450 men.

The U.S. and South Vietnamese Commands listed many small clashes and these other developments:

● A Norwegian motorship and a U.S. Navy minesweeping boat collided in a river 30 miles southeast of Saigon and the navy boat sank with the loss of three of her seven-man crew.

● U.S. B-52 heavy bombers struck at a suspected concentration of North Vietnamese troops less than a mile south of the demilitarized zone.

● Bad weather continued to hamper U.S. air raids over the North but pilots attacked coastal targets and reported putting 54 junks and barges out of action.

A South Vietnamese military spokesman said two battalions of Viet Cong—a force estimated at 400 men—over-ran a military post 325 miles northeast of Saigon and the defending platoon of 30 militiamen pulled out.

The spokesman said the militiamen "dispersed" and he had no report on casualties. At last report, the post was still in Communist hands.

Elsewhere, however, South Vietnamese troops reported killing 38 enemy troops in four small clashes ranging from 54 miles southwest of Saigon to 276 miles northeast of the capital.

U.S. marines operating in the northern provinces of South Vietnam reported killing 74 of the enemy in a series of light skirmishes and with artillery barrages.

In Operation Cedar Falls, the week-old drive to clear out the jungles of the Iron Trie 20 to 30 miles north of Saigon, U.S. forces counted 286 Viet Cong dead so far, 64 captured and an additional 105 who surrendered.

The operation, biggest of the war, has seen no major fighting so far.

Over North Vietnam Friday, U.S. pilots flew 73 strike missions, about half the number they fly when the weather is good. During the forays, a U.S. spokesman reported, a navy A-4 Skyhawk was shot down by Communist ground fire and the pilot is missing. It brought to 457 the total of U.S. planes lost over the North.

20 Officers In Vancouver Said Named

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun says a controversial report on the Vancouver police force names about 20 policemen suspected of being involved in crimes or of showing malfeasance in the performance of their duties.

The newspaper also says the Murray report is critical of former police chief George Archer and that it mentions Tom Campbell, now the city's mayor.

The report says Mr. Campbell, an alderman at the time the report was written, failed to give lawyer George Murray information Mr. Campbell had indicated he had on criminal activity among policemen.

Mayor Campbell now is embroiled in a dispute over the Murray report. He has threatened court action unless Attorney-General Robert Bonner gives him a copy of the report, which the new mayor says he will make public.

The report was compiled in June, 1965, by Mr. Murray at the request of former Mayor William Rathie.

DAMAGE MORALE

As an alderman last year, Mr. Campbell had urged that the report be made public. Mr. Murray said the report should not be disclosed because it would be damaging to police force morale and possibly libellous.

Thursday, Mayor Campbell walked out of a Vancouver police commission meeting when he was refused a copy of the report. The mayor is chairman of the commission.

Attorney-General Bonner said later he had all copies of the report and that he would give one to Mayor Campbell only if the majority of police commissioners approved.

Mr. Campbell said Friday night his only recourse appeared to be legal action to get a copy.

The Sun says it has learned that the Murray report also recommends further investigations into the police force, though it praises the force as a whole.

The newspaper says the report mentions improprieties among members of the police jail staff, and says that some of these suspects were known during the regime of Mr. Archer.

The report says the suspects were transferred to the police jail staff so they would be in the least sensitive positions on the force and so that the force's public image would remain clean.

Union Bugging Tapes Silenced By Court Order

VANCOUVER (CP) — The head of a provincial royal commission into electronic bugging retired County Court Judge R. A. Sargent, says a court decision Friday that puts controversial tape recordings of a bugged pulp union meeting beyond the reach of the commission will not affect the hearings.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice T. A. Dohm Friday ordered controversial tape recordings made during the electronic bugging of a pulp union's November convention turned over to the B.C. Supreme Court until further notice.

Mr. Justice Dohm granted the order to the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, which objected to playing of the tapes in public by a royal commission investigating the bugging on grounds that it would constitute an invasion of privacy.

He said the tapes will be kept by the court and ruled they will not be played unless special permission is granted by a judge.

O'NEAL RESTRAINED

In addition, Mr. Justice Dohm issued an order restraining Pat O'Neal, regional organizer for the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, from any further eavesdropping on the PPWC and from publicizing the contents of the recordings.

Mr. O'Neal admitted being behind the eavesdropping. He said he paid a private detective $200 "to obtain information" on PPWC activities.

"I cannot see any reason why anybody should hear those tapes unless the Depart-

MILITARY HIDEOUT STORMED

Anti-Mao Officers Arrested in China

TOKYO (CP) — A Chinese military unit has stormed a hideout of military officers opposed to Communist Chairman Mao Tse - tung and arrested "scores" of the officers, a Japanese newspaper reported today.

It appeared to be the first report of violence within China's 2,500,000-man People's Liberation Army over Mao's purge of his opponents.

Peking radio reported earlier that an "acute and complicated" struggle involving a small but influential group of anti-Maoists has built up within the army.

Other Japanese reports said President Liu Shao-chi, the top anti-Mao leader, recently demanded before the Communist central committee a retraction of his "self-criticism" widely publicized last December.

The reports said the demand could indicate that Liu was confident of maintaining his power and that he had launched a counter-attack against Mao and Defence Minister Lin Paio.

The Peking correspondent of Mainichi Shimbun said the officers were arrested last Tuesday in Lanchow, a city of more than 150,000 700 miles west of Peking on the Yellow River.

The poster said the captured officers were "black military elements" loyal to Gen. Liu Chih-chien, ousted by Mao's supporters as director of the military revolution committee and No. 2 man in charge of ideological matters in the army.

The officers' documents were reported confiscated.

Correspondents of the Yomiuri and Sankei newspapers, quoting wall posters, in Peking, said President Liu had defended his sending of "work teams" about the country last year.

Posters put up by Mao's Red Guard supporters last December said Liu had confessed at a central committee meeting in October to dispatching work teams opposed to Mao's purge while Mao was absent from Peking for 50 days before last July 18.

According to the Japanese reports today, Liu said:

"The dispatch of work teams was not erroneous.

The 69-year-old Liu, Mao's comrade-in-arms and close adviser during the Chinese revolution, had been considered Mao's successor before the purge developed last summer. Lin Piao now is thought to be Mao's heir.

Peking radio said today anti-Maoists within the army were "staging a counter - attack" while military units and "revolutionary rebels" throughout China were rallying to Mao's support.

SEATTLE — Officials have promised disciplinary action in the wake of reports that Seattle policemen on downtown beats have been playing poker in a tavern during their hours of duty.

"There is going to be disciplinary action," said Police Chief Frank Ramon, who ordered an investigation of reports brought to his attention by two reporters for the Seattle Times.

He said he learned that a poker game, involving on-duty patrolmen, had been going on at a tavern more than five years.

The reporters said they were told that more than a dozen policemen sometimes gather at the tavern.

MILAN—Italian police say they have uncovered an $8,000,000 insurance racket involving faked auto collisions with cows, horses, oxen and, on one occasion, a buffalo.

Eight members of a ring operating for three years were taken into custody in Milan, police said.

Ring members turned to use of animals when insurance company checks made it difficult to stage faked collisions involving just auto vehicles.

NEW YORK—The Rolling Stones, a shaggy rock 'n' roll group, have agreed to change some lyrics of what Ed Sullivan considers a suggestive song.

The decision to comply with Sullivan's wishes concerning the song Let's Spend the Night Together, means the Rolling Stones will appear on Sulliavan's television show Sunday night.

The song has been banned by many U.S. radio stations. The British pop group agreed to change the name to Let's Spend Some Time Together, and to delete certain phrases Sullivan found objectionable.

MOSCOW—Russia has come up with a real-life answer to Batman's sidekick, Robin, Tass reported today.

Yura, who lives in the Central Russia village of Kamenka, was reported to be a fraction under four feet tall and weigh 121 pounds.

"He is the envy of all children in the kindergarten," Tass said.

LOS ANGELES—Four men held up a delivery van carrying about $30,000 worth of clothing Friday and while two bandits fled in the van, the other two abducted the driver in a getaway car.

However, the car groaned to a halt in the middle of the street and the van driver managed to escape and call police.

Bank Robbery Trial May Be Over Monday

VANCOUVER (CP) — A decision is expected Monday in the B.C. Supreme Court trial of three men charged with an $18,000 Victoria bank robbery.

The Crown closed its case Friday after calling 40 witnesses. The jury elected to hear the addresses from prosecution and defence lawyers Monday, starting at 9:30 a.m.

Charged with robbery of the Bank of Montreal at 1771 Fort last Feb. 18 are William Braumberger, 45, of Vancouver, and Gordon Francis Duck, 24, and Harold Coullrer, 47, both arrested in Toronto.

SPECIAL MASKS

The bank was robbed by three men, two of whom wore balaclava-type masks and carried cut-down rifles.

The money was not recovered.

Defence counsel H. A. D. Oliver said he would argue there was insufficient evidence against them.

The trial was moved from Victoria Law Courts to Vancouver after a three-day hearing last October.

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan of the B.C. Supreme Court declared a mistrial beaucse of a news story in The Daily Colonsit which contained statements made in court while the jury was excluded.

He held that the statement, when read by the jury, could destroy the presumption of innocence of the accused. He therefore dismissed the Victoria jury and ordered that a new trial be held in Vancouver.

Special Collector Service

A centennial cross-Canada helicopter flight which calls here in September will offer a special service to stamp collectors.

The 'copter begins its tour of Canada May 24 at St. John's, Newfoundland. Its last flight will be from Victoria to Long Beach on the west coast of the Island, Sept. 1.

Each phase of the journey will be marked by the issue of envelopes bearing special stamps or "covers," the term used by philatelists.

Some of the events to be commemorated by the special covers include the attempt to set a speed record between Newfoundland and the island of St. Pierre, the 40th annivaersary of Lindbergh's crossing of the Atlantic, the official start and a visit to Expo 67.

Opening of the Pan-American games in Winnipeg and the Vancouver-Vancouver Island flight, an airmail transfer to a hovercraft and others from a kayak and a stagecoach also will be marked by the special covers.

Covers prepared by collectors themselves will be carried free of charge. Covers prepared on official, colorful envelopes and autographed by the crew are available from Centennial 'Copter Headquarters, Box 1967, New Westminster.

Policy in Naming Judges Blasted

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave first reading Friday to a bill providing for appointment of one additional judge in British Columbia and one in Ontario — but not before the whole method of appointment came under fire.

Solicitor-General Pennell introduced the bill, which provides salaries for a judge to be appointed for Westminster County in British Columbia and for a "roving judge" in Ontario. Frank Howard (NDP— Skeena) called for a halt to the present method of appointing judges on the basis of political considerations. Provincial law societies should be consulted. The Canadian Bar Association had made such a proposal.

Mr. Pennell said law societies already are consulted. He agreed that appointments should never be solely on the basis of political considerations. The primary consideration was the competency of the individual to discharge the responsibilities of a judge.

David Lewis (NDP— York South), a prominent Ontario labor lawyer, said unofficial consultations between law societies and the government are known to occur. But he wondered why they couldn't be made public.

He suggested some body be officially recognized for consultations on bench appointments.

The bill is to come up for second reading later in the session.

"There are a handful of authorities within the army who are following the capitalist road together with a small group of stubborn bourgeois reactionaries," a broadcast said. "These authorities and stubborn elements are using various methods in an attempt to cause disturbance."

CALLS FOR PURGE

Peking radio also broadcast an editorial by the Liberation Army Daily, the official Chinese Army newspaper, calling for a complete purge of army leaders opposing Mao.

But the newspaper warned an "arduous struggle" lay ahead in order to weed out the reactionary elements.

In other developments, a Japanese report said Red Guards and workers loyal to Mao had seized the Peking central radio broadcasting station on grounds that since the start of 1965 it had broadcast "black programs that suppressed Mao Tse-tung's thought and followed the reactionary line."

Following reports that supporters of Mao and President Liu were pouring into Peking, Yomiuri said a bloody clash had occurred Tuesday when anti-Mao mobs stormed pro - Mao forces protecting secret documents inside the State Council (cabinet) building. Some of the anti-Maoists were said to have been armed.

Peking radio said workers loyal to Mao had taken over the railway and a big electric power plant in Shanghai. Strikes and sabotage had been reported in the city earlier this week.

ment of Transport needs them to prosecute," Mr. Justice Dohm said. "Other than that I would be inclined to have them erased."

Fridy's judgment was the latest legal manoeuvre in the complicated battle between the PPWC and the international.

The Canadian union was successful in a bid two weeks ago in having the royal commission, under R. A. Sargent, a retired county court judge, branded illegal as constituted.

Chief Justice J. O. Wilson gave the provincial government the choice of ending the hearings completely or reconstituting the commission under new, more specific terms of reference.

SECOND THOUGHTS

The PPWC, whose angry denunciations of the international following discovery of the bugging equipment in a Vancouver hotel room sparked the royal commission investigation, started having second thoughts when Mr. Sargent decided he'd like to hear the tapes during the earlier commission sittings.

John Laxton, counsel for the Canadian union, argued desperately against public airing of the tapes, but when the commissioner decided he'd hear them, Mr. Laxton took the matter to court before they could be played.

Prior to Friday's ruling, the tape were in the possession of a department of transport inspector who aided in seizing them from the PPWC's convention headquarters two months ago.

Huge Dope Smuggling Ring Broken

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Police and customs officials in Sydney, Washington and London today claimed to have smashed an international multi-million dollar dope smuggling ring by raids here and in the United States.

Six men and a woman were held in dawn raids today on 12 Sydney homes.

Three of them, former Australian policemen James Wesley Egan, 29, Bryan John Hill, 32 and Roy Lawrence Peake, 24, have been charged with smuggling millions of dollars worth of heroin into the U.S.

WAS 'MILK RUN'

The international operation was described by U.S. authorities as a "regular milk run" on which couriers concealed heroin in corsets they wore.

U.S. Attorney Robert Morgenthau said the ring bought heroin from a Chinese source in Hong Kong at $1,600 a kilogram and sold it to wholesalers in New York at $1,000 an ounce, or about $34,000 a kilogram. A kilogram equals 2.2 pounds.

Morgenthau said the Australian ring members smuggled the heroin into the U.S. in small quantities. He said they used fraudulent passports and made frequent trips.

The arrests were the climax of a year-long investigation by U.S., Australian and British authorities into an alleged narcotic ring headquartered in Sydney.

An Australian officer said U.S. government investigators claimed the ring had shipped at least $5,000,000 worth of heroin into the U.S. during the past year.

BRITISH HELP

Some of the smugglers flew to London on their way to New York and British customs had co-operated with U.S. authorities, he added.

Officials in Sydney said the narcotics were obtained in ports such as Hong Kong and Singapore and brought to Sydney for worldwide distribution.

Australian federal police and customs men, working behind the scenes in Sydney to gain information for weeks, were granted 12 search warrants by a magistrate this week. Friday night they were given the order to move.

Raids on the 12 suburban Sydney homes were carried out simultaneously at 5:30 a.m. today.

Officials here said the narcotics were believed to have been smuggled abroad on ships.

'Strangler' Told Pal Of Killings

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) —A former state hospital inmate testified Friday that the man named as the Boston strangler said his story of the stranglings would make him a millionaire.

Albert DeSalvo, 35, the self-styled strangler, said he hoped to cash in on the book, magazine and movie rights to his story of the killings, Stanley Setterlund told a Middlesex County Superior Court jury.

"He said he was worth a million dollars," Setterlund testified.

Setterlund said he was an inmate of the Masaachusetts hospital in Bridgewater for nearly four months in 1965 and talked frequently with DeSalvo, also being held there.

Setterlund said DeSalvo told him and other inmates of attacking numerous women in their homes and on some occasions taking money and jewelry.

DeSalvo said he never took all the money or jewels he saw "so it wouldn't look like a robbery," Setterlund said, "but so it would look like he was a sex maniac."

Defence lawyer F. Lee Bailey has based his defence solely on the contention that DeSalvo is insane.

DeSalvo is on trial on charges of attacking four women in their suburban Boston homes in 1964. The charges are unrelated to the series of deadly attacks on women in Greater Boston from June, 1962, to January, 1964. Eleven of the victims were strangled, one was stabbed and the other beaten to death.

The state had said evidence is lacking to convict anyone of the stranglings. The trial resumes Monday.

FIRST NEGRO PREMIER WILL GUIDE BAHAMAS

NASSAU (AP) — Lynden O. Pindling was asked today to form a new government, thus becoming the Bahamas' first Negro chief executive. The 36-year-old leader of the Progressive Liberal party will succeed Dr. Roland Symonette as premier.

Governor Sir Ralph Grey said Pindling "is the member of the House of Assembly who is best able to command the confidence of a majority of the members of that chamber."

Pindling's party made a surprising showing in the elections which resulted in an 18-18 House of Assembly stalemate with the long-entrenched United Bahamian party.

JOURNEYMEN MECHANICS . . . WILL ALWAYS BE REQUIRED

It has been stated that oil and natural gas reserves in Canada are so great that they will still be producing hundreds of years from now.

That would suggest that the oil-fired furnace is going to be around for some years to come.

In fairness it should be said that some experts disagree with this theory.

They feel that the next 25 years will see the introduction of atomic power to serve domestic heating needs.

One thing will not change: the need for skilled Journeymen Mechanics to install and maintain heating plants in homes, factories, office buildings, hospitals and schools.

Whether they are coal-fired, oil-fired, gas-fired or fired by atomic power, the skilled heating specialist will be required.

And that's one thing you should know about your local mechanical contractors. Their union workmen are bang up-to-date on techniques and modern equipment. They will still be up-to-date whatever changes time may bring.
